Minstrel and Variety performances are being given with more or less success at the San Francisco Minstrels, at Darling's Opera House, the Globe, Col. Sinn's Brooklyn Park Theatre, Tony Pastor's, Parisian Varieties, the Third Avenue and the Tivoli.

The French Dramatic Company at the Lyceum, have been enjoying a success which has been termed emphatic; whilst the company is at this theatre, Mr. Chas. Fechter will, by arrangement of Messrs. Grau and Chizzola, play a season. This will be Mr. Fechter's re-appearance on the New York stage after an absence of two years. Mr. Fechter will make his re-entrance in French drama, and will give a long series of French representations, but before his engagement closes, he will impersonate a number of English parts. The French plays in which Mr. Fechter will act are those which were written for him expressly, and of the chief parts of which he was the original representative on the Parisian stage. Among these are "L'Abime," "La Dame Aux Camelias," "Les Filles de Marbre," "Ruy Blas," "L'Honeur et L'Argent," "Rouge et Noir," "Les Freres Corses," and "Le Bower." These works are known in English as "No Thoroughfare," "Camille," "The Marble Heart," "Ruy Blas," "Honor and Money," "Red and Black," "The Corsican Brothers," and "The Duke's Motto."

The extra matinee at the Fifth Avenue on the 20th, when Miss Fanny Davenport played Pauline to Mr. Edwin Booth's Claude, realized over $3,000. "Hamlet" was given on the 11th, and "Richelieu" closed Mr. Booth's second week on the 13th. "King Lear" was given on the 15th, 16th, 18th and 19th, and an extra matinee on the 17th, with Mr. Booth and Miss Fanny Davenport in the "Stranger" and "Katharine and Petruchio." The Merchant of Venice," with Mr. Booth as Shylock, was given on the 17th; "Hamlet" at matinee of 20th, and "Othello," with Mr. Booth as Iago, in the evening, to close engagement. Miss Clara Morris appeared on the 22d, in "Leah the Forsaken."

All of Wallack's company not engaged in "Caste," are playing "The Overland Route" at the Brooklyn Theatre.

R. M. Hooley is running his theatre in Brooklyn as a Minstrel show.

Mr. John F. Mr. J. B. Dickson, one of the managers of the Opera House, consequently levied in Chicago upon a portion of Miss Thompson's wardrobe to satisfy his claim for $800 damages, but the landlord, at Miss Thompson's suggestion, truthfully said that her board bill had not been settled, and that he had a prior claim on the dresses. He refused consequently to let them leave his premises. Mr. Dickson subsequently lowered his claim to $500, but the managers refused to pay it or to give good legal reasons for not coming to Indianapolis.

YOUNG MEN.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE. — Far or foul weather, the benefit of the California Theatre Boat Club drew a full house last evening. The bill consisted of Buckstone's melodrama of "The Flowers of the Forest," (which will be repeated for this evening entertainment); a new comedy by a Mr. D. T. Calhoun, entitled "Women of Intrigue" (which, happily, will not be repeated); the bringing on of the Cleopatra Barge (which gained the first prize at the late Carnival); and a selection of character songs by Miss Alice Harrison. This afternoon "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and on Monday "Our Boys," concerning which, see Notes.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—This evening's performance will conclude the second successful week of the burlesque, "The Fair One With the Blonde Wig." To Messrs. Crane and Kennedy, and Misses Singer and Mayhew, are due the main credit for carrying it through, although there are many miner characters, such as the major domo (and conspirator) of A. H. Hastings, the Hon. Niggerdemus (and conspirator) of H. M. Brown, the Queen (in a wonderful make-up) of Miss Ella Deaves, and the Fairy Gentilla of Miss A. A. Adams, who all deserve a word of praise.

OPERA HOUSE. — The Minstrels have had their fair share of patronage throughout the week. Never a night but they have played to good or crowded houses. The usual performances will be given this afternoon, this evening and to-morrow night. For Monday's bill many novelties will be presented.

HEROLD'S ORCHESTRAL MATINEE.—For the last concert of the present (third) season, a splendid programme has been prepared, including March from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," the allegro vivace from Mendelssohn's Italian Symphonie, the andante from Haydn's Symphonie in G, two movements from Beethoven's Pastoral Symphonie, Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas" and overture to Rossini's "Semiramide."

GRAND GERMAN AND ITALIAN OPERA—"La Sonnambula" was presented last evening with Miss Ida Valerga as Amina, Contini as Count Rodolpho and Baccei as Elvino. Miss Valerga's singing was the subject of much praise and notice. Tomorrow evening for the benefit of Mons. Gustave Hinrichs', whose ability and energy as leader have done so much to make the season a success, Meyerbeer's grand opera of "Robert le Diable" will be presented.

GEORGE D. CHAPLIN'S BENEFIT.—On Tuesday afternoon next Mr. Geo. D. Chaplin, who lost everything when Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, went to ashes, and who has been doing all he can to help himself since then, will receive the help of a benefit at the California Theatre. The bill for this benefit will be an extraordinary one, the list of volunteers including the California Theatre Company, Miss Ella F. Badger, Joe Murphy, Billy Emerson, J. G. Russell, W. H. Crane, Katy Mayhew, and Mackin and Wilson.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE. — The acts for to-night and to-morrow night are "Professor Fowler," "The Two Artists" "One of the Family" and "Sixteen String Jack," in which last, Miss Maggie Kelly as the Nobby Robber, displays much interest and talent.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—"Mazeppa" with Miss Eliza Harrington as Sattanette made an immense hit at its first production last night. The other acts and all the olio are brimful of entertainment and amusement.

THE NEW LYCEUM THEATRE. — Miss Emma Cooper in her banner song, Miss Georgie Brooks in her highland fling, Charley King in his pathetic ballad, Cherry Belle in her ballad with guitar accompaniament and ten minutes magic and mysteries are all on the bill for to-night.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Attractions.—Among the features for Saturday and Sunday are Hadj Hamo, the Arabian tumbler, and Sen. Gonzales, the world's two greatest tumblers. Also Miss Mathews, Jas. Lee, Gus Mooney, the screaming pantomime, the "Cobler's Frolic," the gymnastic troupe and concert.

The Holidays.

Bal Masque.

The Grand Prize Cosmopolitan Bal Masque will come off at Horticultural Hall, Stockton street between Post and Sutter, on Saturday evening, November 27th. Masks can be removed or retained after 1 o'clock, at option; many features of the European Ball Masques will be introduced. Two of the prizes to be awarded are 1st, a valuable set of amethyst jewelry, (brooch and earrings), to be given to the most elegantly dressed lady, in costume. The 2d prize, a fac simile of the first, equal in value, will be awarded to the lady who presents the most original character in costume. Professor Libberth will lead the orchestra. *

DRAMATIC NOTES.

On Monday next H. J. Byron's new comedy, in three acts, entitled "Our Boys," which has been purchased from the author and Mr. W. J. Florence by Mr. McCullough, will be presented at the California Theatre. The cast, which is a small one—containing but ten characters in all—presents T. W. Keene as Charles Middlewick, "one of the Boys;" Barton Hill as Talbot Champneys, "the other;" Henry Edwards as Sir Geoffry Champneys, the baronet; Robert Pateman as Perkyn Middlewick, the butterman; Miss Pateman as Mary Melrose, the poor cousin; Miss Ellie Wilton as Violet Melrose, the heiress; and Miss Alice Harrison, as Belinda, the lodging-house slavey. The story is very simple, and runs briefly in this wise. The two boys meet whilst traveling abroad, and become friends. On returning home young Middlewick is rather taken aback by his father's solecisms, which are all the more patent to him after the continental tour, whilst the baronet is a little disappointed to find that his son is without ambition, limp, listless and generally "washed out." Both fathers have marital plans for our boys; the baronet wishes his son to marry the heiress, as the union will materially help the family honor and exchequer, whilst old Middlewick turns up his nose at the heiress and fancies the poor cousin would make Charley the best wife. Of course our boys do exactly what they shouldn't, Champneys falls in love with Mary, and Middlewick becomes decidedly sweet on Violet. The fathers discover this awful state of affairs, and on our boys refusing to knuckle down are turned out of doors. The two young men come to London, and there, whilst trying to earn a living with their pens, succeed in nearly starving. Of course they bear their misfortunes stoically, and yet good humoredly, their principal cause of self-gratulation being that they have never applied to their fathers for assistance. Of course, too comes about that both fathers and girls discover it them, and after one or two little entanglements and misunderstandings everything is straightened out, and the curtain comes down on everything hunkey. The dialogue has a wit and snap to it that is thoroughly refreshing, and we look for a successful run for "Our Boys."

Charley Sutton, took Emerson's place in the Minstrels, on Monday night, introducing new business, and making a hit in the position. The business during the week, notwithstanding the wretched weather, has been excellent, the theatre being crowded every night, often "standing room" not being attainable. Manager Maguire has under engagement two first-class comedians and a first-class specialty man, who will soon make their appearance from the East and join the Company. Where is he going to put all the Minstrels patrons? If the Opera House can't accommodate them in stormy weather, what will he do with them when star-lit nights come around again once more.

Stray items concerning the loss of the Mandeville family have from time to time appeared on the FIGARO, but such wholesale extermination of of a name is worth a sad memorial: All the Mandeville family have passed away. Agatha States died in New York; Mrs. Mandeville, the mother, died in San Francisco; William N. States, the husband of the first named, also died in this city; then by the fearful loss of the Pacific, Mrs. Parsons, nee Jennie Mandeville, her husband and child, and sister Alicia, and her brother, Cal. Mandeville, wife and child, were all lost. The father of the family died in Philadelphia.

A Cincinnati paper notifies its reader to be prepared for the coming of the "renowned Italian tragedian—Mr. Barry Sullivan."

In an editorial in a Scotsman of recent date, "Our Boys," is classed among the meritricious plays that hold the New York stage. The lunatic who wrote that editorial is eminently qualified to be an Alta dramatic critic.

"The Bereaved Brace" is what they call "The Two Orphans" in Chicago.

"Henry V." now being played at the Boston Theatre, will, according to the N. Y. Dispatch, be produced in San Francisco early in the new year, with George Rignold as the young monarch.

'It's a bully band," said a small boy to his mother, as they were leaving Platt's Hall at the close of the Herold's Concert, Wednesday afternoon, "but I do wish they'd play the Skidmore Guards."

Montgomery Queen is going in for a new industry, and one, which, if successful, will make his fortune. It is nothing less than the establishment of an ostrich ranch near Haywards, Alameda. He has purchased a hundred African ostriches which will be colonized over the bay for the sake of their wings and tail feathers. These feathers always meet a ready sale and if the ostriches live and flourish, there is no reason why Mr. Queen should not become what many an ostrich rearer has become in Africa—a millionaire.

RED BLUFF, November 23, 1875.

EDITOR FIGARO—DEAR SIR:—A new concert hall and theatre is now being completed in this thriving little town in northern California, and it is to be opened sometime in December, probably about the 20th. It will be one of the finest buildings of its class north of Marysville. It is of brick, 46x100 feet, with 26 feet ceiling in the clear, and will seat about 700 people. It will have a gallery, stage, scenery, dressing rooms, etc., and will supply a deficiency long felt by the inhabitants. Mr. Crandall, the owner, deserves credit for his enterprise in the undertaking. On the opening night Col. E. J. Lewis, Senator elect from Tehama county, will make his debut in the character of Richelieu, supported by Miss Ella F. Badger as Julia de Mortimer, who has been expressly engaged for the occasion. A strong company will be secured from San Francisco for the support, and quite a little excitement prevails to witness the Senator's debut in the above role.

Yours, X.

Miss Clara Morris is now quite well and playing "Leah" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Little Sydney Cowell, has been playing the Fool (to Edwin Booth's King Lear), at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, and playing it according to the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, daintily and delicately.

Master John McKenzie "the phenomenal baritone," and Carabaraba, the great magician, have joined forces and are traveling through Utah. A thin attraction.

"Pepita," an operetta, was given at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, last evening, by an amateur dramatic company of that city.

Miss Jean Clara Walters, took a benefit at the Salt Lake Theatre on Wednesday evening, Nov. 17. "Ingomar" and "The Rough Diamond" formed the bill.

The Lenton-Ware Combination and Comic Opera Company opened at Salt Lake on the 22d.

Darling's Opera House, New York, closed abruptly on the 13th. Ben Cotton has joined Maguire's Minstrels, Chicago, and Dave Reed is with Hooley in Brooklyn.

We were unfortunately right in our surmise and it was poor George Belmore, the English comedian, who died in New York on the 15th. He was much beloved by all who knew him and especially by H. J. Montague, and George Honey who attended him during his last moments. Poor Belmore was sick when he arrived in this country and has since that time been rapidly sinking. His last appearance on any stage was October 9th, at Boston. He was a man of unusual ability, but he died poor, leaving what little he had to his wife. At the time of his death he was only 47 years of age. He was buried in W. J. Florence's vault, at Greenwood. His real name was George Gastin.

On Wednesday last, Sherry Corbyn, left for Portland, to prepare the way for Professor Hermann, who will follow in time to open in Portland on the 9th of December. Hermann is still under engagement to Mr. Thomas Maguire, but will travel in the North under the management of Corbyn. The Professor's success has been something wonderful, both here, in San Francisco and in whatever country towns he has visited. As a palmer and performer of feats of legerdermain, he certainly holds one of the highest positions in the profession. He will be accompanied by Mlle. Addie, without whom he would feel as though deprived of his right arm. From Portland where he will play a week, the Professor will proceed (according to the route marked out by Corbyn), to Oregon City, playing there one night, then to Salem for two, Albany one, Corvallis one, Eugene City two, Roseburg one, Olympia, W. T., two, Seattle, W. T., two, and Victoria B. C., for a week, the entire season lasting about three months.

We understand that Mr. Joseph Murphy has been engaged by Mr. Allison, agent for Lazar, to play a season at the New Theatre Royal, Sydney.

During the four closing nights of Tom Keene's engagement at Wood's Museum, New York, he played the double bill of Fagin in "Oliver Twist" and "Robert Macaire," the contrast being spoken of most favorably.

DR. D. PERCY.

The number of people visiting Dr. Percy, the eminent London astrologer and healer, since his arrival in this city has been truly remarkable; indeed, from 9 o'clock in the morning until late in the evening his rooms are literally crowded, rain or shine. A reporter has called at his rooms a number of times and never yet has he found the Doctor's time unoccupied. It is noteworthy that his visitors are of the elite of the city, and, as a class, intelligent, yet all seem satisfied as to the Doctor's powers both of healing and looking into the future and past, for which last he charges nothing unless he shall read the past correctly. In the treatment of disease he uses no drugs of any kind, and tells every one to a nicety their disease without asking a question, which health examination is free to all. In appearance the Doctor inspires anything but distrust, for a more frank, open countenance we never saw. This is probably owing to the fact that he always pays the printer. The Doctor has fortunately secured the elegant apartments formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, at 206 Kearny street; entrance, room 11. Dr. Percy is upon a tour of pleasure around the world, stopping only at the largest cities to engage in his business, but is glad to welcome all, whether upon business or not. Sunday Chronicle, Nov. 21st.

The Young Man from the East.

" Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

SIGNOR ROSSI'S HAMLET.

Lucy Hooper writes as follows from Paris concerning Signor Rossi's Hamlet which was a great success at the Salle Ventadour: "Nothing can be more unlike Booth's conception of the part than is that of Rossi, and yet both bear evidences of the closest and most thoughtful study, and both are fully justified by the text, thus proving how complex and many-sided is this perplexing and fascinating character. The Hamlet of Booth is a refined, dreamy, philosophical personage, in nature to the verge of effeminacy, nervous even to hysteria, sheltering his excitable, sensitive nature behind a feigned madness that becomes half reality. But the Hamlet of Rossi is really and pitiably insane. He comes before us in the first scene bowed beneath the weight of a woe too deep for words; he scarce finds greetings in the listless depths of his misery for his friend Horatio, and only the tidings of the appearance of the Ghost have power to arouse him from his apathy. In the scene with the Ghost he is more thrilled with terror than touched with that fine spirit of yearning tenderness that made Booth's cry "I'll call thee father!" so exquisitely pathetic. But nothing could be finer than the gesture wherewith he flings aside the restraining hands of his companions and turns to follow the spectre, in grand scorn of death or terror. Like Booth, he falls prostrate as the Ghost disappears, and in the "wild and whirling words" wherewith the act concludes we catch a glimpse of the catastrophe that this awful revelation of the hour has brought to pass—Hamlet is mad. Like some stately column overthrown by an earthquake, his noble mind lies shattered before us, wrecked by the convulsion that has hurled the mortal world around him into chaos. Henceforward throughout the tragedy in the wild eyes, the pale, haggard face, the speech that varies from mirthless mockery to fiercest passion or deepest woe, may be read the story of his distraught brain. Read by this light "To be or not to be," becomes the wail of a tortured soul, seeing vainly for rest and willing to rush forth to win it, even through the dread portal of suicide. In the words "To die—to sleep—" might be heard the passionate yearning of the breaking heart and burning brain for the slumber that knows no waking, but with the utterance of the line "To sleep—perchance to dream—" comes the swift shuddering recoil that shows what manner of visions haunt the restless couch of the hapless prince. His interview with Ophelia is touched with intensest pathos. He craves her prayers as one lost in an abyss of hopeless misery. He bids her go her ways to a nunnery as a refuge from a world that is but one scene of anguish. He has, indeed, forgotten that he ever loved her. What have such fair visions as love and tenderness and wedded joys to do with the world of horror wherein he dwells? He has truly wiped away all "trivial, fond records" from the tablet of his memory, only to inscribe there one all-consuming remembrance. In the play scene, he crouches at Ophelia's feet, toying with her fan and peering from beneath it at the King and Queen, and in the last grand outburst—

> Why let the stricken deer go weep!

he shivers the frail toy of ivory to splinters in his convulsive clasp. The scene with his mother formed one of the grandest points in the whole personation, though his cry after slaying Polonius of "Is't the king?" lacked the fierce triumphant tone of exultation wherein Booth used to give it. But the frenzy of his terror at the appearance of the Ghost, and the pathetic tenderness wherewith he besought his mother to repent—

> ..... Confess yourself to heaven!
> Repent what's past; avoid what is to come,

were beyond description. In the scene with the grave-diggers and the struggle at the grave of Ophelia we prefer the gentler Hamlet of Booth. But in the last act Rossi was grand beyond the power of rivalry. With the shadow of the coming doom darkening over him, he makes ready for the encounter with Laertes. Profoundly mournful was the delivery of the words—

> Thou wouldst not think how ill all's here about my heart; but it is no matter, and from the very depths of pathetic prophecy he uttered the famed and beautiful speech—

> If it be now, 'tis not to come, etc.

skill. He changes foils with Laertes in a swift graceful way, that renders the substitution a perfectly natural one. After the revelations of his dying adversary, he clutches the foil half-way down the blade and smites the King with this improvised poniard, after forcing to his lips, with fierce, irresistible gesture, the poisoned chalice—

> Drink off this potion. Is the union here?
> Follow my mother.

The group at the end of the tragedy is peculiarly picturesque and impressive. He totters to the throne, and there, on the raised dias—king at last, if but for a moment—he dominates the scene of carnage and towers triumphant in death above his foes. As his last words drop faltering from his lips, a strain of far-off, triumphant music, announces the approach of Fortinbras. And then—"the rest is silence"—the powerful frame convulsed by the "potent poison" the shadow of death sweeping across the noble features, and the curtain descends upon one of the greatest dramatic impersonations of our century.

DR. D. PERCY.

The number of people visiting Dr. Percy, the eminent London astrologer and healer, since his arrival in this city has been truly remarkable; indeed, from 9 o'clock in the morning until late in the evening his rooms are literally crowded, rain or shine. A reporter has called at his rooms a number of times and never yet has he found the Doctor's time unoccupied. It is noteworthy that his visitors are of the elite of the city, and, as a class, intelligent, yet all seem satisfied as to the Doctor's powers both of healing and looking into the future and past, for which last he charges nothing unless he shall read the past correctly. In the treatment of disease he uses no drugs of any kind, and tells every one to a nicety their disease without asking a question, which health examination is free to all. In appearance the Doctor inspires anything but distrust, for a more frank, open countenance we never saw. This is probably owing to the fact that he always pays the printer. The Doctor has fortunately secured the elegant apartments formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, at 206 Kearny street; entrance, room 11. Dr. Percy is upon a tour of pleasure around the world, stopping only at the largest cities to engage in his business, but is glad to welcome all, whether upon business or not. Sunday Chronicle, Nov. 21st.

YOUNG MEN.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The burlesque of "The Fair One With the Blonde Wig," having run two weeks, it has been determined to continue it for yet another. New additions have been made to the musical part of the programme and the divertissment has also been enriched and improved.

Opera House.

The bill for this evening has several new features, notably the presentation of the Centenial apotheosis, which has been cleverly arranged by J. N. Norcross, the basso—interlocutor. Mackin and Wilson repeats their song and dance "I Thought You Was," there are several new songs and Charley Sutton appears as end man and in several acts. The business last week, notwithstanding the wretched weather, was excellent, the theatre being crowded every night, often "standing room" not being attainable. Manager Maguire has under engagement two first-class comedians and a first-class specialty man, who will soon make their appearance from the East and join the Company. Where is he going to put all the Minstrels patrons? If the Opera House can't accommodate them in stormy weather, what will he do with them when star-lit nights come around again once more. On Wednesday evening next, Billy Emerson, having recovered from his indisposition will make his re-appearance.

California Theatre.

This evening, H. J. Byron's new comedy, in three acts, entitled "Our Boys," which has been purchased from the author and Mr. W. J. Florence by Mr. McCullough, will be presented at the California Theatre. The cast, which is a small one—containing but ten characters in all—presents T. W. Keene as Charles Middlewick, "one of the Boys;" Barton Hill as Talbot Champneys, "the other;" Henry Edwards as Sir Geoffry Champneys, the baronet; Robert Pateman as Perkyn Middlewick, the butterman; Miss Pateman as Mary Melrose, the poor cousin; Miss Ellie Wilton as Violet Melrose, the heiress; and Miss Alice Harrison, as Belinda, the lodging-house slavey. The story is very simple, and runs briefly in this wise. The two boys meet whilst traveling abroad, and become friends. On returning home young Middlewick is rather taken aback by his father's solecisms, which are all the more patent to him after the continental tour, whilst the baronet is a little disappointed to find that his son is without ambition, limp, listless and generally "washed out." Both fathers have marital plans for our boys; the baronet wishes his son to marry the heiress, as the union will materially help the family honor and exchequer, whilst old Middlewick turns up his nose at the heiress and fancies the poor cousin would make Charley the best wife. Of course our boys do exactly what they shouldn't, Champneys falls in love with Mary, and Middlewick becomes decidedly sweet on Violet. The fathers discover this awful state of affairs, and on our boys refusing to knuckle down are turned out of doors. The two young men come to London, and there, whilst trying to earn a living with their pens, succeed in nearly starving. Of course they bear their misfortunes stoically, and yet good humoredly, their principal cause of self-gratulation being that they have never applied to their fathers for assistance. Of course, too, comes about that both fathers and girls discover them, and after one or two little entanglements and misunderstandings everything is straightened out, and the curtain comes down on everything hunkey. The dialogue has a wit and snap to it that is thoroughly refreshing, and we look for a successful run for "Our Boys."

George D. Chaplin's Benefit.

To-morrow afternoon Mr. George D. Chaplin, who lost everything when Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, went to ashes, and who has been doing all he can to help himself since then, will receive the help of a benefit at the California Theatre. The bill for this benefit will be an extraordinary one, the list of volunteers including the California Theatre Company, Miss Ella F. Badger, Joe Murphy, Billy Emerson, J. G. Russell, W. H. Crane, Katy Mayhew, and Mackin and Wilson. The bill includes "The Rough Diamond," an olio and "Pocohontas," with the beneficiary as Powhowtan, Barton Hill as John Smith, and Miss Harrison as la belle sauvage.

Grand German and Italian Opera.

Gustav Hinrichs, the chef d'orchestre of the present Fabbri Opera troupe, had the biggest house of the season attending his benefit last evening. It is calculated that about 1,600 people were present. The opera presented was Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable" which was sung in German, that possibly being one reason for the spirit thrown into the representation by all on the cast. The cast included Mme. Fabbri as Alice, Mlle. Elzer as Isabella, Herr Habelmann as Robert and Herr Formes as Bertram. The ballet and temptation scenes were effectively led by Miss Amy Bennett. "Robert le Diable" will be repeated by general request to-morrow evening, and on Friday, for the benefit of Madame Fabbri, "Fidelio" will be presented for the first time.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Matt Carroll makes his first appearance here to-night, and takes part in the sensation of "Sixteen String Jack," which with Miss Maggie Kelly as the Robber, and George C. Thompson as Puffy Pudding Duffer goes well.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Kity Zoe makes her first appearance here to-night The programme commences with a first part of song and wit and concludes with the successful spectacular burlesque of "Mazeppa" with Miss Eliza Harrington as Satanette.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Eddie Fonteneau makes his first appearance here to-night in his great specialty entitled "The German Auswanderin." Johnny Wretland in his Lancashire clog dance, and the act of "Intelligence Office," are also new.

Wo[illegible]ward's Gardens.

The new attractions for Saturday and Sunday are the first time of Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner songs, the three Acrobats, and the laughable pantomime, the Apprentice of Madrid, Sen. Gonzales, the champion tumbler; Miss Mathews the danseuse and gymnastic troupe also appear and the usual grand concert is given.

Notes.

Miss Morse and Miss Fannie Marsten have been trying to work a subscription list for an Italian Opera season in Portland. We doubt it's working·

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

For the last concert of the present (third) season, a splendid programme has been prepared, including March from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," the allegro vivace from Mendelssohn's Italian Symphonie, the andante from Haydn's Symphonie in G, two movements from Beethoven's Pastoral Symphonie, Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas" and overture to Rossini's "Semiramide."

TO-DAY.

Only from day to day
The life of a wise man runs
What matter if times far away
Have gloom or have doubled suns?

To climb the unreal path,
We lose the roadway here,
We swim the rivers of wrath
And tunnel the hills of fear.

Our feet on the torrent's brink,
Our eyes on the cloud afar,
We think the things we think,
Instead of the things that are.

Like a tide our work should rise,
Each later wave the best,
To-morrow forever flies,
To-day is the special test.

Like a sawyer's work is life!
The present makes the flaw,
And the only field for strife
Is the inch before the saw.

Wound Up.

In Lydford Churchyard, England, on the borders of Dartmoor, the following curious epitaph is to be seen:

Here lies in horizontal position
the outside Case of
GEORGE ROUTLEIGH, WATCHMAKER,
Whose abilities in that line were an honour
to his profession.
Integrity was the mainspring, and prudence
the Regulator of all the actions of his life.
Humane, generous, and liberal,
his hand never stopped,
till he had relieved distress.
So nicely regulated were all his motions,
that he never went wrong
except when set a-going by people who did not know his Key;
Even then he was easily
set right again.
He had the art of disposing his time so well,
that his hours glided away
in one continual round of pleasure and delight, till an unlucky minute put a period to his existence.
He departed this life
Nov. 14, 1802,
aged 57;
wound up
In hopes of being taken in hand
by his maker;
and of being thoroughly cleaned, repaired,
and set a-going
In the world to come.

Preliminary Notice.

Peter Job, our old Pioneer French cook, will open on the 4th of December, a comodious Family Restaurant and Fancy Bakery, at 867 Market street, opposite Baldwin's new hotel. Most all old Californians know that whatever Job undertakes, he does it well, and, therefore, it is hardly necessary to state, that with his usual energy, he is now engaged in superintending the fitting up of what will be one of the finest and most comfortable restaurant in the city. It is Peter Job's intention not only to establish a first-class restaurant, but to keep a constant supply of French and American confectionary, and also the best Ice Cream to be found in the State. His former friends and patrons will find when they call upon him, that Peter Job has lost none of his former superiority in the art of cooking, that they will be well waited upon by the most polite and attractive of waiters.

Bal Masque.

The Grand Prize Cosmopolitan Bal Masque will come off at Horticultural Hall, Stockton street between Post and Sutter, on Saturday evening, November 27th. Masks can be removed or retained after 1 o'clock, at option; many features of the European Ball Masques will be introduced. Two of the prizes to be awarded are 1st, a valuable set of amethyst jewelry, (brooch and ear rings), to be given to the most elegantly dressed lady, in costume. The 2d prize, a fac simile of the first, equal in value, will be awarded to the lady who presents the most original character in costume. Professor Libberth will lead the orchestra. *

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody, of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Home Thrust.

"The post-office in our village," writes a Vermont lady, "was kept in the bar-room of the tavern—a grand resort for loungers. An old chap, more remarkable for his coarseness and infidelity than his good manners, was sitting there one day with a lot of boon companions, when the Methodist preacher, a new-comer, entered and asked for his letters. Ned Swipes asked, bluntly "Are you the Methodist parson just come here to preach?" "I am," pleasantly replied the minister. "Well," said Swipes, "will you tell me how old the devil is?" "Keep your own family record," replied the preacher, and left the room amidst the roars of the company."

No More Use For It.

A jail chaplain, finding a prisoner exhibiting as he thought, signs of true religious conviction, gave him a Bible, and afterward exerted himself to procure a commutation of his sentence. Succeeding in the latter effort, he informed the man of his approaching liberty. His gratitude knew no bounds. He called him his deliverer, and grasping his hand at parting, added: "Here is your Bible, I may as well return it to you, for I hope I shall never want it again."

"Caste" has well supplied the vacant place left by the withdrawal of "The Overland Route." The cast is said to be a splendid one, the George D'Alroy of H. J. Montague and the Eccles of George Honey receiving the greatest attention. Mr. Honey had, by reason of other engagements, to throw up his part on the 20th, Papa Eccles being now in the hands of Harry A. Beckett.

Mr. Joseph Proctor in "Ambition" and "Nick of the Woods," followed T. W. Keene at Wood's Museum and after Proctor, a Mr. Edward Walton came, and is now playing.

Mr. Josh Hart has resigned his management of the Theatre Comique, Mr. Matt Morgan being the A. No. 1 there now.

The Mexican Infantile Opera Bouffers played alternate evenings at the Lyceum for the week ending the 20th, starting for Boston on the 21st.

The hundredth performance of "The Mighty Dollar" is drawing near, and in all probability Mr. Florence will have his heart's darling wish gratified.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

The French Centennial Play.

Some amiable French admirer of America offered a prize last April for the best drama based on the American Revolution. Sixty-seven plays have been handed in to the unhappy man who is to award the prize. Some of them are doubtless good, though a play written to order, like poetry written to order, is usually of dubious merit, and, in fact, the majority of these competitive dramas are pretty certainly very bad.

The sublime ignorance of the average Frenchman about American history, customs and scenery, is probably displayed to advantage in a goodly number of them. If the rejected ones were published literature would become enlivened by some of the finest flights of imagination.

It is not difficult to guess at some of the plots, We shall have Oncle Sam as the hero of one play, dumping the tea into Boston harbor, and then retiring, singing psalms at the head of his army, to Philadelphia, where he is appointed General-in-Chief of the army. The curtain rises at the beginning of the second act upon the legendary hero engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with Gen. Braddock, whom he is enabled to kill by the timely aid of the Marquis de la Fayette. The victors are suddenly attacked by one of the monstrous lions which, as is well known, then infested the forests of North America. Happily preserved from this terrible peril—it is needless to say that the preserver is a Frenchman—they journey on to glory. When they have attained it, the performance closes with a grand tableau. The Marquis de Rochambeau is sitting on the head of the British lion, which wags its tail—by clock-work—under the pecks of the American eagle's beak. The Goddess of Liberty crowns Oncle Sam. The United States and France embrace in the background. France cries, "Hessian mercenaries fought against you." O. S. replies: "True! Let us make common cause against them. Alsace-Lorraine must be reconquered!" Tableau. Blue fire. Curtain falls. The ushers wake up the snoring audience.

Another drama will introduce us to the celebrated M. Vashington. We shall have him cutting down his favorite apple tree rather than have its shade and fruit rejoice the British army. He will appear at Monmouth, paralyzing retreating Harry Lee by uttering the fearful oath, "Sac-r-r-e." A thread of love story will be furnished by his passion for "Mees Colombia," whom he marries just before fighting the decisive battle of the Revolution—Bunker Hill—where he utters his famous phrase: "Delay the discharge of your chassepots until you see the whites of your enemy's eyes!" This battle is a bloody one, but the Americans are made conquerors by the charge of de la Fayette at the head of the legions of France, while the celebrated iron-clad, the Monitor, is bombarding the rear of Lord Cornwallis' army and putting the regiment commanded by "Gen. Merrimac" to ignominious flight.

Such absurdities, carefully elaborated, will make delicious reading. The worst of these competing plays may be more interesting than the best.

Seeking the Lost.

A Methodist preacher travelling in the back settlement of a Western State stopped at a cabin, where an old lady received him very kindly, giving him a warm supper and asking many questions. "Stranger, where mought you be from?" "Madam, I reside in Shelby County, Kentucky." "Wall, stranger, hope no offence, but what mought you be doing out here?" "Madam, I am looking for the lost of the tribe of Israel." "John," shouted the old lady, "here's a stranger all the way from Kentucky a hunting lost stock, and I'll just bet my life that old curley-haired black ram that came into our yard last week is one of hisen."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are alw at the lowest living figures. Their stock of hes, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

A Clever Trick.

A remarkably ingenious trick has been recently performed at a Parisian theatre, which consists first in bringing a lady on the stage in a light palanquin, constructed in such a way as to show there was no possibility of a double bottom, and resting on the sholders of slaves. Arrived at the front of the stage, the palanquin was set down in full view of the audience. The actress drew together the two silk curtains of the palanquin, which was almost immediately thrown open by the slaves, but the actress had disappeared. Where had she gone? This trick took place in the brightest light, on the front of a stage brightly illuminated! The audience could see under the palanquin; she had not gone down a trap. The marvel remained for a long time unsolved, and, people crowded night after night to see the inexplicable thing. The explanation is simple enough. The supports of the palanquin were of frail appearance, but they were, instead of four wooden columns, four metal tubes, hollow, with ropes running through them and passing over little pulleys at the top. These ropes descended again inside the palanquin, and were fastened to a frame, which formed the top of a silk cushion on which the actress was lying, and the other ends of the ropes connected with a make-weight. One of the palanquin-bearers was a machinist in slave's costume, and when the actress drew the curtains this machinist let go a rope, which caused the make-weight to fall, and the frame on which the actress lay to mount up to the dome, actress and all. There she lay as neatly fixed as a fly in amber; but with a wire gauze over her head, permitting her to breathe comfortably. Care had been taken in the building and painting of the palanquin to make it appear frail, while it was in fact very strong; and the bearers, men selected specially for their strength, were trained to pick up the palanquin with an air of lightness after the actress had disappeared, and trot out as if it were empty.

It was well with Him.

Last Sunday a good Christian resident of this city met a colored acquaintance whom he had not seen for some months, and he took him by the hand and inquired: "Well, William, what of your future—how does it look?"

"Purty bright sah," responded the smiling William, "Ize got a 'leaven dollar note agin a fellar at de depot, two pa'rs ob sleeve buttons, a shot gun an' a knife, an' I feels as if I couldn't be too grateful for all dat wealth, while lots of odder niggers are cl'ar run down to one dog an' an old hat."

Domestic Discipline.

It's all right to talk about bringing up a child in the way he should go; but the other day when a Third street woman set out to do it, a man halted at the gate and shouted:

"Go in, mother; cripple the boy for life!"

And a woman leaned over the fence and screamed:

"Why don't you cut his throat!"

And a boy climbed on the alley fence, waved his hat and cried out:

"Why in blazes haint the reporters been around here to get this 'a-w-f-u-l tragedy!'"

And the mother had to stop pounding and get into the house.

YOUNG MEN.
Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.
Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500
For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are borderin upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.
MIDDLE-AGED MEN!
There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

Opera House.

The California Minstrels began the present week last night with a first-rate bill played to a first-rate house. The first part—in which are songs by Messrs. Davis, Tyrell, Welch, Russell, Sutton and Walz ,concludes with a 'grand Centennial Celebration' arranged by J. M. Norcross, and which consists of a medley of national songs, finishing with an allegorical tableau, Miss Jennie Sherman impersonating the Goddess of Liberty. Mackin and Wilson in song and dance, Ernest Linden in a new cavatina, "Wanted a Nurse" by Messrs. Reed and Norcross, "A Good Night's Rest" by Messrs. Sutton and Welch, and the "Skidmore Guards" make up the second part. To-morrow evening, Billy Emerson makes his re-appearance.

California Theatre.

Had the announcement been made that "Our Boys" had been written expressly for the California Theatre Company, all who were present last night (the 'all' being numerous and fashionable), would have said that Mr. Byron had well studied the fitness and especial powers of the company. Every member of the cast seemed to fit into his or her part as though into an easy and accustomed grove. The simple plot and short list of dramatis personæ we have already published more than once, and sufficient popular curiosity has by this time been aroused to attend the presentations of this Comedy. We need only a few words here in the light of a general (and brief) review of its first performance. The characters are few in number being, as may be seen, but eight. These eight are divided up into four pairs, all strongly contrasted and individualized, the two boys, the two fathers, the two girls, and the two eccentrics, the last couple being the dependent maiden-aunt, and the lodging-house 'slavey.' Of plot there is but a shadow, but the story of "Our Boys" is told so brightly, so wittily, so keenly, that never for an instant does the attention flag. It is like taking a tonic, to hear the quips and cranks and bitter-sweet philosophy put into the mouths of Mr. Byron's characters. Whether to speak of Mr. Hill's Talbot Champneys, a blonde, languid swell with an infinity of hidden energy; of Mr. Pateman's Perkyn Middlewick, the retired butterman, as good in heart as he is bad in grammar, guiltless of aspirates and aspirations (except for his son); of Mr. Edwards' Sir Geoffry, dignified and Dombeyish; of the Charles Middlewick of Keene, who received a roar of reception and who played with his usual conscientious earnestness; of the girls, by Misses Bella Pateman and Ellie Wilton, both charmingly dressed, of Mrs. Saunders as the Aunt or of Miss Harrison as Belinda, who "carries her parentage of the soil in her face."—of which of these characters to speak we have hesitated, until we find that we have spoken of all.

Maguire's New Theatre.

This is the third week of the burlesque "The Fair One with the Blonde Wig." By nursery rhymes, by new songs, by new jokes, by new funny incidents, and by new attractions in the divertissment, the burlesque has been so brightened and revived that it is now almost new. On Monday next Miss Katy Mayhew receives a complimentary benefit.

Grand German and Italian Opera.

In consequence of its great success on the occasion of Gustave Hinrichs' benefit, "Robert le Diable," will be repeated this evening instead of "Rigoletto," as had been announced. On Friday evening next, Madame Inez Fabbri, the support and orignator of the season takes her benefit when "Fidelio" will be given.

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

For the last concert of the present (third) season, a splendid programme has been prepared, including March from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," the allegro vivace from Mendelssohn's Italian Symphonie, the andante from Haydn's Symphonie in G, two movements from Beethoven's Pastoral Symphonie, Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas" and overture to Rossini's "Semiramide."

George D. Chaplin's Benefit.

This afternoon, Mr. George D. Chaplin, who lost everything when Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, went to ashes, and who has been doing all he can to help himself since then, will receive the help of a benefit at the California Theatre. The bill for this benefit will be an extraordinary one, the list of volunteers including the California Theatre Company, Miss Ella F. Badger, Joe Murphy, Billy Emerson, J. G. Russell, W. H. Crane, Katy Mayhew, and Mackin and Wilson. The bill includes "The Rough Diamond," an olio and "Pocohontas," with the beneficiary as Powhowtan, Barton Hill as John Smith, and Miss Harrison as la belle sauvage.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Matt Carroll received a hearty welcome on his first appearance here in song and dance. "Sixteen-String Jack" still keeps the road, and with the other acts still keep the audience in good humor.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The bill, which begins with a first part and walk around, ends with the spectacular burlesque of "Mazeppa," and contains some capital amusement. To-morrow evening Katie Zoe makes her first appearance here.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Eddie Fonteneau in his great specialty of "The German Auswanderin," made a great hit last night, as did Johnnie Wretland in his prize Lancashire clog dance. New acts and faces almost every night

Woodward's Gardens.

The new attractions for Saturday and Sunday are the first time of Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner songs, the three Acrobats, and the laughable pantomime, the Apprentice of Madrid, Sen. Gonzales, the champion tumbler; Miss Mathews the danseuse and gymnastic troupe also appear and the usual grand concert is given.

Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

SINGING.

Let me count up the songs of life that we
  Have sung together from the first till now;
The simple baby-rhymes of bird and bee,
  Of sun and star, of stream and blossom-bough.
The deeper music of our youth's new song,
  In days when life looked wonderfully fair;
When hearts were daring, pulses quick and strong,
  When woe was not, and joy was everywhere.
The wilder strain of passion, smiles and tears,
  When love awoke with power to slay or save;
The calmer melody of graver years,
  In minor key, like music by a grave.
And now we have another song to learn,
'Tis written for us, but we wait our turn.

I often think this unseen, unsung song,
  With all its strangeness, will have notes we know;
And we shall hear its awful chords among
  The mingled music of our long ago.
The simple music of our baby-rhymes;
  The thrilling bars of youth's triumphant strain;
The peals of melody, like wedding chimes,
  That bring our summer love-song back again.
It may be this new song is hard to sing,
  But shall we grudge to learn it, who have grown
Tired and voiceless in earth's caroling,
  Yet fain would have some melody our own?
And though it is the song of death, we know
That singing it, to endless life we go.

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

It is important to know the difference between mushrooms and toadstools, but it takes years to find out, and authorities differ. The only sure test is to eat one. If you live, it is a mushroom. If you die, it is a toadstool.

One of the late zephyrs in Minnesota, is reported to have blown two sheep into the top of a tree a mile away from their grazing place. The rest of the flock had presence of mind enough to hold on to the grass with their teeth.

A woman cured her husband of staying out late at night by going to to the door when he came home, and whispering through the keyhole, "Is that you Willie?" Her husband's name is John, and he stays at home every night now, and sleeps with one eye open, and a revolver under his pillow.

A Wisconsin editor illustrates the prevailing extravagance of the people of the present day by calling attention to the costly baby carriages in use now, while, when he was a baby, they hauled him around by the hair of his head.

The person who composed "O, for a Thousand Tongues!" passed most of his boyhood in molasses hogsheads on the wharf.

It is impolite to say a man has "cheek;" say "facial area."

Preliminary Notice.

Peter Job, our old Pioneer French cook, will open on the 4th of December, a comodious Family Restaurant and Fancy Bakery, at 867 Market street, opposite Baldwin's new hotel. Most all old Californians know that whatever Job undertakes, he does it well, and, therefore, it is hardly necessary to state, that with his usual energy, he is now engaged in superintending the fitting up of what will be one of the finest and most comfortable restaurant in the city. It is Peter Job's intention not only to establish a first-class restaurant, but to keep a constant supply of French and American confectionary, and also the best Ice Cream to be found in the State. His former friends and patrons will find when they call upon him, that Peter Job has lost none of his former superiority in the art of cooking, that they will be well waited upon by the most polite and attractive of waiters.

Bal Masque.

The Grand Prize Cosmopolitan Bal Masque will come off at Horticultural Hall, Stockton street between Post and Sutter, on Saturday evening, November 27th. Masks can be removed or retained after 1 o'clock, at option; many features of the European Ball Masques will be introduced. Two of the prizes to be awarded are 1st, a valuable set of amethyst jewelry, (brooch and earrings), to be given to the most elegantly dressed lady, in costume. The 2d prize, a fac simile of the first, equal in value, will be awarded to the lady who presents the most original character in costume. Professor Libberth will lead the orchestra.

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

Are fast approaching and everybody, of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. x

In The Detroit Police Court.

A HEATHEN CHINEE WHO GETS DRUNK.

"Got a Chinaman, eh?" mused his Honor as Bijah proudly escorted out a "John."

The prisoner indulged in many gestures and a great deal of Chinee language.

"It won't do, my boy—won't do," replied the court with a shake of his head. "I can't understand your infernal lingo, and you needn't talk tea-chest marks to me. I am here to administer law in the name of the American people, in the American language, and I want to know about your being drunk. You were found on the walk, dead drunk, and this is your hour of peril."

"Washee—glood man—Michigan street!" said the prisoner, going through with many motions.

"Are you one of Wah-Hap's men?"

"Yles—yles—washee Wah-Hap—no get dlunk!"

"You might have been stretched out on the walk to get a bite of fresh air, but it looks to me as if your legs had been tangled up by whisky. What do you mean, young man, by coming over to America and getting a brick in your hat:"

"Washee—washee!" responded John.

"Boy, you had better look out! You look like the heathen who starched a dozen shirts for me when I went East last Summer, and I swore vengeance on him! I believe you are guilty, but I suppose I've got to let you off. Listen to me, now!"

The Chinaman gave a great jump as his Honor struck the desk, and Court continued:

"Look me right in the eye, you salmon-colored Celestial, and mark my words. If you ever get drunk in this town again I'll make you think that all the joss-houses in Pekin have tumbled down on you! Go, now, and don't turn to the right or the left as you make tracks for the office of that pensive rascal, Wah-Hap."

DOG VS. CAT.

"Two old women here for disturbing the peace? Well, Mrs. Rose, clear your throat, expand your lungs, and give me a column and a half of explanation."

"You see, sir," she began in a fierce voice "I have a dog!"

"That's rignt, madam. If I had time I would own a thousand dogs."

"And this Mrs. Bannister has a cat."

"Very likely. Home wouldn't be home without a cat. What is the color of this dog and this cat?"

"Maltese and white, sir; and yesterday as my dog was sitting on the door-step, saying nothing to nobody, and her cat was on the fence, wanting a fuss. Mrs. Bannister comes out and says she: "I'll scald your sore-eyed dog, I will." And I says: "And I'll pizen that howling cat o' yours!" And then true as I stand here, your Honor—!"

"And then—yes, I can imagine all the rest. You two old women called each other names, clawed at each other over the pickets, raised the neighbors and were justly arrested. Now, then, I don't want to hear any more. I fine you three dollars each, and I warn you that if you are brought in on the same charge again I'll put on my coat and go up there and I will knock your wall-eyed cat and sore-heeled dog on the head."

"It's a beautiful cat!" shouted Mrs. Bannister."

"It's the finest dog in town!" screamed Mrs. Rose.

"I don't care—hustle right out o' here, and don't stop on the street to call each other pet names.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rheinish hock."

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

He put an enemy in his mouth to steal away his brains, but the enemy, after a thorough and protracted search, returned without finding anything.

Consolation for old maids—"Misfortunes never come singly."

"I never get mad at a fool," was the cutting remark of a man who fancied himself affronted by another. "That accounts for your always being on such amicable terms with yourself," was the rejoinder.

A scientist has ascertained that a man is 1,876 times as large as a house-fly, and this fact is enough to make a man sheer his hat over the top of his head and step high.

In what way does a lady treat a man like a telescope? When she pulls him out, looks him through, and then shuts him up.

What is the difference between a belle and a burglar? The belle carries false locks, and the burglar false keys.

Rats that live in granaries are said by a professional rat-catcher not to be poisonous, while those that feed on refuse meat inflict painful wounds. This is another argument in favor of the vegetarian theory, and every pious family should keep a granary.

A Boston marble yard has this placard conspicuously displayed on a monument: "Prices to suit the times."

Good for a cold—A handkerchief.

A man who always keeps cool—the pedagogue.

The very worst kind of an uncle—a carbuncle.

The most popular woman's paper—a paper of pins.

The first person who ever went round the world—The man in the moon.

An Irish doctor lately sent his bill to a lady as follows: "To curing your husband till he died."

"You keep postal cards here, don't you," asked a little woman of the stamp clerk at the post-office yesterday. "We do, madam." "I'll take one, if you will write on it for me." "All right—now go ahead." "It's to my husband, who is in Chicago," she said. "Write like this: "'SIR—I am most sick, baby is under the doctor's care, and James and the other children have the measles. The rest of us are usually well. All the women are wearing back-combs, and don't forget to write often. We all send love, and our house almost got on fire last night. JANE.'"

A Clergyman in Iowa married three couples at once last week, though they were wholly unacquainted with each other. He was highly disgusted when the grooms made up a pool and paid only the usual fee for one ceremony.

A stranger kissed a La Crosse girl by mistake, and was then licked by her two brothers for being mistaken. He then deliberately kissed her for being who she was, and was licked for being impudent.

A milk man was awoke by a wag in the night with the announcement that his best cow was choking. He forthwith jumped up to save the life of his animal, when lo! he found a turnip stuck in the mouth of the pump.

"I saw an excellent thing in your pamphlet," said Daniel O'Connell to a young writer. "Eh? What, sir?" was the eager rejoinder. "A penny bun, my friend."

When a stranger asked a Detroit girl whom he met at a party, if she was married, she promptly replied: "Not quite, but I've sued three or four chaps for breach of promise."

A Milwaukee lady who paid fifty dollars to have a wart removed from her nose now wants to know what has become of the nose.

"Well, I'll divorce you this time, but mind, not another decree shall you have from this court till you are eighteen," said a Judge at Sioux City, as he granted a divorce to a petitioner of sixteen, and awarded her the custody of the child.

Love laughs at creed barriers as well as locksmiths. A New York Rabbi states that he has recently admitted thirty-eight Christian male adults to membership in the Israelitish church. There was a marriage ceremony immediately after each case.

While a Sacramento street undertaker was drawing his tape line over the corpse of a Chinese woman he was surprised to see [illegible] turn her eyes up at him. The surrounding friends showed no surprise, but simply said, "She be deadee by twelve o'clock."

A man may occasionally kiss the wrong woman by mistake. But when he makes a practice of it the right woman finds it out, and that's what bothers him.

Why is coal the most contradictory article known to commerce? Because when purchased it goes to the cellar.

"Grace, Mercy and Peace."

She was an athletic and deeply religious woman, and "Here I raise my Ebenezer" she always sang softly, as she lifted her husband, Ebeenezer Johnson, off the stoop with an application of her foot to his coat-tail, when he came home a little inebriated.

Yes, and at such times Ebenezer would always reply:

> "Hither by thy help I come."

When his irate wife would answer with a frown of derision, "Yes, and no doubt you would go on and say,

> 'And I hope, by thy good pleasure,
> Safely to arrive at home.'

But you won't do it, not nary time, till you sober up, you good-for-nothing whisky sponge, not as long as I've got a hand or foot to raise you out."

And then Ebenezer, turning over in the gutter, casting a supplicating look at Grace, the wife of his bosom, as much as to say, "I have known better days," but seeing in her face no signs of relenting, he draws a flask from his side-pocket and begins at the commencement:

"Come thou fount of every blessing," but before he has finished "Streams of mercy never ceasing," a well-directed missile scatters the fragments of the flask over the shirt-bosom of Ebenezer, and enables him to absorb the care-destroying whisky through the pores of his skin.

Ebenezer only succeeds in drawing out "Prone to wander," when Grace tells him to "git up and go, and if you git farther than a pumpkin could roll up hill, it will be a wonder," says Grace.

Then by a struggle he raises himself to something like a sitting posture, and addresses himself to his sober half in a tone mellow enough to soften the banquet in front of him:

"I'm a bad man, but (hic) I'm penitent; I'm onner road to ruin. 'F'adn't been f'r you'd been ruined long 'go." Then he tried to sing the best he could in his peculiar condition—

> "Oh, to Grace how great a debtor
> Daily I'm constrained to be;
> Let thy goodness like a fetter
> Bind my wandering heart to thee.

And Grace goes right out into the street, picks him from the gutter, brushes his hat and clothes, wipes his face with her apron after dampening it with her tears, and when she gets him straightened up in front of the door she gives him a kick that sends him sprawling inside.

As she follows after she remarks: "It's a real sin to be so tender with him, but I always was chicken-hearted."

Stunted by Sickness.

"Jennie, you're my sweetheart," said a nine-year old suitor, as he sat alone with his heart's idol, the other evening. "How can I be your sweet-heart?" asked the little Miss, "when I am thirteen years old and you are only nine?" "Are you thirteen?" "Of course I am." "Well," answered the juvenile beau, after reflecting a little, "I'd a been thirteen, too, if I hadn't been sick so much when I was little."

DR. D. PERCY.

The number of people visiting Dr. Percy, the eminent London astrologer and healer, since his arrival in this city has been truly remarkable; indeed, from 9 o'clock in the morning until late in the evening his rooms are literally crowded, rain or shine. A reporter has called at his rooms a number of times and never yet has he found the Doctor's time unoccupied. It is noteworthy that his visitors are of the elite of the city, and, as a class, intelligent, yet all seem satisfied as to the Doctor's powers both of healing and looking into the future and past, for which last he charges nothing unless he shall read the past correctly. In the treatment of disease he uses no drugs of any kind, and tells every one to a nicety their disease without asking a question, which health examination is free to all. In appearance the Doctor inspires anything but distrust, for a more frank, open countenance we never saw. This is probably owing to the fact that he always pays the printer. The Doctor has fortunately secured the elegant apartments formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, at 206 Kearny street; entrance, room 11. Dr. Percy is upon a tour of pleasure around the world, stopping only at the largest cities to engage in his business, but is glad to welcome all, whether upon business or not. Sunday Chronicle, Nov. 21st.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relie by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 207 Kearny street, between Sutter and Bush, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. H

Which He Would Rather Have.

A Detroiter of liberal education has been greatly annoyed because his wife and other women are not better posted on history and other matters connected with the growth of the country. The other day he carried home a big history and handed it to his spouse with the remark:

"There, Mary, I want you to commence, at page one, and see if you can't learn something.

She agreed to become his pupil, and when he came home to supper he found her reading away, hair down, slippers on, all the fires out but one, and no sign of supper.

"Why, how's this?" he inquired; "are you sick?"

"Sick! No."

"Well, where's my supper?"

"I don't know anything about your supper," she replied as she settled back in her chair; "but I can tell you all about the first discovery of Florida as straight as a string!"

That history hasn't been opened since that evening.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

California Theatre.

From all appearances "Our Boys" will have a run. On all hands people may be heard talking of the delightful charm of the new comedy, "bright and natural," "crisp and sparkling," etc., etc. No one should miss enjoying the healthy fun of the entire story, or seeing Barton Hill as Talbot Champneys, a character of which he could, if he choose, make as great a specialty as Sothern has of Dundreary, the two being well distinct, mind you.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The Fair One With the Blonde Wig" with W. H. Crane as Huckaback, M. A. Kennedy as Princess Prettipet, Miss Mayhew as Graceful, and Miss Singer as Don Leander, still continues to draw, notwithstanding the weather, and the fact of its being the third week. On Friday, Professor Hermann, the great master of magic will appear for that night only. He leaves for Oregon on Saturday.

Opera House.

"The Skidmore Guards," and the Centennial musical and pictorial Celebration, are the two principal features of a bill which abounds in good things. This evening Billy Emerson, having recovered from his indisposition, will make his re-appearance and may count on a big reception. He will give "Muldoon" and "Since Terry First Joined the Gang."

Grand German and Italian Opera.

The second presentation of "Robert der Teufel," drew an audience that was at once large-sized and appreciative. It (the opera) may be counted as the second success of the season. On Friday evening next Madame Inez Fabbri, the life and soul of this most creditable (and happily successful) undertaking, will receive a benefit, when Beethoven's "Fidelio" will be presented.

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

For the last concert of the present (third) season, a splendid programme has been prepared, including March from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," the allegro vivace from Mendelssohn's Italian Symphonie, the andante from Haydn's Symphonie in G, two movements from Beethoven's Pastoral Symphonie, Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas" and overture to Rossini's "Semiramide."

George D. Chaplin's Benefit.

Having kept a fair face for the major part of the morning, the weather clerk of course turned ugly about one o'clock and spoiled George Chaplin's benefit. As it was, there was a moderately large number of people who had waded to the theatre through the rivulets along the route; but the house would have been jammed had the skies been clear. And should have been, too, for George Chaplin is a thoroughly good fellow and deserves a return for his losses if ever man did. At all events, the audience were hearty enough, which was some consolation. The bill consisted of "The Rough Diamond," with Miss Pateman as Margery, an olio in which Jos. Murphy, Miss Belle Chapman, W. H. Crane, Miss Katy Mayhew, J. G. Russell (without his drum), and Charley Reed (in a very funny act) took part, and the first ac. of "Pocahontas," with Miss Harrison, George D. Chaplin, Barton Hill and Miss Lou Johnstone in the cast.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

For to-night's entertainment, Kimic will appear in Dutch songs, Kitty Leroy in her champion jig Master Cassim in his contortion act, Ned Barry in songs, and George C. Thompson in his specialties.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

George Lowden in motto songs, Lon Dixon in song and dance, Charles Nickerson in banjo solo and "Mazeppa," are all on the bill for this evening.

New Lyceum Theatre.

"The San Jose Hotel," "The Kearny Street Milliners," are two new acts for this evening. To-morrow night Charles Voletta will make his first appearance on the dancing globe.

Woodward's Gardens.

The new attractions for Saturday and Sunday are the first time of Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner songs, the three Acrobats, and the laughable pantomime, the Apprentice of Madrid, Sen. Gonzales, the champion tumbler; Miss Mathews the danseuse and gymnastic troupe also appear and the usual grand concert is given.

Notes.

From the Chronicle of to-day, we learn:

"A suit has been instituted in the 3d District Court to foreclose a mortgage for $16,900, together with interest, held by Henry S. Dorland on the New Mission Street Theatre. The lease of Mr. Bert is subject to this mortgage, and in case it is foreclosed the theatre will be in the market at a very bad time. About one-third of the stock of the theatre is held by Dr. Wade, who owns the ground on which it is erected and has taken the value of the land in shares. Various liens are spoken of, among others it is said that the Hibernia Bank is a creditor to the extent of $25,000. The general impression in theatrical circles appears to be that an amicable settlement will be arrived at and that the suit will be abandoned."

There is nothing very alarming about this. If investigation is made it will be found that nearly all buildings of mammouth portions, like the Mission Street Theatre have mortgages placed on them as they approach completion, to sustain the expense of construction. The stringency of the money market, may prevent the raising of money on the building just at present. But there need be no fear but that Dr. Wade and the stockholders will work out their own salvation.

It is probable that Joe Murphy will have to give up, or postpone his intended Australian trip on account of the illness of his wife.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

THE EMINENT I.

The London comic papers—or some of them—make boisterous fun over Henry Irving's make-up and mouthing in the character of Macbeth. The following (condensed) is from the Figaro, whose editor, Mr. James Mortimer, is at daggers drawn with the young tragedian, and will persist in always calling him in print, The Eminent I:

THE FALL OF THE EMINENT I.

'Twas in the prime of autumn-time,
An evening calm and cool,
And full two thousand cockneys went
To see him play the fool;
And the critics filled the stalls, as thick
As the balls in a billiard-pool.

He wore pink tights—his vest apart,
To clutch his manly chest;
And he went at the knees in his old, old way,
While his brow he madly prest;
So he whispered and roared, and gasped and groaned,
As with dyspepsia possest.

Act after act he ranted through,
And he strode for many a mile,
Till some were ready to leave the house,
Too weary to even smile;
For acting murderers' parts so oft
Had somewhat marred his style.

But he took six more hasty strides
Across the stage again—
Six hasty strides—then doubled up,
As smit with searching pain:
As though to say, "See me create
The conscience-stricken Thane!"

Then leaping on his feet upright,
Some moody turns took he;
Now up the stage, now down the stage,
And now beside Miss B.;
And, looking off, he saw her ma,
As she read in the R. U. E.

"Now, Mrs, B., what is't you read?"
Asked he, with top lip curving,
"Queen Mary? A play by Mr. Wills?
Or something more deserving?"
Said Mrs. B., with an upward glance:
"It is the fall of Irving!"

One night, months thence, while gentle sleep
Had stilled the city's heart,
Two bill-stickers set out with paste,
And play-bills, in a cart,
And the Eminent I had his name on them,
In a melodramatic part.

Slips of the Pen and Type.

In the last number of Chambers' Journal there is an amusing chapter on printers and reporters' mistakes, from which we excerpt the following: Recording some steeple-chase doings at Monaghan, the Irish Times said: "A very nice day's sport was carried on over an excellent course, all grass, over the lands of Mr. Henderson, whose hospitality was unbounded. It consisted of two walls, two bank-drops, a water-cut, and two hurdles." Telling of a man who lost his life in a riot, a Belfast paper ended the story with: "They fired two shots at him, the first shot killed him, but the second was not fatal." He was not blessed with a couple of lives, like the deaf man named Taff, who "was run down by a passenger-train and killed; he was injured in a similar way a year ago." The Irish journalists, however, cannot be accused of monopolizing the manufacture of bulls; their English brethren are equally clever that way; as they proved by sending the Princess Louise to Wimbledon "to witness the shooting of her husband;" describing the Prince of Wales's second son as "an amiable boy like his mother;" and announcing thut the Duke of Hamilton would shortly take to wife "the late Lady Mary Louise Elizabeth Montague."

Preliminary Notice.

Peter Job, our old Pioneer French cook, will open on the 4th of December, a comodious Family Restaurant and Fancy Bakery, at 867 Market street, opposite Baldwin's new hotel. Most all old Californians know that whatever Job undertakes, he does it well, and, therefore, it is hardly necessary to state, that with his usual energy, he is now engaged in superintending the fitting up of what will be one of the finest and most comfortable restaurant in the city. It is Peter Job's intention not only to establish a first-class restaurant, but to keep a constant supply of French and American confectionary, and also the best Ice Cream to be found in the State. His former friends and patrons will find when they call upon him, that Peter Job has lost none of his former superiority in the art of cooking, that they will be well waited upon by the most polite and attractive of waiters.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Wasnington street below Kearny. M

JAMES STARK, THE TRAGEDIAN.

On the 12th of October last, in New York city, after a lingering illness, James Stark, one of the pioneer actors of the Pacific Coast, breath his last. For several years he had been afflicted with paralysis, but until about a year before his demise he became sufficiently recovered to play minor characters in Edwin Booth's dramatic company. But ever since the paralytic stroke, which overtook him at Virginia City, Nevada, his mind as well as his body was enfeebled, and it was mainly through the generosity of a brother member of the profession that he was enabled to provide himself with the bare necessaries of life.

Stark crossed the plains shortly after the discovery of gold, in company with Harry Coad, the actor at present attached to the California Theatre, San Francisco. He had then attained considerable eminence in the profession, having on one occasion, in Cincinnati, fairly divided the honors with Edwin Forrest. Shortly after his arrival in San Francisco he married Mrs. Kirby, an actress, the widow of that Bowery favorite, who rendered the death scene in "Richard," so effectively that the gods would attend night after night, going to sleep during the four acts with the earnest request from each, "Wake me up when Kirby dies."

From 1850 to 1852, Stark had the management of the Eagle and Tehama theatres in Sacramento. Mrs. Stark was a good actress as well as an excellent business manager, and her husband's success in early times is due largely to her valuable assistance and counsel. After the destruction of the Tehama Theatre in 1852, Stark played a most successful star engagement in San Francisco, and was considered an actor of unusual promise. He afterwards visited Australia, in company with his wife, where he met with great success, financially and otherwise. Shortly after his return to California, in 1857, he removed to San Jose, where he constructed the old San Jose Theatre, on First street. From 1857 to 1862 he lived in San Jose and ran the theatre with varying success. Among the members of Stark's Company were Belle Devine, Nellie Brown, Harry Coad, J. Griffiths, J. S. Potter—Connor and W. Lloyd.

Nellie Brown was a sprightly and dashing actress, and was a great favorite. She is now dead, as is also her husband, Harry Brown. Belle Devine afterwards married George Pauncefort, the actor, who cruelly deserted her shortly afterwards, when she most needed care and attention. She is now living in retirement in San Francisco. Griffiths, a very good low comedian, still lives. He was a member of the Black Crook Company which visited San Jose last year. Lloyd was Stage Manager for Proctor's Troupe several years ago. We don't know where he now is. Connor and Potter are dead.

Shortly after Stark gave up the management of the San Jose Theatre, he obtained a divorce from his wife, and from that time his ill-success began. He lost his money in unfortunate mining speculations and again took to the stage. In 1868, on the eve of an engagement, he was stricken with paralysis in Virginia City. His first wife never lost her attachment for him. Her purse was always open for the relief of his sufferings during the later years of his life, this benovolence dating nearly from the rupture of their marital relations.

"After life's fitful fever, he sleeps well."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

An Irish Duelist.

Pat Power of Daragle, was a fat, robust man, much distinguished for his intemperance, and generally seen with a glowing red face. He on one occasion fought with a fire-eating companion, named Bill Brisco. Whilst taking aim, he said he still had a friendship for him, and would show it. So he only shot off his whisker and top of his ear.

When traveling in England, Power had many encounters with persons who were attracted by his brogue and clumsy appearance. On one occasion a group of gentlemen were sitting in a box at one end of a coffee-room when he entered at the other. The representative of Irish manners at this time on the English stage was a tissue of ignorance, blunders, and absurdities; and when a real Irishman appeared off the stage he was always supposed to have the characteristics of his class, and to be a fair butt for ridicule. When Power took his seat in one of the boxes the waiter came to him with a gold watch with a gentleman's compliments, and a request to know what o'clock it was by it. Power took the watch and then directed the waiter to let him know the person who sent it. He pointed out one of the group. Power rang the bell for his servant, and directed him to bring his pistols and follow him. He put them under his arm, and with the watch in his hand walked up to the box; presenting the watch, he begged to know to whom it belonged. When no one was willing to own it, he drew his own silver one from his fob, and presenting it to his servant desired him to keep it; and putting up the gold one, he gave his name and address, and assured the company he would keep it safe till called for. It was never claimed. On another occasion he ordered supper; and while waiting for it, he read the newspaper. After some time, the waiter laid two covered dishes on the table; and when Power examined their contents he found they were two dishes of smoking potatoes. He asked the waiter to whom he was indebted for such good fare; and he pointed to two gentlemen in the opposite box. Power desired his servant to attend him, and directing him in Irish what to do, quietly made his supper off the potatoes, to the great amusement of the Englishmen. Presently his servant appeared with two more covered dishes, one of which he had laid down before his master, and the other before the persons in the opposite box. When the covers were removed, there was found in each a loaded pistol. Power took up his and cocked it, telling one of the others to take up the second, assuring him "they were at a proper distance for a close shot, and if one fell he was ready to give satisfaction to the other." The parties immediately rushed out without waiting for a second invitation, and with them several persons in the adjoining box. As they were all in too great a hurry to pay their reckoning, Power paid it for them along with his own.

Then and Now.

He used to cramp his feet up in little boots and limp painfully to her residence every Sunday evening, but the morning after his marriage he went into a shoe shop, drew a chalk mark around his foot, and about an inch distant from it on both sides and at the heel and toe, and ordered the proprietor to put him up a pair of boots after that pattern. Oh, there's sweet liberty, there's balmy boundless freedom, in the marriage state.

A man in Denver admires the "pull back." His wife hasn't kicked him since it came in fashion, excepting when she was in her night-dress, and then she had her shoes off.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of [illegible]hes, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relie by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 207 Kearny street, between Sutter and Bush, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. B

The New Organ.

A church away out in Austin, Nev., forsook its primitive mode of worship and had an organ put up. The Sunday on which the instrument was first to be used a large congregation gathered, and a mild-haired young man with eye-glasses and a catarrh, who had been secured for the occasion, seated himself before the keyboard. As is usual on such occasions, there was a hitch in the programme, the blower was behind time, having stopped on his way to adjust a personal difficulty, and when he did arrive he was too much battered and worn to furnish wind for the voluntary. So the minister read a little and the choir stood up. It was one of those modern compositions called a "set piece," where the soprano makes an assertion in solo, after which she is joined by the contralto in repeating the sentiment, followed by the tenor with his view of the case, and to whom the basso acts as a sort of musical indorser. Well, the organ peeped gently on the little pipes, and the soprano sang "Eef I had a —wings; wings like ah dove." Then the contralto chimed in, and the ivory manipulator pulled out a stop and let on more steam, when a wild, shrill cry, like the wail of a lost soul, horrified the listening ears of the audience. Fear brooded over the choir, and they glanced with awe toward the organ, all except the tenor, who had a cast in his eye. With trembling voice the burden of the song was taken up, and the tenor took a deep breath wherewith to tackle the high note he was to begin on. The time came, and the organist grabbed a handful of stops and bore down on the pedals. The note came, and with it a shriek at utter discord with the singer's voice. But the organist was interested, and did not heed the frightened looks of the congregation, so he turned on a fresh supply of pipes, and the basso thundered out: "Eef I had wings." Just then, the player kicked all the pedals in motion and jammed down the swell. Then came a rattle and a hoarse cry, the blower fled from his post, the choir abandoned their desire for wings and used their feet, as a yellow cat, with tail erect and blazing eyes, leaped from the swell-box and lit in the deacon's pew. The audience went out, and so did the cat through a window.

Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

ART GALLERY,

MISSION STREET, ABOVE THIRD.

HE MANAGEMENT IS PLEASED TO ANnounce to the public of California that this magnificent structure, after many months of preparation, will be formally opened on

Monday Evening, Dec. 20th,

On a scale of gorgeousness and splendor hitherto unattempted on the Pacific Coast, and rivaling, in all essential details, the largest and most celebrated theatres of Europe and America. It is impossible, in the brief limits of a newspaper advertisement, to give an adequate conception of the magnitude of this, the chef d'euvre of theatrical and art enterprises of America.

THE ART GALLERY,

With its spacious promenades and multifarious attractions, will form a splendid adjunct to the theatre, and afford the visitor ample opportunity of studying the beauties of art and sculpture in its various phases.

Emboldened by the prodigality with which the people of California, and San Francisco especially, are disposed to encourage enterprises of this character, the management takes pleasure in announcing that he has secured, direct from the hands of the author, the celebrated German spectacle of

"Snowflake!"

Which has had such an unprecedented run in Berlin, Munich and other German cities, and which has been adapted to and will be produced on the stage of Wade's Opera House with all the original paraphernalia, scenery, properties, effects, etc., at a cost of over $20,000.

Trusting that his future exertions in the cause of art and the drama may meet with a ready recognition at the hands of a discriminating people, the manager begs to subscribe himself

The public's obedient servant,
de2 FREDERICK W. BURT.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Maguire's New Theatre.
"The Fair One With The Blonde Wig," will be ntinued all the week. Little Marie Schuman's hornpipe in costume is well worth seeing. On Monday evening next, Miss Katy Mayhew, takes a enefit, when the "Jealous Wife," will be on the bill, th M. A. Kennedy and the beneficiare as Mr. and Mrs. Oakley.

Opera House.
Emerson made his re-appearance here last night, ter an absence of a week and a half, the house be- g a crowded one and his reception most hearty and enthusiastic. He appeared as Muldeon, with ree encores and as the gallant Captain of the gal- nt Skidmore Guards. Everything seems to go ong swimmingly here now.

California Theatre.
"Our Boys" is played to constantly increasing business, last night's house being the largest of the week. After Barton Hill's Talbot Champneys, the haracter that attracts and deserves most attention that of Perkyn Middlewick the retired butter- an, as played by Robt. Pateman.

Wade's Opera House.
By an announcement in another column from Mr. Frederick W. Bert, the Lessee and Manager of Wade's Opera House, it will be seen that this large and splendidly appointed theatre, will be formally opened on Monday evening, December 20th. The ening attraction will be the grand spectacular ece entitled "Snowflake," which has had such a un in Berlin, and Munich, and wherever produced n the European cities. It will be produced with ll its original scenic effects and paraphenalia, by n entire new company of twenty professionals, culled from the Eastern States and Europe now on heir way here. Incidental to the piece will be a rand ballet by corps of artists. We visited the theatre yesterday and found work being driven head in every department to prepare for the open- ng. The carpenters were finishing up the proscen- um box ornaments; the scene painters were aloft on heir bridge, in double force at work on the scenery; he property men were busy at work constructing heir "props;" the plasterers were finishing up their work in the lobbies; the fresco painters were putting heir last touches on the ceiling, and evidences of driving work were visible on every side. All this change is due to the energy and enterprise of Manager Bert, who has now taken possession of the theatre as lessee, and who is determined that there shall be no more delays in finishing up this theatre. There is much work yet to do in the short pace of time intervening between this and the pening night, but it will be done. The tact and erseverance that have overcome so many difficulties heretofore, will bring order out of chaos, and have all things complete for the opening night.

Grand German and Italian Opera.
On Friday evening next, the eminent lyric and ramatic prima donna, Madame Inez Fabbri, the life and soul of this most creditable (and happily uccessful) undertaking, will receive a benefit, when eethoven's "Fidelio" will be presented with an ex- eptionally strong cast and after careful preparation.

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.
The concert given yesterday afternoon, the last y the bye of the present series, was to a great xtent a rechauffe of the best things given in those hat had gone before. There were for instance two movements from Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony," the overture to "Semiramide," the Dreher and Lance from Lachner's "Bal Suite," the March from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete." New, there was an allegro from Mendelssohn's "Italian Symphonie," Mendelssohn's overture to "Ruy Blas" and a reverie by Schumann, for string instruments. This, which much resembles Vogt's in character and treatment, was encored.

The Palmieri Concert.
At length we are to have an opportunity of hearing these much talked of artists, Signora Palmieri, Signora Alicia Persiani and Signor Tito Palmieri. On Wednesday evening next, a grand operatic concert will be given at Pacific Hall, when the San Francisco public will have an opportunity of judging whether the reputation they bring with them from Italy and Australia has been well learned. We congratulate Signor Agrati, the agent, on his success in at length gaining an opportunity of introducing La Palmieri to us.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.
Kitty Leroy's song and dance, Kimic's Dutch songs, Leon's dancing, George C. Thompson's comicalities, the sensation of "Sixteen String Jack," and Frank Mortimer's general supervison, make up a good bill.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.
Sam Wade, the well-known character-actor makes his first appearance here to-night in one of his specialty acts. "Mazeppa" is still continued and still draws.

New Lyceum Theatre.
Miss Cherry Belle's ten minutes of magic and mystery are ten minutes spent very pleasantly; all the acts and the entire olio make up a most entertaining bill.

Woodward's Gardens.
The new attractions for Saturday and Sunday are the first time of Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner songs, the three Acrobats, and the laughable pantomime, the Apprentice of Madrid, Sen. Gonzales, the champion tumbler; Miss Mathews the danseuse and gymnastic troupe also appear and the usual grand concert is given.

Notes.
We published a biographical sketch of the late James Stark, the tragedian, yesterday, copied from the San Jose Mercury, which does Mrs. Stark the unintentional injustic of stating that he obtained a divorce from her. The facts of the case are, the divorce was obtained by application made by Mrs. Stark, and on just and sufficent grounds. We regret the misstatement found place in our columns.

The Green Room.
This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Infants'

FINDING THE SUNSET.

Oh, the beautiful home of the sun,
Hung out on the western sky,
Where the days lay down their brightness,
And bathing in splendor die!

Sweet friends in the home of our childhood,
The gentle and loving ones, stand
Gazing out as we enter Life's wildwood
In search of the Sunset Land.

Full soon do the meadows grow broader,
And rougher the path where we stray,
Less frequent the cool, gushing fountains,
And the sunset seems further away.

And the friends who have journeyed with us
We lay with the mouldering dead;
They have reached the bright sunset before us,
And lonely the pathway we tread.

But the floods of molten glory
Which beam from Sunset Land.
Fill our hearts with a restless longing
On those beautiful shores to stand.

Our locks, once sunny and golden,
Are white as the drifting snow;
Our eyes have grown dim with their gazing,
And our footsteps are feeble and slow.

As we near the eternal splendor
We pause at a swelling stream;
We must cross it ere reaching the hill-tops
Which glow in the sunset's beam.

So, closing our eyes for a moment
In the sun's last dazzling ray,
We awake where glory dwelleth,
In a land of perpetual day.

A Parisian Dodge.
A Parisian correspondent writes: "A funny incident took place the other day in the omnibus which runs from the Odeon to the Batignolles. An old woman got in, bearing in her arms an immense cavalry saber with an inscription on the scabbard. Hardly had the vehicle began to move than she burst into tears, and, embracing the weapon, she wailed amid her sobs, 'My husband, my poor, dear husband, alas! that poverty should compel me to sell this last relic of thee!' Touched by her tears and her distress, her fellow passengers hastened to take up a collection for her benefit, and quite a handsome sum was realized, which the old woman received with fresh tears, this time those of gratitude. On arriving at the stopping place of the omnibus line a policeman was seen approaching, whereupon the old woman, leaving her precious saber behind her, leaped nimbly from the vehicle an ran off as fast as her legs could carry her. She turned out to be a well-known shop-lifter and market thief, who had successfully tried the new game of practicing upon the feelings of the unwary and the generous. A new rendering of 'Voici le sabre,' not set to music by Offenbach."

Scented to Kill.
A Detroit girl poked up a new beau the other evening at church, and when they reached her father's gate, he accepted her invitation to go in. He was perfumed to kill, and it wasn't long before his musk reached the back room where the old folks sat. The old man was heard stubbing around, growling and muttering, and presently he opened the door and passed out and took a walk around the house. He came back after snuffing around for a few minutes, and, pounding on the parlor door, he asked:

"Evangeline, where's that ere piece of candle?"

"I don't know, father; why?" she inquired in return.

"There's a skunk or something under the addition, and I've got to hunt him out, or we can't live here over night."

The young man didn't stay there long after that.

"ONLY AN IRISHMAN."

An American paper, in an article under the title of "Only an Irishman," called forth by the flippant remark of a young fop who, reading of an accident, said, "After all, it is only an Irishman," says:

Berkeley, the philosopher, was only an Irishman.

Robert Fulton, the inventor of steam navigation, was only an Irishman, by descent.

Curran, the inimitable orator and wit, was only an Irishman.

Duns Scotus, the most subtle philosopher of the Middle Ages was only an Irishman.

Donegan, editor of the most comprehensive Greek lexicon, was only an Irishman.

Drs. Kane and Hayes, the Arctic explorers were only Irishmen, by descent.

Marshal Neil, the celebrated engineer, was only an Irishman, by descent.

Captain O'Hara Burke, the explorer of the continent of Australia, was only an Irishman.

Ossian, the last of the heroic age, was only an Irishman.

Charles O'Conor, the head of the American Bar, is only an Irishman, by descent.

Sarsfield, Marshal of France, and the hero of Fontenoy, was only an Irishman.

Kavanagh and Prince Nugent, Marshals of Austria, were only Irishman.

Barry, the great personator of Othello, was only an Irishman.

Patrick Clebourne, "the Stone-wall Jackson of the South-west," was only an Irishman.

Quinn, the great personator of Falstaff, was only an Irishman.

St. Brendan, held by eminent authorities to have been the first discover of the continent of America, was only an Irishman.

Edmund Burke, the greatest statesman that ever stood in the English House of Parliament, was only an Irishman.

M'Cormick, the inventor of M'Cormick's Steam Reaping Machine, is only an Irishman.

Marshal McMahon, the present head of the French nation, is only an Irishman, by descent.

Tom Moore, "the poet of all circles and the idol of his own," was only an Irishman.

Marshal O'Donnell, Field Marshal, Prime Minister of Spain, and dictator at one time, was only an Irishman, by descent.

O'Connell, the Hercules of moral force agitators, pronounced by Wendell Phillips the most powerful orator he ever heard, was only an Irishman.

Virgilius, a bishop who flourished in the eighth century, and who was the first to discover the sphericity of the earth was only an Irishman.

Maclin, the great actor, was only an Irishman. It was of his impersonation of Shylock that Pope wrote—

"This is the Jew,
That Shakspeare drew,"

"Grattan—ever glorious Grattan—
With more than Demosthenese wants endued,
And his rival, or victor, in all he possessed,"

so Byron says—was only an Irishman.

Father Mathew, the Apostle of Temperance, who administered the total abstinence pledge to upwards of five millions of persons, who accomplished more in his day for the cause of temperance than all the Anglican and Anglo-American temperance speechifiers that ever shouted themselves hoarse on a temperance platform, was only an Irishman.

Horace Greeley, the great journalist, statesman and sociologist, was only an Irishman, by descent.

William H. Seward, the ablest Secretary of State, America ever had, was only an Irishman, by descent.

A. T. Stewart, the most successful merchant in the United States, is only an Irishman.

Doyle, the caricaturist, perhaps the most versatile of modern artists, was only an Irishman.

SIGNORA MARIA PALMIERI.

This gifted Prima Donna is at present in San Francisco, and we give a brief outline of her career, showing the undisputed position she held in Europe, as it is impossible for any but an artist of the highest reputation to be so often engaged at such opera houses as La Scala, Milan, San Carlo, Naples. The lady was born in London in 1842; but, although English by birth, she is as thoroughly an Italian artiste as any daughter of that sunny land. At an early age, she was sent to Italy under the tuition of the most eminent masters. She made her debut in Leghorn in 1862, and by her abilities at once achieved the brilliant success which had been predicted for her. In 1863, she was engaged for the [illegible] La Scala, where she created an immense furore as Lucia, was at once re-engaged for the ensuing Carnival season. From thence she went to Genoa, Turin, Florence, Trieste, Palermo, Brussels and Venice, meeting everywhere with the extraordinary success which was the natural result of her exceptional talents.

Opera House.

The house was packed last night, the descriptive medley finale and Emerson's songs being most warmly received. Of the two we think "Since Terry First Joined the Gang," much funnier than "Muldoon," which last, however, seems to have lost nothing of its freshness.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The incidental amusements of this burlesque are themselves worth the price of admission. The ballet of the Allen children is one of the prettiest things we have seen for a long time, Marie Schuman's hornpipe dancing in costume is like that of a fairy turned sailor, and Messrs. Brown and Sherwood in the "Regular Army O.' 'are as funny as they are handsome. To-night Professor Hermann will make is only re-appearance, as he starts for Oregon, to-morrow. His exhibition of magical skill will take place between the 1st and 2d acts of the burlesque.

California Theatre.

The people who come to enjoy "Our Boys" increase in number nightly, and we should not be surprised if this delightful comedy were continued next week. Public interest has grown up concerning it, and public interest generally means a run.

Grand German and Italian Opera.

This (Friday) evening the eminent lyric and dramatic prima donna, Madame Inez Fabbri, the life and soul of this most creditable (and happily successful) undertaking, will receive a benefit, when Beethoven's "Fidelio" will be presented with an exceptionally strong east and after careful preparation. Beethoven wrote one opera that has lived, "Fidelio," and that will be produced for the first time in San Erancisco this evening. Two such events, the benefit of an impressario, and the first performance of a great opera are enough to draw all the city to Platt's Hall.

The Palmieri Concert.

At length we are to have an opportunity of hearing these much talked of artists, Signora Palmieri, Signora Alicia Persiani and Signor Tito Palmieri. On Wednesday evening next, a grand operatic concert will be given at Pacific Hall, when the San Francisco public will have an opportunity of judging whether the reputation they bring with them from Italy and Australia has been well learned. We congratulate Signor Agrati, the agent, on his success in at length gaining an opportunity of introducing La Palmieri to us.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

This old-established variety theatre is filled each night with its patrons. Kimic, Kittie Leroy, Barry, Thompson, St. Leon, Maggie Kelly and Frank Mortimer, give an excellent bill.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

There are several new features on to-night's bill. The first part concludes with the Jubilee Choir, Sam Dennis made a big hit last night, and Professor Lowden gives "ten minutes in wonderland." Don't fail to see "Mazeppa."

New Lyceum Theatre.

The first part is quite a feature at this theatre, with Charley King as taborine, Billy Randall as bones and Matt Kelly as interlocutor. In the second part is an "infinite variety" to please and amuse.

Woodward's Gardens.

The new attractions for Saturday and Sunday are the first time of Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner songs, the three Acrobats, and the laughable pantomime, the Apprentice of Madrid, Sen. Gonzales, the champion tumbler; Miss Mathews the danseuse and gymnastic troupe also appear and the usual grand concert is given.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

BEYOND.

This world is wan and old,
Its fleeting pleasures told,
Ah, me!
Waits there another sphere,
More bright and clear,
To be?

Is Death an utter blot?
Am I to be forgot,
Indeed?
Is there no volume new,
More sweet and true,
To read?

Will Life's illusive spark
Rise radiant from the dark
No more?
Beyond the grave's Dead Sea,
O, there must be
A shore:

Where aged hairs shall fall,
And happy voices call,
Long still;
Where Hope again will spring,
And Time shall bring
No ill,

Blow fresh, sweet winds of Faith,
Clear from all mist and wraith,
My eyes;
In rain of tender tears,
Unfading years.
Arise!

W. A. KENDALL.

Carefully Chalked.

A hotel-keeper in Stirling, having got in a cask of whisky, was busily engaged in the cellar transferring the liquor, by means of a pump, to his barrels. Assisting him in this operation was his man John, whose mouth was watering all the time at the smell of the spirit he liked so well. The hotel-keeper received a call from his good wife to the upper regions, to speak to some gentlemen who desired to see him; and, being afraid to trust John alone in the presence of such a great temptation as the pump presented, he at length hit upon the expedient of chalking John's lips with the piece of chalk used in scoring the number of gallons. John was agreeable, and at once held up his lips to be chalked. The master, however, made merely a pretence of doing so, by drawing his thumb across John's lips, and the man, believing all fair, at once began pumping away with a virtuous vigor that seemed proof against all temptation, while the master went up stairs. When he returned, in the course of half an hour, John was still as industrious as ever. Of course he had "never tasted a drop," but the curious thing was that his lips were now very carefully chalked.

A Young Wife's Habits.

A recently made Benedick writes as follows concerning his young wife's habits: "If there was a bed-room a mile long, and her entire wardrobe could be packed in a bandbox, you'd find portions of that wardrobe scattered along the whole mile of dressing-room. She's a nice thing to look at when put together, but this wonderful creature is evolved from a chaos interminable of pins, ribbons, rags, powder, thread, brushes, combs and laces. If there were seven thousand drawers in your room, and you asked but but for one to be kept sacred and inviolate for your own private use, that particular one would be full of hair-pins, ribbons, and soiled cuffs. Some provision, some protection in this matter, should be made by Congress during next session, if it gives such matters any consideration."

Loved His Art.

A doctor living in Macomb County, Michigan, when called upon to set a broken limb for a laboring man, examined the limb and said: "If I set this limb it will be five or six months before you can walk. If I saw it off and make you a wooden leg you'll be out splitting rails in less than three months." The man declined the generous offer, and the doctor sighed drearily at he rolled down his shirt-sleeves.

A Slight Hint.

A lady called upon her milliner, the other day, to get the character of her servant. The respectable appearance of the latter was beyond questioning.

"But is she honest?" asked the lady.

"I am not so certain about that," replied the milliner. "I have sent her to you with my bill a dozen times, and she has never yet given me the money."

A Parisian Dodge.

A Parisian correspondent writes: "A funny incident took place the other day in the omnibus which runs from the Odeon to the Batignolles. An old woman got in, bearing in her arms an immense cavalry saber with an inscription on the scabbard. Hardly had the vehicle began to move than she burst into tears, and, embracing the weapon, she wailed amid her sobs, 'My husband, my poor, dear husband, alas! that poverty should compel me to sell this last relic of thee!' Touched by her tears and her distress, her fellow passengers hastened to take up a collection for her benefit, and quite a handsome sum was realized, which the old woman received with fresh tears, this time those of gratitude. On arriving at the stopping place of the omnibus line a policeman was seen approaching, whereupon the old woman, leaving her precious saber behind her, leaped nimbly from the vehicle an ran off as fast as her legs could carry her. She turned out to be a well-known shop-lifter and market thief, who had successfully tried the new game of practicing upon the feelings of the unwary and the generous. A new rendering of 'Voici le sabre,' not set to music by Offenbach."

Scented to Kill.

A Detroit girl poked up a new beau the other evening at church, and when they reached her father's gate, he accepted her invitation to go in. He was perfumed to kill, and it wasn't long before his musk reached the back room where the old folks sat. The old man was heard stubbing around, growling and muttering, and presently he opened the door and passed out and took a walk around the house. He came back after snuffing around for a few minutes, and, pounding on the parlor door, he asked:

"Evangeline, where's that ere piece of candle?"

"I don't know, father; why?" she inquired in return.

"There's a skunk or something under the addition, and I've got to hunt him out, or we can't live here over night."

The young man didn't stay there long after that.

A Pacific Invention.

An English army officer has invented a shell which deserves the immediate attention of our secretary-of-war. It is filled with small shells, and when it bursts among ten thousand soldiers these smaller shells are scattered in all directions, and, bursting in turn, send out still smaller shells, which travel around recklessly, and by the time the miniature shells contained in the third size explode, the army is nearly wiped out, and the few men remaining want to go home.

Social Conundrums.

There have been many important social conundrums in the history of the world. The most important of them now occurring to us, have been: 1. Who struck Billy Patterson? 2. How's your poor feet? 3. Who's your hatter? 4. How does your meerschaum color? 5. Where's the fire? 6. Who killed Cock Robin? 7. What's new? 8. How many beans make five? 9. Does your mother know you're out? 10. Where's Tom Collins?

A Common Complaint.

"Children," asked a Fayette county minister, addressing a Sunday-school, "why are we like flowers? What do we have that flowers have?" And a small boy in the infant class, whose breath smelled of vermifuge, rose up and made reply. "Worms." And the minister crept under the pulpit chair to hide his emotion.

What is the difference between a belle and a burglar? The belle carries false locks, and the burglar false keys.

Rats that live in granaries are said by a professional rat-catcher not to be poisonous, while those that feed on refuse meat inflict painful wounds. This is another argument in favor of the vegetarian theory, and every pious family should keep a granary.

A Boston marble yard has this placard conspicuously displayed on a monument: "Prices to suit the times."

A man who always keeps cool—the pedagogue.

The very worst kind of an uncle—a carbuncle.

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatregoers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. There is only one exception, that is, at the elegantly appointed saloon of Schroder & Greene, No. 330 Bush street, above the Opera House, where a splendid hot lunch is served nightly to their numerous customers, from 7 to 12 P. STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

During a clerical conference the following conversation was heard between two newsboys: "I say, Jim, what's the meaning of so many ministers being here altogether?" "Why," answered Jim, scornfully, "they always meet once a year to swap sermons."

At a Prohibition meeting in Pennsylvania a very "tight" man was hired to sit on the platform as an awful example.

James Russell Lowell has invented a new beatitude, and it is: "Blessed are they who have nothing to say, and who cannot be persuaded to say it."

Recently an aged Texan, who had actually never seen a railroad before, rode on one to Houston to see the State fair. Having been asked his opinion about railways, he replied, "Well, it did seem kinder to me as if it were a streak of lightning running away with a palace."

Grate Blessings—Early fires.

Poor relations—Ineffective stories.

Try-fling affairs—Wrestling matches.

Bill of Rites—An undertaker's account.

A lawyer, about to finish a bill of costs, was requested by his client, a baker, to make it as light as possible. "Ah!" said the lawyer, "you might properly enough say that to the foreman of your establishment; but that is not the way I make my bread."

A gentleman rode up to a public house in the country and asked, "Who is the master of this house?" "I am, sir," replied the landlord; "my wife has been dead about three weeks."

A Miss of ten or eleven, on her way to school, was heard saying to herself: "A noun is the name of any person, place or thing, and if any of the girls have hooked that apple from my desk I'll raise a fuss with a whole school."

A young lady, of Newark, N. J., married a young man whose hands were hard, under the supposition that he was a hard working man, and when she discovered soon after the knot was tied, that he was a member of a base ball club, it is said her hair turned blue.

They raise smart boys in Springfield, Illinois. The father of one of these lately said: "Now, Georgie, you may take your choice—go with me to visit grandpa, or have a new velocipede." The urchin cratched his head, and answered: "I'll go and see grandpa, and make him buy the velocipede.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

Anecdote of Amy Sedgwick.

Once while she was in Yorkshire, England, and when she was worried with work, one of the actors had a benefit. Each actor endeavored to procure something very attractive for his benefit so as to secure large audiences. For this occasion there was to be a representation of the taking of Sebastopol. (It was during the Crimean war.) Up to two o'clock of the day of the performance the writing of the farce was unfinished. Of course they had no time to learn their parts. Our heroine appeared as a young lieutenant, dressed in a ravishing uniform, holding a little sword at her side, and, when the curtain rose, she and her companions (mostly ballet girls, dressed as soldiers) marched about the stage firing pistols, brandishing swords, running up one hill and down another, shouting "Victory or death!" making as much noise as possible, and to conceal as well as they could that they had nothing to say. But that could not last forever, and the audience began to hiss. The actor, who was managing affairs for his benefit, begged Amy to walk to the front of the stage and explain matters, urging that she was a favorite, and that anything she might say would be accepted. In the meantime hisses were growing louder and louder. She hesitated, for she did not know what to say. The actor implored; the house was in an uproar, and she, yielding to the impulse of her generous nature, walked forward and said: "Ladies and gentlemen—" She could think of nothing. She repeated, "Ladies and gentlemen—", still no happy thought came to her rescue. Again she said, "Ladies and gentlemen," when a voice from the third rank called out. "Speak up, lass; cum speak up, lass; don't ye be afraid; thou hast said that three times." She answered, "Well, I know I have; but ladies and gentlemen (hearty laughter), this farce was not written at 2 o'clock, how can it be possible for us to know anything about it? We are all so sorry, and, of course, you see that Sebastopol is not taken, but this I promise you, that if Sebastopol is not taken within a month, Amy Sedgwick will take it herself." The curtain fell amid roars of laughter and hearty applause. When her benefit night came the people showed that they loved her, for they called out: "Don't ye go away and forget us, for we loves ye; we do indeed." Long years after, when she re-appeared in the town of Bradford, after her great success in the Haymarket Theatre, the men would call to her in the street: "Ah! that's our Ahmy (Amy); I say, lass, has thou taken Sebastopol yet?"

Trying His Hand.

A volunteer New Orleans reporter, who wanted "just to try his hand" he said, "on the grave-yards," brought in the following: "Near the entrance of the cemetery stood the Grecian mausoleum of —— fire company No. ——, its gorgeous and brilliant decorations showing that the gallant boys do not forget their departed comrades who are still bravely battling the fiery elements in another world." The young man was not engaged.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

ART GALLERY,

MISSION STREET, ABOVE THIRD.

THE MANAGEMENT IS PLEASED TO ANnounce to the public of California that this magnificent structure, after many months of preparation, will be formally opened on

Monday Evening, Dec. 20th,

On a scale of gorgeousness and splendor hitherto unattempted on the Pacific Coast, and rivaling, in all essential details, the largest and most celebrated theatres of Europe and America. It is impossible, in the brief limits of a newspaper advertisement, to give an adequate conception of the magnitude of this, the chef d'ouvre of theatrical and art enterprises of America.

THE ART GALLERY,

With its spacious promenades and multifarious attractions, will form a splendid adjunct to the theatre, and afford the visitor ample opportunity of studying the beauties of art and sculpture in its various phases.

Emboldened by the prodigality with which the people of California, and San Francisco especially, are disposed to encourage enterprises of this character, the management takes pleasure in announcing that he has secured, direct from the hands of the author, the celebrated German spectacle of

Which has had such an unprecedented run in Berlin, Munich and other German cities, and which has been adapted to and will be produced on the stage of Wade's Opera House with all the original paraphernalia, scenery, properties, effects, etc., at a cost of over $20,000.

Trusting that his future exertions in the cause of art and the drama may meet with a ready recognition at the hands of a discriminating people, the manager begs to subscribe himself

The public's obedient servant,
de2 FREDERICK W. BERT.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

E A. Sothern will commence a tour of the United States in January next, at Boston. He will ollow at Philadelphia, and will appear before the close of the current season at Booth's in New York.

George Fawcett Rowe has written the first act of a modern comedy for Mr. Wallack since his sojourn n Boston. The action of the piece takes place partly in England and partly in the Western part of this country.

A cable dispatch received by Jarrett & Palmer recently, concluded negotiations with Mr. Charles Calvert, the English manager for the production in Booth's Theatre, of Lord Byron's historical play of "Sardanapalus." Mr. Calvert is to come in person and direct the piece as in the case of "Henry V." "Sardanapalus" is now being given abroad [with great success. Everything contributing to the magnificence of its effects will be imported, even the scenery will be painted in England. Is is estimated that the cost of the production will exceed $30,000.

The sad mental condition of George L. Fox, now performing at Booth's Theatre, has been at last considered in the columns of the daily papers. It is to be hoped that the publicity given to the matter may lead to Mr. Fox's withdrawal from the stage until it is proper for him to appear again. At present he is only to be seen in the first act of the pantomime, James S. Maffitt taking his place during the rest of the performance.

[Since the above was in type, we have learned that poor Fox has been taken to a private asylum.]

"The best performance of the general cast," says the New York correspondent of the Baltimore Bulletin, "was the Fool of Miss Sydney Cowell, who was alternately sprightly and tender in the words of wisdom and the snatches of song of which the part is made up. Mr. Booth, with characteristic generosity, led her before the curtain to receive well-merited applause after the third act."

Matt Morgan is employed on the designs for the beautiful and realistic properties to be used in "Julius Cæsar" at Booth's Theatre. Voegelin is painting the scenery. The translation of Gerome's superb painting of the Assassination of Cæsar will be perfect, having the additional attraction of being in part a tableau vivant.

During the visit of Miss Emily Fowler to this country she will appear in a new play, written for her by Mr. W. G. Wills, author of "The Man o' Airlie," founded on the life of "Nell Gwynne."

Mr. James Lewis re-appeared at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, Nov. 22d, in "The New Leah."

Mr. Hans Von Bulow, the celebrated pianist, made his first appearance in New York, at Chickering Hall, on the 30th ult. He is thus spoken of by Walsingham of the Baltimore Bulletin: "This small, active, nervous person had an immense reception, and a still greater ovation after he had finished his contribution to the essentially Beethovenesque programme. He is, of course, a great player not an astonishing one like Rubinstein, but an artist who satisfies one completely. The sense of power there is about him tells one at once that he will fill every requirement of the composer, and do somethin more. His pianissimo playing is particularly admirable, and he is in every respect a highly endowed musician, unimpeachable in everything he does; great, if not grand, in power, and interpreting with unswerving fidelity every intention of the composer.

Ever since Dan Bryant's death, Simpson, Reed and Cotton have not done so well, and on the evening of the 13th, the house was abruptly closed. The future of Darling's Opera House is said to be uncertain.

"Rose Michel" has taken the place of "Led Astray" at the Union Square Theatre, and is making quite a stir in New York circles.

Up to the date of the latest arrivals of papers, "Caste" held the boards of Wallack's Theatre.

Miss Clara Morris has reappeared at the Fifth Avenue in an adaptation by Augustin Daly, from the German of Mosenthal, entitled "The New Leah." What will become of "The Old Leah"?

Mr. Chas. Fechter followed the regular season of the French company at the Lyceum on the 29th, commencing a series of popular French plays supported by that company.

Minstrel and variety shows are in full swing at the San Francisco Minstrels, the Eagle Theatre, the Globe Theatre, the Olympic, Col. Sinn's Park Theatre, Brooklyn, Tony Pastor's, and the Tivoli.

"Daniel Boone," with Jos. P. Winter in the title role, is playing at the Bowery.

ELSEWHERE.

Charles Fechter's appearance in "Rouge et Noir" at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, was completely successful.

A new local sensational drama was brought out at the Howard Athenæum on Monday evening, Nov. 29th. It is entitled "A Conditional Pardon," and was suggested by the recent pardoning of a convict from the Charlestown State Prison.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers was in East Saginaw, Nov. 23d; Toledo, 24th and 25th; Inianapolis, 26th.

Mrs. James A. Oates' English Opera Bouffe Company, Washington, Nov. 22; Detroit 29th.

E. L. Davenport and Troupe, Wilkesbarre, Nov. 24th; Binghamton, 25th; Williamsport, 27th; Lancaster, 30th.

Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau and Troupe, in New Orleans, Dec. 1st.

Maggie Mitchell and Troupe, Utica, Nov. 22d; Rome, 23; Schenectady, 24th.

Rose Wood and Lewis Morrison played at the Academy of Music, Boston, for one week from the 22d

Fay Templeton Troupe, Calvert, Texas, Nov. 22d; Brennan, 23d and 24th.

Susan Denin, Peru, Ind., 22d, 23d; Kokomo, 24th and 25th; Anderson, 26th and 27th; Muncie, 29th, 30th and Dec. 1st.

Frank Mayo and Troupe played in Jackson, Miss., Nov. 22d; Lansing, 23d; Grand Rapids, 24th, and 25th; East Saginaw, 27th.

Olive Logan, at Macauley's Theatre, Louisville, Nov. 29th, one week, in Wirt Sikes' plays, "Our Kate" and "Isa; or, Home Again;" St. Louis, Jan. 10th; Cincinnati, 17th; New Orleans, 31st.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Young, Sycamore, Ill., Nov. 22d; Chicago, 23d; Indianapolis, Ind., 25th.

Robert McWade, Pittsburgh Opera-house Nov. 22.

Barry Sullivan opened in St. Louis, Nov. 22d in "Hamlet."

One Clay F. Smith wrote a note recently in Chillicothe, Missouri, to a young lady with whom he had been flirting. It reached the hands of her father, who became enraged and went in quest of him with a revolver. Smith was shot dead, and H. J. Dunbar, a young man formerly of Hooley's Theatre, Chicago, who was with him, was dangerously wounded. Another companion named Frank Arthur was fired at, but the ball missed.

John Thompson and troupe, Port Jervis, N. Y., Nov. 22d; Hudson, 23d; Cohoes, 24th; Utica, 25th; Ilion, 26th; Herkimer, 27th.

Mr. Charles Fechter, while playing in the second act of "No Thoroughfare" at the Walnut-Street Theatre, Philadelphia, Nov. 18th, stepped upon an insecure platform fifteen feet high, and fell to the stage, striking on his feet, but stunned for a moment by the shock. He finished the act, but fainted wards in his dressing-room. After some delay he finished the play, though suffering grea pain. No bones ware broken, and he reappeare the next evening.

Katie Putnam Comedy Company, Pittsburgh, 22d, one week; Altoona, Pa., 30th.

Mrs. J. H. Hackett, the widow of the well-known and only perfect Falstaff the American stage has ever seen, lately performed a remarkable feat as Lady Macbeth. In her performances with Mrs. Drew's Company, at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, suffering from malarial fever and only primed up to the requisite strength by heavy doses of quinine, she actually went through that heavy part sucessfully, and brought down the house in the sleep-walking scene. Such wonderful courage in fighting pain and weakness makes her success phenomenal, and gives promise of a bright future. Mrs. Hackett will soon come out in a new American play, written expressly for her, and her courage and talents promise a great success.

May Howard, Indianapolis, Nov. 26th, one week; Chicago, Dec. 6, two weeks.

John T. Owens, Academy, Baltimore, Nov. 22d.

Edwin Booth, Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, Nov. 22d.

Mexican Juvenile Opera Troupe, Beethoven Hall Boston Nov. 22d, one week.

Mr. E. L. Davenport, was announced to play Sir Giles Overreach, at the Academy of Music Baltimore, for one night only—Dec. 4th.

DR. McBRIDE.

What the editor of the Stockton Independent says of Dr. McBride and his World's Relief: This skillful practitioner and very popular gentleman has spent the week in this city introducing a medicine which possesses wonderful potency in curing pain. It is called "World's Relief," and is properly named, for in every case of physical suffering which has come under Dr. McBride's observation and treatment, relief is almost instantaneous. The great secret of success in the medical, as well as in other professions, is to know exactly what to do and how to do it. The close, searching, keen discrimination requisite in distinguishing and determining the nature and character of diseases and their symptoms, is an indispensable characteristic of the first-class physician, and to Dr. McBride's wonderful diagnostic ability is in the main to be attributed his miraculous success in curing pain, no matter from what cause arising. Such men are benefactors to their race. D

The Young Man from the East.

" Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—This and to-morrow nights are the last times of the presentation of the burlesque "The Fair One With the Blonde Wig." There is fun and fancy for all here, whilst the dancing of the Allen children, and of little Marie Schuman, form a divertisement at once graceful and entertaining. Prof. Hermann made his re-appearance here last night as announced, and was well received. In consequence of some slight delay on the sailing of the steamer for Oregon, he will again appear this afternoon and evening and to-morrow evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"Our Boys" has been played to such good business during the present week that it has been decided to continue it next week, or at any rate, for the first four days thereof. The humor of this comedy has taken the public fancy; its marked individuality of character refreshes all who attend, whilst those who attend grow in number night after night in a manner highly pleasant to see.

OPERA HOUSE.—Good audiences have been in order here all the week and more especially since Wednesday. The first act has in it some excellent songs, the finale being quire unique. In the second part, the acts are quite up to the usual standard. "The Skidmore Guards" are sti l drilled under the gallant command of Captain Lem Primrose (Emerson). Same bill to-morrow evening.

GRAND GERMAN AND ITALIAN OPERA— As might have been expected, two such events, the benefit of an impressario, and the first performance of a great opera were enough to draw all the city to Platt's Hall, even though the rain came down as though it were in the middle of St. Swithian's season. Briefly, the story of Beethoven's unique opera "Fidelio," is that a Spanish nobleman (Florestein) is thrown into prison by his enemy Pizarro, the Governor. His wife (Lenonora) enter the prison in disguise under the assumed name of Fidelio, resolving if possible to shield and release her husband. Don Fernando, Prime Minster of Spain, hearing that some persons there were illegally restrained, prepares to visit the prison. Being informed of his intention, Pizarro attempts the life of Florestein in his cell, and is prevented only by the brave efforts of Fidelio and Rocco, the Chief Jail-keeper. When the Minister arrives, Florestein is made free and Pizarro is justly punished. Two other characters are incidantally connected with the plot, Marcellina, the daughter of Rocco, and Yaquino, Rocco's assistant. To this story some of Beethoven's most exquisite music has been wedded, and the two, "music and ter sister song" form an opera at once charming and difficult. Madame Fabbri, was, of course, most enthusiastically welcomed, her cavatina in the first act and her general singing in the second act culminating in a thundering recall at conclusion The great scene of the opera, is that of the attempted assassination, and that was so well given that those participating in it were recalled no less than three times. "Fidelio" will be repeated by general request to morrow evening.

LA PALMIERI.—On Wednesday evening next, a grand costume concert will be given at Pacific Hall by Signor Tito Palmieri, Signora Marie Palmieri, and Signorina Alice Persiani, assisted by Prof. G. T. Evans, Herr J. Hinrichs and Mr. Buch. Besides instrumental solos, duets and trios, the programme will include a Romanza "La Stella Confidente" with violincello obligato, a Scena ed Aria from "Faust," a Bolero from "I Vespri Siciliani," by Signora Palmieri; a Cavatine from "Il Barbiere" and an Aria from "Linda di Chamounix," by Signorina Persiani; and a Romanza from "Martha," and Barcorola of Scuderi, by Signor Palmieri.

BENEFITS.—On Friday evening next, the leading lady of the California Theatre Company, Miss Bella Pateman, will have a benefit when "The Two Orphans" will be specially revived with the beneficiare and Miss Ellie Wilton as Henriette and Louise. Miss Harrison will appear in her specialties, and the green curtain will be rung down on the curse scene in "Leah."

MISS MAYHEW'S BENEFIT. —On Monday evening next, Miss Katie Mayhew, one of the most favorite soubrettes that has ever visited San Francisco, will take a complimentary benefit at Maguire's New Theatre. The bill will consist of "The Jealous Wife" with the beneficiare as Mrs. Oakley, an olio full of attractive features and one act of "Fanchon," which will conclude with the Shadow Dance, in which Miss Mayhew made so "palpable a hit" when this drama was played here recently.

On Tuesday evening next, Herr Franz Fischer, one of the bassi of the Fabbri Opera Troupe, will receive a benefit, when "Faust" will be presented, the beneficiary taking the part of Mephistophiles.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE. — A good programme for this and to-morrow evenings, which Kimic, Senate, Cassim, Thompson, Barry and Mortimer help most to make up.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.— There are several new features on to-night's bill. The first part concludes with the Jubilee Choir, Sam Dennis made an immense hit, and Professor Lowden gives "ten minutes in wonderland." Don't fail to see "Mazeppa."

THE NEW LYCEUM THEATRE. - The first part is quite a feature at this theatre, with Charley King as taborine, Billy Randall as bones and Matt Kelly as interlocutor. In the second part is an "infinite variety" to please and amuse.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Attractions.— The new attractions for Saturday and Sunday are the first time of Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner songs, the three Acrobats, and the laughable pantomime, the Apprentice of Madrid. Sen. Gon[illegible], the champion tumbler; Miss Mathews the [illegible]seuse and gymnastic troupe also appear and the usual grand concert is given.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Anticipating the appearance of May Howard in Cincinnati, an Enquirer interviewer declares: "To-night at Wood's Theatre, where ten years ago, a trembling girl, she first stood behind the footlights, Miss May Howard will flash before the expectant audience, a new star, even as an asteriod suddenly gladdens the eye of the wearily watching astronomer. She will come before them with the stately statue and the grace of a stage queen. Her warm and wondrous beauty will speak of southern blood and Spanish ancestry. Her finished elocution and her womanly ease will tell of hard and ambitious study." If the average Cincinnati critic would only be a little more enthusiastic his efforts would be quite entertaining.

On dit that Stuart Robson, of the Union-Square Theatre, has a habit of biting his finger-nails. He also has a small daughter. The other day that dear child deliberately pared her finger-nails, and in the innocence of her heart approached her comical progenitor. "Papa," said she, "here are some nails for you to eat."

The one-hundredth performance of E. B. Woolf's play of "The Mighty Dollar" will be reached at the Park Theatre, New York, on December 17th, and the occasion is to be commemorated. Every lady who attends on that evening, will, we hear, receive a silver medal of the size and weight of the trade dollar, while each member of the dramatic company will receive a medal of bronze. We can imagine how elated Mr. and Mrs. Florence will be over this particular centennial celebration.

The Londoners want to see Joe Jefferson in some other part than Rip. So do Americans.

There are many who will be glad to hear that George S. Knight, the well-known Dutch eccentric vocalist and comedian, was to make his dramatic debut at Wood's Museum on November 29th, in a drama written for him by Mr. James Barnes and entitled "Karl Kline; or, The Dutch Fool."

Mr. Barry Sullivan has been complaining of his reception in America and putting his ill-success down to a national dislike to an Englishman. This statement will hardly hold water when it is read in the same column as that containing the account of how poor George Belmore died. Kindly hands smoothed his last hours, and although he was reluctant to die, away from home and kindred, in a foreign land, he passed away under as grateful conditions as though he had been watched over by those dearest to him. Mr. Montague, in particular, was unremitting in attention, and did himself credit through a solicitude which was purely disinterested, and which did not cease until the sods were piled over his friend's coffin. Mr. Florence came to the church suffering from a severe attack of bronchitis, but he accompanied the remains to the last resting place, which he himself had bestowed.

Manager Maguire, having with characteristic tact and forethought, engaged the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, for the Legislative season, the entire Star Comedy Company will concentrate its forces in that city on Tuesday evening next, when the season will be opened with "The Overland Route." The half company is now playing at Stockton, the other moiety at the theatre on Bush street, which theatre will probably remain closed until the Fabbri Opera season commences there, The lease of Platt's Hall expires Sunday, the 12th, and on Tuesday, the 14th, the Christmas Opera season will begin at this theatre.

When Herrold's new season of orchestral concerts begin we would very much like eo enorse a suggestion we heard made to him some two or three days ago. It is that, during the season, an attempt should be made to give the patrons of these musical treats a well-founded idea of the music of all the "great and good" operas. It would certainly be much better to hear operatic selections well rendered by an orchestra, than to hear them badly rendered by a lyric company, as is sometimes the case. Let "La Sonnambula" be the first move in this direction.

It is said, by those who have opportunities for knowing, that Mrs. Oates and company will visit us sometime early in February next. The new theatre on Market street will be open at that time.

PARIS, December 1.—Pauline Virginie Dejazet, the celebrated actress, is dead.

"Our Boys," which two weeks ago reached its 208th performance at the London Vaudeville Theatre, will be played at the California until further notice. There is that in it which commends it to every lover of the drama. It is coherent and consistent, and it "points a moral and adorns a tale."

Apropos of "Our Boys," an English correspondent speaks as follows of its author: "Mr. Byron is welcomed not because we like him, but because we can get nothing better. He is not appetizing, but he fills our stomachs; at any rate, he keeps body and soul together, and we bless him for it. He has not the faintest idea of writing a play or sketching character, or of reproducing nature in any form. His work teems with exaggeration, and reeks with vulgarity. His people talk as no human beings ever talked, and act in opposition to all preconceived notions of honor or decency and order. They are the grossest and most palpable caricatures—caricatures of which Charles Dickens would have been ashamed. But because Mr. Byron can be smart, and rude, and sharp, and clever, and unnatural; because he is ever bright and never dull, straightway Mr. Byron is accepted as the guardian angel of the stage. We learn positively nothing from Byron; no new thought, no true sentiment, no generous idea, no estimable fancy; and yet, because Mr. Byron can make a good pun and revive the dreariest Joe Millers, he is accepted as the Horatius Cocles of the drama." Rather hard on Byron, and of how much truth there is in it those who have enjoyed "Our Boys" can judge.

On Monday, the 13th, Wm. Horace Lingard will make his appearance at the California Theatre for the short season intervening between that date and the production of "The Devil and Dr. Faustus," which is to be the Xmas spectacle, and for which extraordinary preparations are being made. It is whispered that the finest company of gymnasts ever seen in America, has been engaged for the Carnival scene.

In the article concerning Mr. James Stark, which we copied from the San Jose Mercury, there was an error which we have already corrected at the instance of Mrs. Stark, and now we have to correct another. It was therein stated that Belle Devine was living in retirement in San Francisco. She died in Boston, April 30th, 1873. Catch us copying anything from the Climatic press again.

WADE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Mr. Frederick W. Bert, the Lessee and Manager of Wade's Opera House, announces that this large and splendidly appointed theatre, will be formally opened on Monday evening, December 20th. The opening attraction will be the grand spectacular piece entitled "Snowflake," which has had such a run in Berlin, and Munich, and wherever produced in the European cities. It will be produced with all its original scenic effects and paraphenalia, by an entire new company of twenty professionals, culled from the Eastern States and Europe now on their way here. Incidental to the piece will be a grand ballet by corps of artists, including Cora Adriana, Mlle. Eugenie Lupo and Mons. Novissimo from the Parisian theatres. At a recent visit to the theatre we found work being driven ahead in every department to prepare for the opening. The carpenters were finishing up the proscenium box ornaments; the scene painters were aloft on their bridge, in double force at work on the scenery; the property men were busy at work constructing their "props;" the plasterers were finishing up their work in the lobbies; the fresco painters were putting their last touches on the ceiling, and evidences of driving work were visible on every side. All this change is due to the energy and enterprise of Manager Bert, who has now taken possession of the theatre as lessee, and who is determined that there shall be no more delays in finishing up this theatre. There is much work yet to do in the short space of time intervening between this and the opening night, but it will be done. The tact and perseverance that have overcome so many difficulties heretofore, will bring order out of chaos, and have all things complete for the opening night.

A WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

As a healer of disease, Dr. D. Percy, the eminent London physician and astrologer, has achieved a reputation somewhat remarkable during the short time he has stopped in this city. Hundreds have visited him and to every one his wonderful skill has been attested by actual cures performed, some almost miraculous. On account of other pressing engagements, the doctor can offer his services but a short time longer to the people upon this, his only visit to our city. We advise all sufferers to call upon him at once. He gives no drugs or medicines of any description, and first of all, guarantees satisfaction every time. His health examinations are free to all, which includes your disease and all its symptoms, which he describes without asking a question. Dr. Percy may be found at those elegant apartments formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, No. 206 Kearny street. Entrance, Room 11, where he will consult all visitors whether upon business or not. Preliminary Notice.

Peter Job, our old Pioneer French cook, will open on the 4th of December, a comodious Family Restaurant and Fancy Bakery, at 807 Market street, opposite Baldwin's new hotel. Most all old Californians know that whatever Job undertakes, he does it well, and, therefore, it is hardly necessary to state, that with his usual energy, he is now engaged in superintending the fitting up of what will be one of the finest and most comfortable restaurant in the city. It is Peter Job's intention not only to establish a first-class restaurant, but to keep a constant supply of French and American confectionary, and also the best Ice Cream to be found in the State. His former friends and patrons will find when they call upon him, that Peter Job has lost none of his former superiority in the art of cooking, that they will be well waited upon by the most polite and attractive of waiters.

The Holidays.

During these cold and wet nights theatre-goers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch-table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

Madame Pauline Lucca has been detained in Cologne by illness, and informed the manager of the Theatrede la Monnaie, in Brussels, that she must postpone for some weeks her promised appearance in that theatre.

"Nicholas Nickleby" was played for the one hundred and ninety-third and last time at the Adelphi, 29th, ult.

Signor Rossi has appeared as King Lear, in Paris.

Francis Fowler, the architect of the New National Opera House on the Thames Embankment, London, has just returned to London after his visit to St. Petersburg, Moscow, Berlin, Dresden, Trieste, Venice, Milan, Bologne, Rome, Naples, Marseilles, Dijon, and lastly Paris, at which cities he has examined under the special authority of the various sovereigns procured beforehand by the proprietors of the New Opera House, the opera houses and principal theatres of all these places. The object has been to discover if any possible improvement or hint could be gained in order to render the new London Opera that which Mr. Mapleson determine it shall be—the first opera house in the world. In all the above mentioned capitals Mr. Fowler was received by all the art-bodies with the greatest favor, and had the honor of exhibiting his designs and plans for the Whitehall Opera to the Imperial Court at St. Petersburg, to the Emperor and the Royal Family of Austria, to the King of Italy the King of Saxony, to the Imperial Court at Berlin, and to the members of the Academy of Sciences at Paris.

The London Athenæum records a good and graceful act of Mlle. Albani. At the late Norwich Festival, F. J. Blake, who for nearly half a century has acted as treasurer, was unable through serious illness to attend the performances, and Mlle. Albani, who had made his acquaintance in 1872, when she first sang at Norwich, hearing how much Mr. Blake regretted his inability to hear her, called on him and sang for him the "Last Rose of Summer."

Consolation.

An ancient darkey called at the Police Station, yesterday, and informed the Captain that "a feller had borrowed his watch and gone right off to Canada," and he wanted to know what could be done about it.

"Nothing," replied the Captain.

"And he can't be fotched back?"

"No."

"Well, dere's one thing sartin," said the loser, as he went out, "dat watch won't run over fifteen minutes to once, onless he hires a boy to shake it."

A Pacific Invention.

An English army officer has invented a shell which deserves the immediate attention of our secretary-of-war. It is filled with small shells, and when it bursts among ten thousand soldiers these smaller shells are scattered in all directions, and, bursting in turn, send out still smaller shells, which travel around recklessly, and by the time the miniature shells contained in the third size explode, the army is nearly wiped out, and the few men remaining want to go home.

A WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

As a healer of disease, Dr. D. Percy, the eminent London physician and astrologer, has achieved a reputation somewhat remarkable during the short time he has stopped in this city. Hundreds have visited him and to every one his wonderful skill has been attested by actual cures performed, some almost miraculous. On account of other pressing engagements, the doctor can offer his services but a short time longer to the people upon this, his only visit to our city. We advise all sufferers to call upon him at once. He gives no drugs or medicines of any description, and first of all, guarantees satisfaction every time. His health examinations are free to all, which includes your disease and all its symptoms, which he describes without asking a question. Dr. Percy may be found at those elegant apartments formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, No. 206 Kearny street. Entrance, Room 11, where he will consult all visitors whether upon business or not. The Prima Donna and the Queen.

Being afforded the rare opportunity of an hour's conversation with her (Antoinette Sterling), says Jennie June in a recent letter to the Baltimore Bulletin, the other evening, I asked her about her European experiences, which she seems to have enjoyed intensely. Finally, the Queen sent to request her to sing to her privately, at Osborne, and one must be acquainted with English usages to know what an honor that is.

"How about your dress," I inquired; "was there not something said at the time in regard to your wearing a high-necked dress?"

"Yes," returned Madame S. "I did not intend it as prudery, or assertion of republican rights, or anything else with which I was credited. I simply did not feel that I could wear a low-necked dress. I never had, and I told the very fine gentleman so who came to summon me to the royal presence." He stood aghast. "Not appear in full dress? Then, Miss Stirling, you can not sing before her Majesty at all." "Then," I replied, "I shall have to decline the honor."

"This was unheard of, but I confess I did not realize the extent of the influence which singing before Majesty exerts in England, nor the impression which such an experience makes upon oneself. I was willing and pleased to do it, but busy and certainly unable to sacrifice a principle to the attainment of such an object. However, I was not obliged to do this. My objections being reported to her, the Queen was graciously pleased to signify her willingness that I should not depart from my ordinary costume, and received me to an audience, at which only Prince Leopold (it was his birthday), the Princess Beatrice, the Marchioness of Ely, lady-in-waiting, and two gentlemen-in waiting were present The Queen crossed the room several times to speak to me, made me sit when I was singing, asked me to add one or more songs of my own selecting to the programme, and to repeat 'The Three Fishers,' which she had requested to be placed there, because the Duke of Edinburgh had told her she would like it.

"I enjoyed the whole thing mightily myself; did not feel under the least restraint, and liked the good Queen so much. I would willingly have knelt to kiss her hand; she seemed so kindly, yet so full of dignity—a real mother to her people. Coming home, I could think of nothing in the carriage but the old nursery rhyme:

"'Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been?
I've been to London to see the Queen.'"

Strong Suspenders.

Two old ploughmen down east were once telling tough stories of their exploits in breaking up new ground. "Up in Dixmont," said one, "twenty-seven years ago this spring, I was ploughing in stump ground with a team of nine pair of cattle for Sol Cunningham; we were going along, making not very smooth work among rocks and stumps. Well, one day the point o' the plough struck against a sunk stump four feet through, split it square across the heart, and I was following the plough through, when the thought passed through my mind that the pesky stump might snap together and pinch my toes, so I just gripped the plough handles firm, swung my feet up out o' the way, and the stump sprang back and catched the slack of my pantaloons. That brought everything up standing. Well, I tightened my hold, and Jim Swithin, he and Sol was drivin', they spoke to the cattle, and we snaked that stump right out by the roots, and it had awful long ones." "It must have been strainin' on your suspenders," said the other. "My wife knit them," was the reply.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

California Theatre.

"Our Boys" was played to such good business during the past week that it has been decided to continue it this week, or at any rate, for the first four nights thereof. The humor of this comedy has taken the public fancy; its marked individuality of character refreshes all who attend, whilst those who attend grow in number night after night in a manner highly pleasant to see. "Our Boys," two weeks ago reached its 208th performance at the London Vaudeville Theatre. There is that in it which commends it to every lover of the drama. It is coherent and consistent, and it "points a moral and adorns a tale." The house on Saturday night was the largest of the week by two hundred dollars.

Opera House.

This is the fourth week of "The Skidmore Guards" and the second of the Centennial celebration, for in both these acts there is much popular interest still manifested. The second part Charley Reed commences with his act "There's Nothing in It," Billy Emerson follows with "Josephus Orangeblossom," then the act of "Obeying Orders," Mackin and Wilson's original song and dance of "Charming Little Susie," then a ballad by Fred Walz and lastly the act of "Spiritual Manifestations."

Maguire's New Theatre—Miss Katy Mayhew's Benefit.

The Fair One With the Blonde Wig," was given for the last time last night. This evening Miss Katie Mayhew, one of the most popular soubrettes that has ever visited San Francisco, will take a complimentary benefit at Maguire's New Theatre. The bill will consist of "The Jealous Wife" with the beneficiare as Mrs. Oakley, an olio full of attractive features and one act of "Fanchon," which will conclude with the Shadow Dance, in which Miss Mayhew made so "palpable a hit" when this drama was played here recently. In the olio, Prof. Hermann will appear in a short programme of magic.

Grand German and Italian Opera. Franz Fischer's Benefit.

"Fidelio" was repeated last night to a house that almost equalled in numbers that in attendance on Madame Fabbri's benefit. The plot has already been given and last night the numbers that attracted most attention on Friday, gained it once more. To-morrow evening, Herr Franz Fischer, one of the bassi of the Fabbri Opera Troupe, will receive a benefit, when "Faust" will be presented, the beneficiary taking the part of Mephistophiles.

La Palmieri.

On Wednesday evening next, December 8th a grand costume concert will be given at Pacific Hall by Signor Tito Palmieri, Signora Marie Palmieri, and Signorina Alice Persiani, assisted by Prof. G. T. Evans, Herr J. Hinrichs and Mr. Buch. Besides instrumental solos, duets and trios, the programme will include the Romanza "La Stella Confidente" with violincello obligato, a Scena ed Aria from "Faust," a Bolero from "I Vespri Siciliani," by Signora Palmieri; a Cavatine from "Il Barbiere" and an Aria from "Linda di Chamounix," by Signorina Persiani; and a Romanza from "Martha," and a Barcarola of Scuderi, by Signor Palmieri.

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

The first concert of the fourth season will be given on Wednesday next, when the programme will inclue Weber's "Jubel" march, Haydn's (Militaire) Symphony in G, Mendelssohn's Wedding March and a romanza for the French horn with flute obligato. In consequence of the hall having been pre-engaged, the second concert will be held on the 22d instead of the 15th.

Miss Pateman's Benefit

On Friday evening next, the leading lady of the California Theatre Company, Miss Bella Pateman, will have a benefit when "The Two Orphans" will be specially revived with the beneficiare and Miss Ellie Wilton as Henriette and Louise. Miss Harrison will appear in her specialties, and the green curtain will be rung down on the curse scene in "Leah." In "The Two Orphans" Mrs. Judah will make her first re-appearance since her severe indisposition, now a matter of four months ago.

Hermann.

The positively last appearance of this remarkable conjuror is fixed for to-morrow evening, at Maguire's New Theatre, the steamer by which he leaves for his Oregonian trip starting on Wednesday morning. On this last occasion Hermann will fill out the evening's entertainment alone.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

There is scarcely any need of altering the excellent programme given here, but Frank Mortimer, the efficient Stage Manager, has his weather-eye open for novelties which are being constantly presented.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The first part concludes with a new sensation walk around. In the second parc are Lon Dixon's specialties, "One Night in a Bar-room," "A Double Shot," Charley Nickerson in his eccentricities, etc.,

New Lyceum Theatre.

One of the principal acts for to-night is "Fanny's Frolic," in which Miss Cherry Belle will assume a round of protean characters; Miss Emma Cooper will appear in a violin solo and Georgie Brooks will give her tamberine dance.

Woodward's Gardens.

Among the new features for this week are Mrs. C. A. Woodroffe, of the world renowned Bohemian Troupe of Glass Blowers, who operates every day; Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner song; Sen Gonzales, the greatest living tumbler; Miss Mathews the facinating danseuse; the three acrobats, the laughable pantomime, the variety and gymnastic troupe and concert Saturday and Sunday.

Notes.

On Monday, the 13th, Wm. Horace Lingard will ma [illegible] is appearance at the California Theatre for the short season intervening between that date and the production of "The Devil and Dr. Faustus," which is to be the Xmas spectacle, and for which extraordinary preparations are being made. It is whispered that the finest company of gymnasts ever seen in America, has been engaged for the Carnival scene.

By the City of San Francisco, Mr. Geo. D. Chaplin and Miss Augusta Chambers will leave for Australia, under engagement to Mr. Lazar of the New Theatre, Sydney, this being Mr. Allison's first contributation to the new stock company.

Signor Baccei, left for the East on Saturday morning, his engagement with Madame Fabbri have come to a somewhat sudden termination in consequence of a pressing New York engagement.

Manager Maguire, having with characteristic tact and forethought, engaged the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, for the Legislative season, the entire Star Comedy Company will concentrate its forces in that city for to-morrow evening, when the season will be opened with "The Overland Route." The half company is now playing at Stockton, the other moiety at the theatre on Bush street, which theatre will probably remain closed after Tuesday evening, until the Fabbri Opera season commences there. The lease of Platt's Hall expires Sunday, the 12th, and on Tuesday, the 14th, the Christmas Opera season will begin at this theatre.

VERSICAL ODDS AND ENDS.

DON'T TOUCH ME.

"I'll scream if you touch me!"
Exclaimed a pert miss,
Whose lover was seeking
An innocent kiss.
By this prudish conduct
Cold water was thrown—
The lover drew backward,
And—let her alone.

"I'll scream if you touch me!"
She hollered once more.
He cried: "I'm not near you!"
And found it a bore.
She quickly subsided,
Grew tender to view,
And whispered quite softly:
"I'll scream till you do!"

"All the world is full of babies,
Sobbing, sobbing, everywhere,
Looking out with eyes of terror,
Beating at the empty air.
Do they see the strife before them,
That they sob and tremble so?
Oh, the helpless, frightened babies—
Still they come, and still they go."

Here is the latest specimen of election poetry:

'Twas morning of election-day,
He came down feeling fresh and cheery,
And bending o'er her chair remarked,
"Who are your candidates, my deary!"

She humped her pull-back just enough
To make her favorite paper rustle—
"Their names I don't remember, but You'll find them somewhere in my bustle."

SONNET TO A CLAM.

"Inglorious friend! most confident I am
Thy life is one of very little ease;
Albeit men mock thee with their smiles
And prate of being as 'happy as a clam!'
What though thy shell protects thy fragile head
From the sharp bailiffs of the briny sea,
Thy valves are sure no safety-valves to thee;
While rakes are free to desecrate thy bed
And bear thee off—as foemen take their spoil—
Far from thy friends and family to roam,
Forced, like a Hessian from thy native home
To meet destruction in a foreign broil!
Though thou art tender, yet thy humble bard
Declares, oh clam! thy case is shocking hard!"

A western editor runs it thusly:

His foot upon the trigger,
The muzzle in his ear,
A movement of the little toe
And his head did disappear.
Gone where the grasshopper lingereth not.

DR. McBRIDE.

What the editor of the Stockton Independent says of Dr. McBride and his World's Relief: This skillful practitioner and very popular gentleman has spent the week in this city introducing a medicine which possesses wonderful potency in curing pain. It is called "World's Relief," and is properly named, for in every case of physical suffering which has come under Dr. McBride's observation and treatment, relief is almost instantaneous. The great secret of success in the medical, as well as in other professions, is to know exactly what to do and how to do it. The close, searching, keen discrimination requisite in distinguishing and determining the nature and character of diseases and their symptoms, is an indispensable characteristic of the first-class physician, and to Dr. McBride's wonderful diagnostic ability is in the main to be attributed his miraculous success in curing pain, no matter from what cause arising. Such men are benefactors to their race. D

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatre-goers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. Trying Him.

There's a German who keeps a corner grocery in Keokuk, and he had a call from a little boy the other night who had been sent to get a two dollar bill changed. The boy received the change and returned home with it, when it was discovered that there was a quarter which was rather ragged, though good, in the change, and also that the quarter was just twenty-five cents more change than the folks who sent the bill were entitled to. The boy was sent back to return it, and of course the ragged "fractional" was sent with him. Entering the store and holding out the ragged money, the boy said, "You changed a $2 bill for me, here's a quarter—"

Our German friend, seeing the ragged money, and fancing he would have to take it back, interrupted the boy by exclaiming, "Shanged moninks! I shanged no bills mit you."

"Yes you did, and here's a quarter—"

"Mein Gott, vat a liars. Nefer in my life did I see sich a poys. I dells you, you nefer changed me mit any pill."

"Why, I was here not half an hour ago and you gave me a quarter—"

"Gif you some quarters—gif you some quarters! Dunderwetter, young fellow, do you tink I pin gone grazy mit my brains? I don't gif you some quarters. Now make yourself seldom, ride away, pefore I put shoulders on your head," and he commcommenced to move out from behind the counter.

"O, you didn't give me the quarter. All right; all right, Squire. I'm just a quarter ahead," and he started to go out.

"Now," said the German, putting himself in an attitude of admiration, "dot is what I like to see petter as nothing else. I lofe an honest boy, and I shoost been trying you, sonny. Yaw, it was me what makes shange mit ter pill, and I knows all der same; but I was drying you. Du peese a cheney boy, and I gifs you a nice, pig apple for your honesty," and pocketing the quarter, he led the boy back to the rear end of thestore, and selecting an apple about the size of a marble, he presented it to the boy, and patting him on the head, said: "Now run along home, sonny, und dell your volks vat a nice, p-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l old shentleman it vas who gif you dot nice apples."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Preliminary Notice.

Peter Job, our old Pioneer French cook, will open on the 4th of December, a comodious Family Restaurant and Fancy Bakery, at 867 Market street, opposite Baldwin's new hotel. Most all old Californians know that whatever Job undertakes, he does it well, and, therefore, it is hardly necessary to state, that with his usual energy, he is now engaged in superintending the fitting up of what will be one of the finest and most comfortable restaurant in the city. It is Peter Job's intention not only to establish a first-class restaurant, but to keep a constant supply of French and American confectionary, and also the best Ice Cream to be found in the State. His former friends and patrons will find when they call upon him, that Peter Job has lost none of his former superiority in the art of cooking, that they will be well waited upon by the most polite and attractive of waiters.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

The orchestra at one of the London theatres refused to play the other night because they had not been paid for several weeks. The manager appeared and paid them all something on account in the presence of the audience, and then the music went on. Business is business!

One of the tableaux of the "Voyage dans la Lune," which was brought out at the Paris Gaite a few weeks ago, represents a lunar landscape, after photographs of the satellite from the earth, which are exhibited in the promenade room of the theatre. This scene, called Fifty Degrees below Zero, is the work of M. Cheret, and is said to be marvellously beautiful.

The music of Gounod's forthcoming opera, "George Dandin," is to be set, not to an ordinary opera libretto, but to Moliere's original prose.

Offenbach's new bouffe, "La Boulangere a des Ecus" has been brought out at the Paris Varieties with success. Aimee plays the leading character.

This is the latest sensation at the Paris Winter Circus: A gymnast is put into the muzzle of an enormous mortar. The piece is fired, and the man is projected up to a trapeze, to which he clings.

The Carl Rosa English Opera Troupe consists of fourteen natives of Great Britain, three of America, one of Sweden, and one of Germany.

It is proposed to raise a monument to Karl Wilhelm, the composer of the "Wacht am Rhein," and subscriptions are now being raised for that purpose.

The new piece at the Paris Chateau-d' Eau, "Pif-Paf," is founded on a rather novel idea. The hero possesses a talisman, but dses not know that he possesses it. It is only when he is kicked that he succeeds in all his wishes. It soon becomes his aim and object to court such opprobrious assaults. Of course, this peculiar framework gives scope for several amusing scenes and some very brilliant ones. The ballet is good, the scenery showy, and the acting quite up to the usual standard for such pieces.

"Aida" is to be produced at Covent Garden Theatre, London, next week.

"Lohengrin" in the Italian version, is to be produced in Paris this Winter.

An odd ceremony has just taken place at Berlin. A jubilee has been celebrated in Brockman's Circus in honor of a monkey who had completed twenty-five years of service. He occupied the chair himself at the banquet, and did the honors with becoming grace.

An American Opera Bouffe is to be brought out soon in Vienna, the scene being laid in Salt Lake City.

It is rumored that Ambroise Thomas's new opera, "Psyche," will be given in London on the occasion of the inauguration of the new Opera House, which it is expected will take place during the coming Spring.

The veteran French actor, Bressant, who was recently threatened with paralysis, is much better, and will shortly return to the boards of the Comedie Francaise. Apropos of Bressant, a story is told respecting him and Jules Janin, which well exemplifies the uneasy vanity of the great critic. He published one day a highly favorable notice of the acting of Bressant in a new play. The actor, for some reason or other, neglected to thank him or to take any notice of his article. From that time to the day of his death, Jules Janin never mentioned Bressant's name in any one of his dramatic criticisms. When forced to speak of the characters in which he performed in order to give a full account of the different plays, he would always speak of him as the actor who took such a part, or the person who played the hero.

Expectation has been excited in Paris about a new piece by Alexandre Dumas, entitled "L' Etrangere," the heroine of which is said to be Marie Antoinette.

When to look for the music of a hat—When the band buckles to it.

When is a sea captain not a captain—When he's aboard

Lying in wait—False scales.

"Circumstances (h)alter cases"—As Pomeroy may find.

The man who could stand almost anything but sitting down, is now lying off.

A pair of cuffs—Two darkeys.

"My native city has treated me badly," said a drunken vagabond, "but I love her still." "Probably," replied a gentleman, "her still is all that you do love."

True affection grows stronger as it grows older. The same may be said of an egg.

It is said there are more lies told in the sentence, "I am glad to see you," than in any other six words in the English language.

A bureau of interpreters is now organizing at Philadelphia for the benefit of expected foreigners.

"Keep your dog away from me," said a dandy to a butcher boy. "Hang the dog," said the boy; "he always will be after puppies."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place o business.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

All Letters and Communications Strictly Confidential.

Consultations Free—Charges Moderate. Office Hours from 10 to 4 and 7 to 8.

Amusements, Etc.

Opera House.

In the first part, such favorite songs as "The Little One at home." "You and I" and "Little Robin tell Kitty I'm Coming." are given, and in the second part in addition to the Skidmore Guards will be found such acts as these: "There's Nothing In It," by Charley Reed; "Josephus Orangeblossom," by Billy Emerson; "Obeying Orders," by Messrs. Norcross Reed and Sutton, "Charming Little Susie," by Mackin and Wilson; and "Spiritual Manifestations, by Welch, Linden and Richards.

California Theatre.

The announcement that there are to be but three more nights for the representation of Byron's delightful comedy of "Our Boys," will be heard by all theatre goers with disappointment. A benefit and a previous engagement, however, necessitate its withdrawal after Thursday. The most of these few remaining opportunities to see and enjoy this treat must therefore be made.

Maguire's New Theatre—Miss Katy Mayhew's Benefit.

The old standard comedy of "The Jealous Wife," an attractive olio and an act of "Fanchon," formed the bill for Miss Katy Mayhew's benefit last night. Since her first appearance here this little lady has increased in public favor by her brightness and most evident desire to do her best—that best being often extremely pleasant. Those who attended last night were hearty in their reception and by many tokens showed their esteem of the beneficiare. As Mrs. Oakley, Miss Mayhew was somewhat overweighted, but as Fanchon she renewed that exceedingly good impression made at her first appearance in this character. The olio was entertaining. Messrs. Brown, Sherwood, Charley Reed and Singer and the Misses Singer, Rellie Deaves, Marie Schumann and Allen appearing therein. Hermann was also on hand with his interlude of magic. We must not forget to mention the Harriet of Miss Esther Williams in "The Jealous Wife," it being a neat proof of what she is able to do.

Hermann.

The last appearances of Hermann is positively fixed for this evening and to-morrow, at Maguire's New Theatre, the steamer by which he leaves for his Oregonian trip starting on Thursday morning. On this last occasion Hermann will fill out the evening's entertainment alone.

Grand German and Italian Opera. Franz Fischer's Benefit.

This evening, Herr Franz Fischer, the basso cantante of the Fabbri Opera Troupe, will receive a benefit, when "Faust" will be presented, the beneficiary taking the part of Mephistophiles, Mme. Ines Fabbri that of Siebel, Theo. Habelmann as Faust, and Mlle. Anna Elzer for the first time as Marguerite. On Friday evening "Robert le Diable" will be repeated, and on Sunday the season at Platt's Hall closes.

La Palmieri.

The box sheet is open at Sherman & Hyde's and the tickets are going off at a handsome rate for the grand costume concert to-morrow evening at Pacific Hall by Signor Tito Palmieri, Signora Marie Palmieri, and Signorina Alice Persiani, assisted by Prof. G. T. Evans, Herr J. Hinrichs and Mr. Buch. Besides instrumental solos, duets and trios, the programme will include the Romanza "La Stella Confidente" with violincello obligato, a Scena ed Aria from "Faust," a Bolero from "I Vespri Siciliani," by Signora Palmieri; a Cavatine from "Il Barbiere" and an Aria from "Linda di Chamounix," by Signorina Persiani; and a Romanza from "Martha," and a Barcarola of Scuderi, by Signor Palmieri.

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

The first concert of the fourth season will be given to-morrow afternoon, when the programme will inclue Weber's "Jubel" march, Haydn's (Militaire) Symphony in G, Mendelssohn's Wedding March and a romanza for the French horn with flute obligato In consequence of the hall having been preengaged, the second concert will be held on the 22d instead of the 15th.

Miss Pateman's Benefit

On Friday evening next, the leading lady of the California Theatre Company, Miss Bella Pateman, will have a benefit when "The Two Orphans" will be specially revived with the beneficiare and Miss Ellie Wilton as Henriette and Louise. Miss Harrison will appear in her specialties, and the green curtain will be rung down on the curse scene in "Leah." In "The Two Orphans" Mrs. Judah will make her first re-appearance since her severe indisposition, now a matter of four months ago.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Amongst the artists who will appear to-night are St. Leon in song and dance, George C. Thompson in his specialties, Kittie Leroy in her champion jig, Master Cassim in his contortion act and Kimic in Dutch songs.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Eddie Fonteneau in his specialty of "The German Auswanderin," Johnnie Wretland in his clog dance, Cherry Belle in her protean sketches, are all on the bill to-night.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

For to-night's entertainment Hughey Robinson will appear in his specialties, Lon Dixon in song and dance, Charley Nickerson in his eccentricities, and Miss Harrington in acts.

Woodward's Gardens.

Among the new features for this week are Mrs. C. A. Woodroffe, of the world renowned Bohemian Troupe of Glass Blowers, who operates every day; Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner song; Sen Gonzales, the greatest living tumbler; Miss Mathews the facinating danseuse; the three acrobats, the laughable pantomime, the variety and gymnastic troupe and concert Saturday and Sunday.

New Skating Rink.

The opening of a magnificent skating rink, at the Mechanics' Pavilion, takes place this evening. It covers the immense space of 400 by 50 feet, and will accommodate 1,500 skaters, A fine band will be in attendance nightly. There is no doubt that it will become a popular resort for pleasure-seekers.

Notes.

Maguire's entire Comedy Company will open at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, this evening in "The Overland Route." Manager Maguire having leased that theatre for the Legislative season.

News was received in this city yesterday of the almost sudden death of Miss Susan Denin the im-

It is, we learn, the intention of Madame Fabbri and Mlle. Elzer to visit Europe next year, one of the chief objects of the trip being the European debut of Mlle. Elzer as Marguerite.

On Monday next, Dec. 13th, Wm. Horace Lingard and Miss Emmie Dunning will appear at the California Theatre in H. J. Byron's latest comedy, entitled "Married in Haste."

The Lieutenant Governor of Australia will attend the performance of "Our Boys" at the California Theatre this evening.

MY BROKER.

Who leads me on to fields Elysian,
Where golden prospects greet my vision—
And charges but a small commission?
My Broker.

Who while I trudge through muddy ways,
Rides (for that small commission pays)
Behind a handsome pair of bays?
My Broker.

Who, sitting at Pactolus' fount,
Buys, sells, or holds for "next account,"
Charging, of course, a small amount?
My Broker.

Whose tone is soft, whose manner bland;
Who, lightly holding by my hand,
Talks figures I don't understand?
My Broker.

When panics come, who seems to wear

Whose wines and weeds are of the best?

Though drinking '47 port?

DR. McBRIDE.

What the editor of the Stockton Independent says of Dr. McBride and his World's Relief: This skillful practitioner and very popular gentleman has spent the week in this city introducing a medicine which possesses wonderful potency in curing pain. It is called "World's Relief," and is properly named, for in every case of physical suffering which has come under Dr. McBride's observation and treatment, relief is almost instantaneous. The great secret of success in the medical, as well as in other professions, is to know exactly what to do and how to do it. The close, searching, keen discrimination requisite in distinguishing and determining the nature and character of diseases and their symptoms, is an indispensable characteristic of the first-class physician, and to Dr. McBride's wonderful diagnostic ability is in the main to be attributed his miraculous success in curing pain, no matter from what cause arising. Such men are benefactors to their race. D

Preliminary Notice.

Peter Job, our old Pioneer French cook, will open on the 4th of December, a comodious Family Restaurant and Fancy Bakery, at 867 Market street, opposite Baldwin's new hotel. Most all old Californians know that whatever Job undertakes, he does it well, and, therefore, it is hardly necessary to state, that with his usual energy, he is now engaged in superintending the fitting up of what will be one of the finest and most comfortable restaurant in the city. It is Peter Job's intention not only to establish a first-class restaurant, but to keep a constant supply of French and American confectionary, and also the best Ice Cream to be found in the State. His former friends and patrons will find when they call upon him, that Peter Job has lost none of his former superiority in the art of cooking, that they will be well waited upon by the most polite and attractive of waiters.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody, of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatregoers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. There is only one exception, that is, at the elegantly appointed saloon of Schroder & Greene, No. 330 Bush street, above the Opera House, where a splendid hot lunch is served nightly to their numerous customers, from 7 to 12 P. M. C

A Word to the Wise, etc.

Don't Help Pay Other People's Debts,

But go to the Furniture and Bedding Store of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, and save fully 25 per cent. by buying of them. Their motto is: "Buy for cash, and sell for cash," therefore they have no bad debts to make up out of extra profits. L

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 207 Kearny street, between Sutter and Bush, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Ref-

A FRENCH VIEW OF JOAQUIN MILLER.

In his posthumous work, "La Psychologie Sociale des Peuples Nouveaux," which has just been published in Paris. M. Philarte Chasles, philosopher, member of the Institute, and formerly head of the French National Library, thus analyzes Joaquin Miller as a poet:

American life and habits have just found their organ. I allude neither to Longfellow, nor to other well-known poets, but to a man of the name of Miller. His genius is natural and brutal. Its waves contain mud and gravel as well as gold and pearl. Miller does not aim at elegance. He is a semi-savage. He is neither from Boston, the learned city, nor from New York, the commercial metropolis, nor from William Penn's philosophical city, Philadelphia. He is a Californian and embodies all the the characteristics of California. He does not analyze his feelings nor ponder over his sensations. He is almost unconscious, almost ashamed of his own energy. Joaquin Miller, by name, his dwelling hangs between the Pacific and the Sierra Nevadas. He was once a gold hunter. One day he descended from the Sierras to Mexico and the extensive plains of the South, thence to New York, thence to London where he published his wonderful works. Joaquin Miller is a bad composer. His stories are badly put together. He sometimes uses Californian words or verses out of measure. He is, nevertheless, a poet. His genius is new, impulsive, and varied; he is unconsciously a poet. At a time when everyone endeavors to mimic genius and originality Miller may be considered a phenomenon. His descriptions are as lively and as true as Lamartine's; are buoyant as Byron; as sentimental as Musset; but the whole is confused, muddy, disorderly. His genius flows from stormy waves. Is he classical or romantic? No one can tell. Spanish or Anglo-Saxon? No one can tell. Savage or civilized? No one can tell. He possesses a little of each. What can be said is that his works betray health and vitality. Goethe would have admired him Miller is New America itself. Emanating from old countries Northern America is a chaos wherein all races are mixed; she has given birth to a genius who has shared her passions, her follies and her virtues, and has become the Dante or the Homer of that extraordinary part of the world. Poetry is not a toy in the hands of the California Miller. It is a passion which braves his reason. This passion seized him at the bottom of his native abyss, in the canyon, a long Californian gallery or canal closeted in marble walls, at three thousand feet beneath the rocks—a gallery that is protected by forests of quinas where the orang-outang and the jockos with human features fly between the branches as numerous as the leaves on the trees. Do not ask him for a fictitious local color. He paints nature as it is without the polish which disguises it. He bears no resemblance to Byron or Victor Hugo, because these admired painters prepare their colors before using the brush. The first fragment, or poem, in Miller's book, is devoted to a harsh and realistic sketch of the customs and habits of the gold seeker. How a young Scotch lass, Annie Macleod, whose beautiful features were framed with fair hair, a fair complexion, an open smile, appeared before the semi-savage of Arizona like a star in a stormy sky; how he was compelled to abandon his proposed marriage and Annie Macleod; how a girl from one of the Indian tribes led him through the horrible deserts where he sought fortune; the devotion and kindness of the Indian girl; the cruelty of the gold hunter who allows the savage child to perish without rescuing her—all this verse which would be common if it were not embrued with enthusiasm, is redeemed by its matchless realism. Chateaubriand, who in imitation of Jean Jacques Rousseau, was an ardent admirer of savage life, has already broached this beautiful subject. In Atala and the Natchez he failed to accomplish what the rustic Californian Joaquin Miller, has so admirably achieved.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

It is Shakspeare who speaks of "the lascivious pleasing of a lute," but his prophetic soul did not divine the licentiousness of the piano or the profligacy of the organ. That discovery was reserved for the Mayor of the town of Lille, who, with the approval of the prefect, has issued the following by-law: "We, the Mayor of the City of Lille, chevalier of the Legion of Honor, considering that the use of pianos and organs in places open to the public is often the occasion of obscene dancing and singing, that it keeps the working man aloof from his labor, and attracts young girls whom it excites to debauchery; that the noise of that disorderly music is morover a cause of real trouble for the neighbors—we decree from the 1st November the use of pianos and organs shall be forbidden in all places open to the public." The Terpsichorean public of Lille will thus be constrained to trip it on "the light fantastic toe" to the strains of the virtuous fiddle or the guileless trombone, for henceforth the obscene piano and organ are in that town to be as silent as "the harp that once through Tara's hall the soul of music shed." It remains to be seen how concert organizers and the clergy will submit to the suppression of pianos and organs in all places open to the public" for churches and concert halls fall within that description.

The London News of the World speaks thus of Mr. Joseph Jefferson's re-appearance at the Royal Princesses' Theatre: "The warmest of welcomes has been accorded to Mr. Joseph Jefferson upon his re-appearance in this country, after a long interval, as Rip Van Winkle. From the first moment ten years ago, when the famous Rip, as conceived by Washington Irving and interpreted by his countryman, Mr. Jefferson, was seen on the boards of the Adelphi Theatre, it won its way to the public heart, and the success then obtained has not been forgotten by the British play-going public. His reception on Monday night at the hands of a large audience was most enthusiastic. From the time when, with a crowd of children dangling at his heels and clinging to his skirts, to that when, restored to friends and fortune, he finally breaks his oft-repeated oath, and drinks in one more cup the good health 'of the audience mit der families,' the impersonation was supreme."

"So Conscience Doth Make, etc."

Mr. and Mrs. Ginx, of Louisville, were preparing to go to the theatre a few evenings ago, when the cannon was roaring in a distant part of the city to call the voters to a political meeting. Mr. Ginx was sitting with his hands folded, looking into the fire, doubtless contemptplating the sinfulness of politics and politicians. The cannon roared and the reverberations almost shook the house he was sitting in. "That is a shameful waste of powder," he remarked. "It ain't no such a thing, you old brute!" replied the amiable wife, as she stood before the glass arranging her toilet. "I haven't any more powder on my face than you have!"

Drinking Alone and in Company.

A minister who had been reproving one of his elders for over indulgence, observed a cow go to a stream, take a drink and then turn away. "There," said he to his offending elder, "is an example for you; the cow has quenched her thirst, and has retired," "Yes," replied the other, "that is very true; but suppose another cow had come to the other side of the stream, and had said, 'here's to you,' there's no knowing how long they might have gone on."

GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANTS.

The Scripture assures us that this class of persons will receive full reward for their services in the other world. They certainly ought to, for they don't often get it in this. A case in point is the way in which the daily papers sing the praises of the new city officers, without even uttering a word of recognition of the merits of those tried and faithful ones who have held positions of great trust for years, and have proved themselves to be honest, capable and efficient, and in every respect the right men in the right places.

The public and the press both owe ex-Tax Collector Alexander Austin, ex-County Clerk Wm. Harney, and ex-Auditor Monroe Ashbury (who have just retired from office), the highest meed of praise for their tried and efficient services. They have filled their respective positions for three and four terms each, and in the performance of their multifarious and arduous public duties have proved themselves to be possessed of the highest administrative abilities as well as sterling integrity of character. After years of active public services they each refused a re-nomination for their respective offices at the last election, and quietly and unostentatiously retired to private life, bearing with them the respect and good will of the entire community, and a record of their public services which no man dare impeach.

A WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

As a healer of disease, Dr. D. Percy, the eminent London physician and astrologer, has achieved a reputation somewhat remarkable during the short time he has stopped in this city. Hundreds have visited him and to every one his wonderful skill has been attested by actual cures performed, some almost miraculous. On account of other pressing engagements, the doctor can offer his services but a short time longer to the people upon this, his only visit to our city. We advise all sufferers to call upon him at once. He gives no drugs or medicines of any description, and first of all, guarantees satisfaction every time. His health examinations are free to all, which includes your disease and all its symptoms, which he describes without asking a question. Dr. Percy may be found at those elegant apartments formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, No. 206 Kearny street. Entrance, Room 11, where he will consult all visitors whether upon business or not. D

The Young Man from the East.

" Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place o business.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre–Herrmann.

Herrmann, the great magician, gave his programme of illusions last night to a fair and interested house. He will appear again to-night, and that positively for the last time. This theatre will be for rent until the return of Maguire's Comedy Company from Sacramento, by the night or week, to any first-class entertainment.

Opera House.

Crowded houses nightly, and a performance which pleases everybody is the bulletin for this place of amusement. Emerson has taken his old place at the end, and the first part is more than usually attractive. Fred Walz's song of "Robin tell Kitty I'm Coming" has been repeated by general request.

California Theatre.

"Our Boys" drew a full house last night, and just as the actors are in thorough rapport with their parts, the comedy has, unfortunately, to be withdrawn. Last night, Sir Geo. Bowen, the Governor of Victoria, occupied one of the stage boxes, 'God Save the Queen' being played in his honor. Sir George Bowen has just returned from London, and expressed the opinion that the presentation of the play here is fully equal to that under the author's immediate supervision.

Grand German and Italian Opera.

Herr Franz Fischer is evidently ambitious, but he should not yet awhile attempt Mephistophiles. At his benefit last night—when "Faust" was presented—there was a comfortably filled house. Much interest was shown in the first appearance of Mlle. Elzer as Marguerite. In many scenes she was deficient, but in the love scenes of the third act, both she and Herr Habelmann won much merited applause. The cast elsewise included Mme. Fabbri as Siebel, and Herr Lafontaine as Valentine. On Friday evening, "Robert le Diable," will be repeated, for the last time, and on Sunday evening "The Marriage of Figaro," will close the season

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

The first concert of the fourth season will be given this afternoon, when the programme will inclue Weber's "Jubel" march, Haydn's (Militaire) Symphony in G, Mendelssohn's Wedding March and a romanza for the French horn with flute obligato. In consequence of the hall having been pre-engaged, the second concert will be held on the 23d instead of the 15th.

La Palmieri Concert.

We are sorry to have to announce that Signora Maria Palmieri had decided to indefinitely postpone her concert announced to take place at Pacific Hall this evening. Those holding tickets will have their money refunded them.

Promenade Concert.

On Friday evening next, the First Infantry Regiment of the National Guard of California will give a promenade concert at Union Hall, after which a programme of dances will be in order.

Miss Pateman's Benefit

On Friday evening next, the leading lady of the California Theatre Company, Miss Bella Pateman, will have a benefit when "The Two Orphans" will be specially revived with the beneficiare and Miss Ellie Wilton as Henriette and Louise. Miss Harrison will appear in her specialties, and the green curtain will be rung down on the curse scene in "Leah." In "The Two Orphans" Mrs. Judah will make her first re-appearance since her severe indisposition, now a matter of four months ago.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"Lucy de Soiree" by Mortimer, Swain, Price and St. Leon, takes the place of "The Dutch Justice" for this evening, and "Negro Eccentricities" by Senate and Price, that of "Banjo Act". On Friday evening benefit of Harry Senate.

New Lyceum Theatre.

For this evening the programme will include "The Banner Song" by Miss Emma Cooper, (repeated by request), "Dodging for a Wife," Wretland in his clog dance, and the first appearances of Misses Buckley, Pateman, Webster and Della.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"Mazeppa" with Miss Harrington as Sattanette, still continues an attraction here. Lon Dixon, Hughey Robinson, and Charley Nickerson are all on the bill, which is a most entertaining one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Among the new features for this week are Mrs. C. A. Woodroffe, of the world renowned Bohemian Troupe of Glass Blowers, who operates every day; Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner song; Sen Gonzales, the greatest living tumbler; Miss Mathews the facinating danseuse; the three acrobats, the laughable pantomime, the variety and gymnastic troupe and concert Saturday and Sunday.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody, of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Ha[illegible]re, 647 Washington street below Kearny, the[illegible]ll no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Seore at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. I

THE BEE.

How doth the gorging greedy bee,
  Destructive little brute,
Hum all day long from tree, to tree,
  And spoil the choicest fruit!

Behold how deep she scoops a cell,
  When peaches she attacks;
In nectarines and pears as well
  How big a hole she makes!

Likewise to eat and drink my fill
  I should be happy too;
For Nature has disposed me still
  But little else to do.

In grog and grub, by turns with play,
  Might all my life be past,
Till I, perhaps, should come to weigh
  Good fourteenscore at last.

Mr. A. Oakey Hall's New Play.

The N. Y. Sun gives the following account of a reading of Mr. Hall's play: The new piece, around which such a mist of interest and mystery has been gathered, was read yesterday morning in the Park Theatre by Mr. A. Oakey Hall, the Chief collaborateur. No one was permitted to be present beyond those engaged in the performance save Mr. William Henry Hulbert and Lord Houghton. The piece is entitled "Crucible," is in four acts, and is said to picture the mental sufferings of a man mingling in commercial pursuits, who is accused of crime, of the creation of which he is wholly innocent, and whose high and noble qualities are brought out under suffering. An interesting love scene is attatched, and a character of great interest, similar, we understand, to one performed in Paris with great success for a run of two or three seasons, is introduced. There is a most effective jury scene, and many most powerful dramatic situations. As in a recent celebrated trial here, which this, perhaps, reflects, the hero of the piece, unjustly accused, finds acquittal. The hero, it is said, and from what we can learn, we believe likely, will be played by Mr. A. Oakey Hall himself. This, if true, is a new surprise, and will throw great additional intherest around it. At all events he is said by the actors there to have read the part with great intensity and emotion. He is admittedly the principal collaborateur, aided by several of our most brilliant literary men whose names are not accurately known, but to whom rumor points. The piece will introduce several new artists, notably Mr. John Dillon, who comes with the highest artistic credentials, and Miss Marie Louise, who plays the deaf and dumb boy. The dialogue, as might be expected from its reputed authors, is said to contain much beautiful writing, and the whole piece to be alive with situations. It will doubtless add another to Mr. Stuarts' many triumphs as a manager. Since the departure of "The Shaughraun," we have had no strong sensation. This promises to be one.

Boucicault on the Life-Insurance Man.

We are indebted to Mr. Boucicault for the last and best anecdote about "the life-insurance man." In alluding to certain comments on the originality of his plays, he says: "Another reproach is that I have deserted the field of legitimate comedy (to which I contributed such works as "London Assurance" and "Old Heads and Young Hearts") to cultivate a lower drama, as the "Colleen Bawn" and "Arrah-na-Pogue;" that I owed it to my fame to maintain the standard of my reputation. I write to the taste of the times. I don't care a button for posterity, nor write to amuse unborn generations. Posterity is a bad audience. It reminds me of what an old Californian replied when a life-insurance company was first introduced into San Francisco, and he was asked to support it: 'Well,' said he. 'I've no opinion of a speckelation whar a man has got to die to realize.' So it is with poets who write for posterity."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatre-goers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. There is only one exception, that is, at the elegantly appointed saloon of Schroder & Greene, No. 330 Bush street, above the Opera House, where a splendid hot lunch is served nightly to their numerous customers, from 7 to 12 P. Mme. Mara and the Hallelujah Chorus

In England it is the habit to stand up, at the singing of "The Hallelujah Chorus," but once the famous Mme. Mara, during the performance of Handel's grand choruses in Westminster Abbey, kept her seat, while the Royal Family, with all who were present besides, who were all the principal nobility and gentry of the kingdom, stood up. This was known at Oxford, when she was engaged there for the grand music meeting, and they resolved to teach her better in future. As soon, therefore, as she appeared in the theatre she was called upon from all sides to avow whether she meant to practice the same there. Upon this, the worthy Professor, Dr. Hayes, who was fond of speechifying, came forward to assure the audience that Mme. Mara would stand up during the performance of the chorus in question; but in his eagerness to allay the storm he saw arising, instead of this, the first words of the chorus running in his head, he told them that Mme. Mara would rise when "the Lord God omnipotent reigneth." This laughable blunder put the audience in such good humor that, perhaps, it did more for the lady than even one of the doctor's best speeches could have done. This, however, did not last long, a performer in the orchestra, who was accompanying her in one of her songs, happening to play a little out of tune, so disarranged the lady's feelings that she turned round and flung the book she was singing from, at his head. Upon this, Dr. Chapman, then Vice-Chancellor, rose, and in a tone of authority indignantly exclaimed, "Mme. Mara has conducted herself too ill to be suffered to sing any more before this this audience." Immediately an arch wag cried out, "A riot, by permission of the Vice-Chancellor!" The confusion instantly became universal, and the lady was handed out amid the hisses of an indignant auditory.

WHY ROSSI BROKE HIS ENGAGEMENT.

The following is stated by the N. Y. Spirit of the Times to be the reason which induced Rossi to break his engagement with Messrs. Grau and Chizzola. When he arrived in Paris, previous to starting for this country, he found that he had made a bad arrangement for America, and consequently opened negotiations through his agent, with Messrs Jarrett and Palmer, for a series of performances, to be given at Booth's Theatre, during the Centennial season. In the Herald of November 23d, appears a letter addressed by Signor Rossi to Mr. Grau, accompanied by a doctor's certificate. We cannot say that this letter places Signor Rossi in a very agreeable light. It seems to us absurd that contracts should be broken by the mere presentation of doctors' certificates. The quick beat of a man's pulse, or the bad state of his nerves ought not to form an excuse for the non-fulfilment of an engagement. We here append the two letters above alluded to:

"PARIS, Nov. 1, 1875—Esteemed Mr. Grau: If speech be silver and silence golden, according to the ancient saying, you have spoken too much and not too well withal in public. Among the many reasons of prime gravity, which prevent me from setting out to fulfil my engagement with you, you will find enclosed one which, I think, will be sufficient to protect my reputation as a man and an artist, against false accusation. Beyond this proof, sufficient in itself to exclude every notion of damages and compensation, the agent Signor Cav. Verger, telegraphed you offering a sum of money provided my contract be cancelled once for all. You have accepted this basis, and required the guarantee of a well-known banker in Paris. Mons. Kann telegraphed you that he held at your disposal the sum of 30,000 francs, plus the 10,000 which you had advanced to bind the contract, obliging yourself to the restitution of all documents, etc. After your silence upon the whole matter—the public having my character in hand—it is time that this matter should end, and that the public should be informed of the truth. If, by return mail steamer, you have not sent back to Mr. Kann the contract, and everything thereto appertaining, and closed this matter between us, I will withdraw the order of the said banker, and will simply put myself in the hands of the courts, holding you, notwithstanding, responsible for everything which may be said by the newspapers on your side detrimental to my character. I trust, however, that reason and justice will find a place in your mind, and that everything will be managed for the best. Saluting you respectfully, I subscribe myself yours devotedly,

"ERNESTO ROSSI."

The Doctor's Certificate:

"The subscriber, Doctor in Medicine and Surgery, Chevalier Legion - d'Honneur, officer of the Order of St. Maurice and Lazarre, etc., etc., certifies, that M. Ernesto Rossi, artiste dramatique, has been striken, since three or four days, with a nervous trouble, often repeated, causing drowsiness in the day and feverish agitation at night. This illness, at the moment very severe, was occasioned by the unexpected news from the physicians in Florence, that his young son was in a very critical state. By the attention that I have given an amelioration of his condition is manifested, but it still requires a great deal of rest and care, and must live in a temperate climate. Therefore, I am, in consequence, compelled for the present, to formally forbid his crossing the ocean, as it might be fatal to him. (Signed)

"DR. A. MAFFEI,

"24 Place du Marche. St. Honore."

"PARIS, October 7. 1875.

"I hereby testify to the genuineness of Dr. Maffei's signature annexed to this document. 'SENOR, Commissary of Police.

Since the above was written, Mr. Grau has made a statement to the effect that "he did not wish to cause Rossi any trouble. Signor Rossi had violated his contract. He admitted having accepted the offer of 30,000 francs, provided he agreed to play in America, under his management only, and that, until such an agreement is made, this affair cannot be settled." Mr. Grau then proceeded to assert that "Rossi's illness was a mere pretext." He next read a telegram showing that Rossi had acted Othello successfully on October 4th, and asking him, Mr. Grau, to postpone his engagement for two weeks. "How," continued Mr. Grau, "could a man act before large houses as he has been doing if this sickness were an actual fact? There is a doctor's certificate, too. Well, they are cheap all the world over, and it strikes me as peculiar that this doctor, who is the bearer of so many distinguished honors as his titles tend to show, should be a namesake of Rossi's confidential servant."

Louis XIV. and Moliere.

Louis XIV. was once informed that the officers of his household, expressed, in a very offensive manner, how much they were mortified at being obliged to dine at the table of the controller of the household, with Moliere, valet of the king, because he performed as a comedian, and that celebrated genius had absented himself from their dinners. Louis, desirous of putting a stop to the insults offered one of the first men of the age, said one morning to Moliere, "They tell me that you make meagre fare here, and that the officers of my chamber do not think you fit to eat with them. Perhaps you are hungry: I woke myself with an appetite. Sit down at table, and let us have breakfast." Moliere seated himself, and the King helped him to the wing of a fowl, and sent for the gentlemen of his household to see the honor he had paid the immortal poet. "You see," said the great monarch, "I am feeding Moliere whom my valets de chambre do not consider sufficiently good company for them." From that hour Moliere was treated by the courtiers with great respect. This anecdote has often furnished painters with a subject for the palates.

The Young Man from the East.

" Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatregoers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. There is only one exception, that is, at the elegantly appointed saloon of Schroder & Greene, No. 330 Bush street, above the Opera House, where a splendid hot lunch is served nightly to their numerous customers, from 7 to 12 P. M. c

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place o business.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genitourinary organs.

California Theatre.

Had no other engagements interfered, there can be no doubt but that "Our Boys" would have run another week. As it is this is its last night, unless it be put up for Saturday night. To-morrow evening, benefit of Miss Bella Pateman.

Opera House.

The Minstrels have settled down to their usual share of public patronage, which means sufficient to fill this cosy little theatre to overflowing every night. Emerson and his sable confreres give a splendid entertainment.

Maguire's New Theatre—Herrmann.

The sailing of the Oregonian steamer being still further delayed, and with it that of Professor Herrmann, the management have taken advantage of the stoppage to engage the king of magicians until Saturday next.

Grand German and Italian Opera.

"Robert le Diable" will be repeated for the last time to-morrow evening, at Platt's Hall, with the same attractive cast as at its previous presentations. On Sunday, "The Marriage of Figaro" and the close of the season.

Herold's Grand Orchestral Matinee.

The first concert of the fourth series was given yesterday afternoon to a full house. Unfortunately we did not hear Haydn's symphony in G, but Schubert's quaint Reiter-March, and Reissiger's "Felsenmuhle" overture (with dido on the drums), were excellently rendered specimens of orchestral music, whilst Schlott's horn solo "L'Eclair," with flute obligato by Mr. Koppitz, was a treat worth all the rest of the programme. There will be no concert on Wednesday afternoon, the 15th inst., on account of the Hall being occupied by the Ladies' Fair. The second concert of this series will take place on Wednesday, the 22d December.

Promenade Concert.

To-morrow evening, the First Infantry Regiment of the National Guard of California will give a promenade concert at Union Hall, after which a programme of dances will be in order.

Miss Pateman's Benefit

To-morrow (Friday) evening, the leading lady of the California Theatre Company, Miss Bella Pateman, will have a benefit when "The Two Orphans" will be specially revived with the beneficiare and Miss Ellie Wilton as Henriette and Louise. Miss Harrison will appear in her specialties, and the green curtain will be rung down on the curse scene in "Leah." In "The Two Orphans" Mrs. Judah will make her first re-appearance since her severe indisposition, now a matter of four months ago.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

George C. Thompson's "Happy Old Uncle John," is a first-rate bit of negro character-acting, Ned Barry's songs are fresh and good, Kimic's Dutch songs are immense and the whole bill is capital. The new sensation entitled "Virginia City," will be produced here to-night.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Fred Williams, the great Dutch comique, will make his first appearance in his German Warbling. Lon Dixon, Charley Nickerson, and Hughey Robinson will also help out the bill.

New Lyceum Theatre.

The first appearance of four young ladies last night was quite an event. They will all be on the bill to-night in addition to the usual strong company including Miss Cherry Belle and Miss Emma Cooper.

Woodward's Gardens.

Among the new features for this week are Mrs. C. A. Woodroffe, of the world renowned Bohemian Troupe of Glass Blowers, who operates every day; Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner song; Sen Gonzales, the greatest living tumbler; Miss Mathews the facinating danseuse; the three acrobats, the laughable pantomime, the variety and gymnastic troupe and concert Saturday and Sunday.

Notes.

Work on Wade's Opera House, is being pushed forward as fast as possible. The company engaged in the East for Manager Bert, left New York, on Tuesday morning, and will be due here on Monday night. We shall publish a full list of names in a few days.

Bothwick Reid, the sceientific swordsman, who has been exhibiting at Woodward's Gardens and other places, left town this morning for Virginia City. He is engaged by Wilfred Hays, who has opened a show hall there; the first opened since the great fire.

In the lobby of the California Theatre, may now be seen a series of single and grouped portraits of the characters in "Our Boys." They are certainly the best specimens of the art that have been exhibited in this city, grouping and execution both being far above the ordinary.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

AT POE'S GRAVE.

BY WILLIAM WINTER.

Cold is the pæan honor sings,
  And chill is glory's breath,
And pale the garland memory brings
  To grace the iron doors of death.

Fame's echoing thunder, long and loud,
  The pomp of pride that decks the pall,
The plaudits of the vacant crowd—
  One word of love is worth them all.

With dews of grief our eyes are dim:
  Ah! let the tear of sorrow start,
And honor, in ourselves and him,
  The great and tender human heart!

Through many a night of want and woe
  His frenzied spirit wandered wild—
Till kind disaster laid him low,
  And Heaven reclaimed its wayward child.

Through many a year his fame has grown—
  Like midnight vast, like starlight sweet—
Till now his genius fills a throne,
  And nations marvel at its feet.

One meed of justice long delayed,
  One crowning grace his virtues crave—
Ah! take, thou great and injured shade,
  The love that sanctifies this grave!

God's mercy guard in peaceful sleep
  The sacred dust that slumbers here,
And, while around this tomb we weep,
  God bless for us the mourning tear!

And may his spirit, hovering nigh,
  Pierce the dense cloud of darkness through,
And know, with fame that cannot die,
  He has the world's affection too!

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

'Tis remarkable what effect wooden toothpicks have on some people. We noticed one young man, who went out between each act at the Opera House a few evenings since. His fair partner, towards the close of the entertainment, asked him what made his tongue so thick? "Mus' be ze toothpicks. P'int sharper'n sewin' 'chine needle."

In the course of a conversation or disquisition on Satan, Archbishop Whately once startled his listeners by asking, "If the devil lost his tail, where should he go to find a new one?" and without giving much time for reflection, replied, "To a gin palace, for bad spirits are retailed there."

The boy who will howl like a fog-horn if he hits his shin with a piece of kindling will fall thirty-one feet out of a chestnut tree and say nothing about it, if his neck ain't broke, for fear he won't get to go again.

"What do you think is the best size for a man?" drawled a lazy fop, who was talking to his physician. "Exercise," sternly replied the doctor.

As two gentlemen were discussing the merits of a popular preacher, one of them remarked, "He always prays for the widows and orphans, but never says anything about widowers." The other, an inveterate old bachelor, replied, "Perhaps it would be more appropriate to return thanks for them."

A musical key—San-key.

The man who is curious to see how the world could get along without him can find out by sticking a cambric needle in a millpond, and then withdrawing it and looking at the hole.

A wife will hardly ever notice whether her husband has had his hair cut or not, but let him go home with a strange hairpin sticking in his overcoat and she'll see it before he reaches the gate.

CONCERNING JOHN McCULLOUGH.

The Baltimore Bulletin, in referring to Mr. John McCullough's then coming engagement in that city, says:

Mr. John McCullough will commence on Monday evening an engagement of one week at Ford's Grand Opera House, opening with Byrd's fine tragedy of "The Gladiator," formerly the property of Edwin Forrest, but now owned by Mr. McCullough. It will be followed by "Metamora," "Jack Cade" and other standard dramas.

Mr. McCullough has already played two successful engagements in Baltimore, both of which are yet fresh in the minds of our readers. He came here several years ago, supporting the late Edwin Forrest, with whom he traveled for a considerable period, but it is only within the past few years or so that he has been before our Eastern public as a leading exponent of the standard drama. He had made a reputation in California, of which something occasionally reached us, but when he came to New York to present himself to a critical public upon the boards of Edwin Booth's Theatre, he was comparatively unknown. Even the managerial expedients of preliminary puffs, of adventitious biographies and deftly conceived paragraphs of fortuitous anecdote were not had recourse to in his case, and he came forward pretty much upon his merits. With the machinery at present at the command of the New York manager, a reputation is manufactured in a few weeks that formerly was only acquired in years. What with the newspapers, regimental processions, working up the actor's nationality, complimentary dinners and breakfasts, and all the rest of it, the public gets quite excited, and sometimes a very ordinary actor is mislead into thinking himself the greatest in the world.

Mr. McCullough appeared as Spartacus at Booth's, very few venturing to predict a success, and a great many bringing with him to the theatre a preconceived sneer for the young actor who could essay the part that had so recently belonged to Edwin Forrest. There was that in his appearance as he walked forward as the Thracian prisoner, his hands manacled and his head bowed in anguish upon his breast, that immediately impressed the audience sensibly; but when he spoke, in tones of wearied pain and resentful disdain, to say: "Is this the place men call Rome?" it was at once recognized that he was indeed a Spartacus. We were present at the performance, and it was such a success as any actor might well be proud of. He was greeted with the warmest and at the same time the most discriminating applause, and while it was averred that his performance was not unlike that of Forrest in the same part, it was conceded to be full of power, majesty and vigor that were his own. Mr. McCullough's engagement was successful and satisfactory in every respect, and when he left New York for other cities, it was with the gratification of having established the ground-work of a reputation that would rank him with the greatest American exponents of the standard drama. Mr. Boucicault at that time, in speaking to us of Mr. McCullough, characterized him as the most promising actor upon the American stage, one whose sheer force of genius and inherent strength would eventually place him at the head of his profession.

Our theatre-goers have seen him in "Richelieu," "The Gladiator," "Virginius," "Richard III.," "Jack Cade," "Romeo and Juliet," and "King Lear." He is good in all these, his most finished parts being to our mind, Richelieu, Spartacus and Jack Cade. His Richelieu is in some respects superior to that of Booth. Where Mr. Booth loses by elaborateness and presents an overwrought and toilsome picture, Mr. McCullough's rugged force and strong natural conception of the character render him superior. It is a fine, artistic piece of work, which careful study and evident adaptibility have developed into one of the most acceptable and generally satisfactory representations of the higher drama to be had in our time on the American boards. Salvini saw Mr. McCullough play it, and in his impetuous Italian way went and embraced him. He thought it a magnificent piece of acting.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

Uncompromising Honesty.

The other day a man with a gaunt look halted before an oyster stand at the Central Market, and after a long survey of the viands, he said to the man:

"I am a poor man, but I'll be honest if I have to be buried in a Pauper's Field."

"What's the matter now," asked the man, regarding him with suspicion.

"No one saw me pick up a $20 gold piece here by this stand early this morning, but, as I said before, I'll be honest."

"A $20 piece—pick up!" he whispered, bringing a bland smile to his face.

"I suppose," he continued, "that someone passing along here could have dropped it, but it seems more reasonable to think that the money was lost by you."

"Don't talk quite so loud." he said as he leaned over the stand. "You are an honest man, and I'll have your name put in the papers so that all may know it. I am a hard working oyster dealer, and if you hadn't brought back that money, it would have gone hard with my poor little children."

"If I pick up money by a stand, I always give it up," he said, as he sat down on one of the stools.

"That's right—that's honest," he whispered. "Draw right up here and have some breakfast."

He needed no second invitation. The way he went for cold ham, fried sausage, hot biscuit and coffee was terrific to the man.

"Yes—I—um—try—to—be—yonest," he remarked between bites.

"That's right. If I found any money belonging to you I'd give it up, you bet. Have another cup of coffee?"

"Don't—care—fidoo," he said, as he jammed more ham into his mouth.

Even courtships have an ending. The old chap finally began to breathe like a foundered horse, and pretty soon after that he rose from the table.

"You are a good man to bring my lost money back," said the man, as he brushed away the crumbs.

"Oh, I'm honest," he replied; "when I find any lost money, I always give it up."

"Well, I'll take it now, please," he said, as he began to button his coat.

"Take what?" he asked.

"That lost money you found."

"I didn't find any! I'll be honest with you, however, if I ever do find any around here."

"You old liar! Didn't you say you found a $20 gold piece here?"

"No, sir, I said that no one saw me pick up such a coin here."

"Pay me for them pervisions!" he yelled clutching at his throat.

"I'll be honest with you—I haven't a cent," he replied, as he held him off.

The proprietor tried to tip him over into a barrel of shells, but he broke loose, and was a block away, and galloping along like a stage horse.

Patriotic Devotion.

"How could you have the conscience to give forty thousand pounds in that seduction case?" was the question put to the foreman of the jury who tried the celebrated Bandon issue, where the defendant was an English peer. "Begorra, it was a fine thing to bring all that money into Ireland!" was the answer. And against such patriotic devotion what is to be said?

A WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

As a healer of disease, Dr. D. Percy, the eminent London physician and astrologer, has achieved a reputation somewhat remarkable during the short time he has stopped in this city. Hundreds have visited him and to every one his wonderful skill has been attested by actual cures performed, some almost miraculous. On account of other pressing engagements, the doctor can offer his services but a short time longer to the people upon this, his only visit to our city. We advise all sufferers to call upon him at once. He gives no drugs or medicines of any description, and first of all, guarantees satisfaction every time. His health examinations are free to all, which includes your disease and all its symptoms, which he describes without asking a question. Dr. Percy may be found at those elegant apartmen[illegible] formerly occupied by Miss Clara Morris, No. [illegible] Kearny street. Entrance, Room 11, where he will consult all visitors whether upon business or not. D

Three Beaux to her String.

A good looking servant girl of Winnepeg, says the Toronto Theatre, had three beaux to her string, viz: a military man, a policeman and an ordinary white man. She had arranged matters so that separate evenings were set aside for each of the ardent young suitors, and the three different courses of love ran quite smoothly. One unlucky evening, however, all three suitors chanced to drop in one after another. An interval of very desultory conversation and embarrassing pauses was terminated by the pattering of a female foot on the stairs. "Here's missis, exclaimed the girl, and the three gentlemen bolted into three several adjoining rooms, and all was supposed to be well. But "the missis," happened to want something in the room where the ordinary citizen was, and she encountered Mr. Citizen right there, "What are you doing here? what do you mean by being in this room?" indignantly inquired the missis, and she superadded the threat, "I'll send for the police!" Mr. Citizen calmly pointed to another door, and remarked, "If you want the police, he is in there." The missis flew to the other door; found the policeman, and poured out the second vial of wrath upon him, thus: "You're a nice policeman, ain't you?" What do you mean by this conduct? I declare I will send for the military!" "Madam," retorted the policeman, "nothing is easier; if you want the military you will find him in there," pointing to the third door. Military didn't wait to be unearthed; he promptly came forth and saluted. There was a slight scream and a pattering of the female ascending foot on the stairway. The three suitors came away without the usual ceremonies at the gate.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatregoers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. There is only one exception, that is, at the elegantly appointed saloon of Schroder & Greene, No. 330 Bush street, above the Opera House, where a splendid hot lunch is served nightly to their numerous customers, from 7 to 12 P. YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Opera House.

The first part deals largely in diminutives this week, Davis song "The Little Ones at home," Fred Walz singing "Little Robin tell Kitty," and Tyrell's song being 'The Little one that died." There is nothing, however, diminutive about the audiences which continue large every night.

Maguire's New Theatre—Herrmann.

The magical seances now being held here by Professor Herrmann, include the best of all that he gave during his previous engagements. His fair assistant, Mlle. Addie, still assists him by her deftness and the entertainment by her presence. Hermann will appear this and to-morrow evening and to morrow afternoon.

California Theatre.

Last night was the last night for "Our Boys." This evening, Miss Bella Pateman, the leading lady of the company, who is as popular as she is talented, will have a benefit when "The Two Orphans" will be specially revived with the beneficiare and Miss Ellie Wilton as Henriette and Louise. Miss Harrison will appear in her specialties, and the green curtain will be rung down on the curse scene in "Leah." In "The Two Orphans" Mrs. Judah will make her first re-appearance since her severe indisposition, now a matter of four months ago. "Our Boys" for the last time to-morrow afternoon.

Grand German and Italian Opera.

"Robert le Diable" will be repeated this evening for the last time, with the same cast as that of its previous presentations, which includes Madame Fabbri as Alice, Mlle. Elzer as Isabella, Hablemann as Robert, Formes as Bertram and Miss Amy Bennett as Helene. Sunday evening, "Marriage of Figaro."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

This evening, Harry Senate receives a benefit, when the bill will include many new attractions. The double song and dance by Miss St. Leon and Sammy Swain is very neatly done. The sensation entitled "Virginia City," made a great hit last night.

New Lyceum Theatre.

To-morrow evening, Miss Louise Summers makes her first appearance, whilst to-night, Wretland in his Lancashire Clog; Fonteneau in his specialties with the act "Bad Whisky," are some of the features of the bill.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Fred Williams, the great Dutch comique, made his first appearance here last night and was well received, Hughey Robinson, Charley Nickerson, and Miss Eliza Harrington are all on the bill for to-night.

Promenade Concert.

This (Friday) evening, the First Infantry Regiment of the National Guard of California will give a promenade concert at Union Hall, after which a programme of dances will be in order.

Woodward's Gardens.

Among the new features for this week are Mrs. C. A. Woodroffe, of the world renowned Bohemian Troupe of Glass Blowers, who operates every day; Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner song; Sen Gonzales, the greatest living tumbler; Miss Mathews the facinating danseuse; the three acrobats, the laughable pantomime, the variety and gymnastic troupe and concert Saturday and Sunday.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Open every morning from 10 to 12, every afternoon from 2 to 4½; Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings from 8 to 10.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody, of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Seore at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

TIME TO ME.

Time to me this truth hath taught,
'Tis a truth that's worth revealing;
More offend from want of thought,
Than from want of feeling.

If advice we would convey,
There's a time we should convey it;
If we've but a word to say,
There's a time in which to say it.

Many a beauteous flower decays,
Though we tend it e'er so much,
Something secret on it preys,
Which no human aid can touch.

So, in many a loving breast,
Lies some canker-grief concealed,
That, if touched, is more oppressed,
Left unto itself—is healed!

Oft, unknowingly, the tongue
Touches on a chord so aching,
That a word, or accent wrong,
Pains the heart almost to breaking.

Many a tear of wounded pride,
Many a fault of human blindness,
Has been soothed, or turned aside,
By a quiet voice of kindness.

Time to me this truth hath taught,
'Tis a truth that's worth revealing;
More offend from want of thought,
Than from want of feeling.

Funny Memoranda.

A neighbor found a slip of paper the other day which, from the following memoranda penciled on the sheet, would seem to idicate a laudible desire on the part of some German Bible reader to become familiar with leading biblical personages and events by noting in abstract for the purpose of memorizing:

We find it oud by der bood dot Adam, (I forgot his oder name) vas de firstest man.

Eve vos der nexed. Von day dey got trubbled erboud eading some gwinces, und vos kicked oud of der garden.

In Front of the Gate.

They were standing in front of her gate, having just returned from a dance. His right arm was occupied in holding her up, while his shoulder furnished a resting place for her little head. And they were watching the bright and glorious moon. It was the same old moon which had looked down on so many similar scenes, but somehow it had a different appearance to-night. It influenced the young man to such a degree that he said: "With what refulgence does bright Luna shed her rays upon all inanimate creation, weaving weird, fantastic shadows among the leafless trees, and spreading a silver glory over all. Do you observe the magnificent effect, Mamie?" "Yes indeed Henry," she returned: "and did you see that Jen Clemens at the dance. She had on her last winter's dress, made over; and she's worn that blue waist ever since I can remember. I never saw such a looking thing." Henry gasped.

DR. McBRIDE.

What the editor of the Stockton Independent says of Dr. McBride and his World's Relief: This skillful practitioner and very popular gentleman has spent the week in this city introducing a medicine which possesses wonderful potency in curing pain. It is called "World's Relief," and is properly named, for in every case of physical suffering which has come under Dr. McBride's observation and treatment, relief is almost instantaneous. The great secret of success in the medical, as well as in other professions, is to know exactly what to do and how to do it. The close, searching, keen discrimination requisite in distinguishing and determining the nature and character of diseases and their symptoms, is an indispensable characteristic of the first-class physician, and to Dr. McBride's wonderful diagnostic ability is in the main to be attributed his miraculous success in curing pain, no matter from what cause arising. Such men are benefactors to their race. D

MISS MORRIS AS LEAH.

The following criticism is from the N. Y. Spirit of the Times: "Call you a rose by any other name, it smells as sweet a flower," and so call Mosenthall's "Deborah," "Leah," "Esther," "Jezabel," "Kerenhabuc," "Kezia," "Jemima," or by any other Jewish name, it will always be the same old play of "Deborah," with this difference, that Mr. Augustin Daly's alterations are no improvement on the original. On the contrary, the poverty of the dialogue of this English version of the play, is manifest. It is about as noble and inspiring, except here and there, the curse scene, for instance, as a chapter in Ollendorf's Grammar. What there was new in the play to call it "The New Leah" we could not find out, except, of course, that Miss Morris is new to the part. "The New Leah" is the old "Leah" with new scenery, and poor at that. The spirit and the gloom of the old drama are preserved in the new play, and its latest title is only a snare and a delusion. We cannot say that Miss Morris has added to her reputation by her performance of Esther, since so she calls Deborah. It was evident, from first to last, that she had not the power to go through with the part with the strength it requires. Her entry was effective enough, and the picture she drew of the crouching, frightened Jewish woman was fine; but her costume was ungainly and inelegant. She wore a long white shift-like garment, a waterproof cloak, and a snuff-colored turban. She had darkened her face, and assumed black hair. As the play proceeded, she showed her defects of style more and more. Wherever Janauschek was great, Miss Morris was small. The scene of the first act, with its beautiful soliloquy to the moon, was well delivered, but the meeting of Joseph and Esther was singularly modern in style. It was uttered in the same tones, and accompanied by the self-same jestures, as used by Miss Morris, as Blanche or Camille. No repose, no grandeur, no dignity could we discover in anything she did. All was modern, French society playish, from beginning to end. It was Mlle. Camille Gauthier acting Leah, about as well as she played Lady Macbeth, a year ago. The famous curse was so cut up by the actress' moving about, instead of remaining still in a noble attitude to deliver it, as do Janauschek and Ristori, that many imagined it had been cut out altogether. In the last, Miss Morris' failure to carry out the intention of the poet—not Mr. Daly, but Mosenthal — was absolutely painful. She never once showed the possession of the least trace of poetic feeling or imagination. She is naturally too realistic to be grand and noble, and, there fore, ought never to have essayed a character like Esther (Deborah). She is too much the creature of nervous impulse to restrain herself, and to be almost preternaturally lofty and dignified, as was Janauschek, for whom, by the way, the play was originally written. Mr. Daly could not have possibly done Miss Morris a worse turn than to have re-introduced her to us in this somewhat worn-out melodrama.

The Story-Teller Outdone.

Those who are in the habit of telling prodigious stories ought to have good memories; but, fortunately, their memories are generally short. Richard Brinsley Sheridan dealt with these mendacious pests in a manner peculiar to himself. He would never allow himself to be outdone by a verbal prodigy. Whenever a monstrous story was told in his presence, he would endeavor to outdo it by one of his own coinage, and consign the narrator to confusion by a falsehood more glaring than his own. Once in his hearing a sporting adventurer ran thus: "I was fishing one day, in a certain cold spring full of delicious trout, and soon caught a large mess. But what was really surprising, not a foot from the cold spring there was one of boiling water; so that, when you wanted to cook your fish, all you had to do, after hooking them from the cold spring, was to pop them directly into the boiling." The company all expressed astonishment and incredulity at this monstrous assertion, with the exception of Sheridan. "I know," said he, "of a phenomenon yet more surprising: "I was fishing one day, when I came to a place where there were three springs. The first was a cold one stocked with fish, the second a boiling spring, and the third a natural fountain of melted butter and parsley!" "Melted butter and parsley!" exclaimed the first story-teller, "impossible!"

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

Mr. H. J. Montague gives as a pretext for rushing into print in regard to the Belmore funeral, that a "meddlesome idiot" has been perverting the truth concerning it. He gives the sum collected among several English members of the profession in this city as $455, and the expenses as: Uundertaker's bill, $225 75; Mr Colville, for incidentals, $31 76; Dr Brady's bill for three months, $75; Dr Wynkoop, $15; and a present to Mrs. Byrne, the faithful nurse to Mr Belmore, $100; leaving $4 49 on hand, to which sufficient has been added to buy a tomb-their business manager, Mr John P Smith, to give stone. The Vokes Family gave $150, authorizing any further sum necessary. Mr. Fred Vokes intends, on his arrival in England, initiating a subscription towards a monument for the deceased.

Darling's Opera House will be known hereafter as the Twenty Third Street Theatre, and will reopen shortly with a comedy company.

The following figures were given by the treasurers of the various theatres in this city as their Thanksgiving receipts in round numbers: Hipprodrome, matinee, $4,500; evening, $5,600. Booth's Theatre, matinee, $1,950; evening, $2,000. Grand Opera House, matinee, $1,100; evening, $1,400. Park Theatre, matinee, $950; evening, $1,450. Fifth Avenue Theatre, matinee, $300; evening, $1,600. Union Square Theatre, matinee, $1,332; evening, $1,829. Lyceum, matinee, $600; evening, $900. Comique, matinee, $500; evening, $700. Eagle, matinee, $700; evening, $1,500. Wood's Museum, two matinees, $900; evening, $900. Bowery, matinee, $600; evening, $1,200. Wallack's, matinee, $900; evening, $1,800. Globe Theatre, matinee, $400; evening, $650. Tony Pastor's, matinee, $400; evening, $690. Wachtel Opera, evening, $2,700. Colosseum, $2,700, during the day. Olympic, matinee, $900; evening, $1,300. Third Avenue, matinee, $200; evening, $205. Steinway Hall, matinee, $1,000; evening, $1,050. Stadt Theatre, matinee, $700; evening, $1,100. San Francisco Minstrels, matinee, $450; evening, $800. Parisian Varieties, matinee, $200; evening, $350.

Mr. Sothern has been engaged by Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer to play at Booth's Theatre early in March. He is now starring in English provinces.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams, are engaged to appear for twelve nights in Booth's Theatre, beginning on Monday next, Dedember 12th, and including Christmas. The unexpected close of Mr. Fox's engagement placed Jarrett & Palmer at a disadvantage. Fortunately, they secured the "Irish Boy and Yankee Girl," to fill up the gap; but it is rumored that the inducement held out to bring Barney from his retirement was the offer of $500 a performance.

"Julius Cæsar" is to be produced at Booth's Theatre, Dec. 27—one week earlier than originally in-[illegible]

On Monday evening, Dec. 6th, Mr. F. S. Chanfrau produced at Wood's Museum, for the first time, his entirely new American sensation drama, entitled "Rube; or, The Wall Street Undertow."

Mr. Augustin Daly's new American drama, "Pique," will be produced at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Monday, Dec. 13th.

The Prince Leo case has not been settled yet. A gentleman has offered to adopt the acrobatic juvenile, in case the Supreme Court adjudges against his retention by Leonard.

The following companies will leave New York in January: George Fawcett Rowe in "Little Emily;" Mr. and Mrs. Florence in "The Mighty Dollar," and a company from the Union Square Theatre, in "Led Astray."

Sam Devine, minstrel, whose real name was William Hanlon, died of consumption in this city, 20th. His funeral took place from 237 Bowery, 22d

Not only will Mr. A. Oakey Hall appear in his own play of "The Crucible," at the Park Theatre, but his two daughters are announced to appear. Mr. John Dillon will also make his first appearance in Oakey Hall's new play. Has the title anything to do with what he will have to undergo at the hands of the critics?

It is said that P. B. Sweeney, W. M. Tweed, Slippery Dick, Andy Garvey, J. H. Ingersoll, Tom Coman, and other notables are about to enter the dramatic profession. They have already distinguished themselves in the "Ring."

Dr. Von Bulow's Concerts at Chickering Hall were a complete success, the season, ending on the 4th.

"Rose Michel," at the Union Square Theatre, is the talk of the town. This drama, as is well-known, has been the subject of much severe litigation, and like most dramas that find their way into the courts of law, has proven well worth fighting for. Originally written by the French dramatist, Ernest Blum, the preparation of an English form was entrusted to Mr. James Steele Mackaye, who has given positive demonstration of his rare ability as an adaptor and constructor of dramatic situations and effects. The play as given us by Mr. Mackaye differs materially from that of Blum, and is in every way an improvement. A more effective or simpl told story has seldom been related in dramatic form. There is not a scene of the play that does not sustain thoroughly its own interest, and there is not a scene that is not in itself a surprise. The cast includes Miss Rose Eytinge as Rose Michel, J. H. Stoddard as Pierre Michel, Charles Thorne as the Count de Vernay, Frederick Robinson as the Baron de Belivie, Eben Plympton as Andire, Miss Fanny Morant as the Countess de Ve[illegible] and Miss Nina Varian (her first appearance) [illegible] Louise

"Caste" still at Wallack's, with Harry Beckett as Eccles, in place of Geo Honey.

Of Miss Morris' failure as Deborah in Daly's patched "New Leah," we have spoken at length during the week. "Our Boys" was put on in its place.

In consequence of an accident to Mr. Fechter, his appearance at the Lyceum in "L'Abime" ("No Thoroughfare," was postponed until the 2d.

On Friday, the 3d, "The Mighty Dollar" reached its 80th performance when Mrs W. J. Florence had a benefit. This will bring its hundredth performance to the 23d

O. B. Collins and Miss Kate Raymond, began a season at the Bowery on the 30th ult, in "Roughing It."

Variety and Minstrel entertainments as usual at the Theatre Comique, Wood's Museum, Tony Pastor's, Eagle Theatre, Tivoli, and San Francisco Minstrels.

The second season of German opera began at the Academy on the 1st, with the performance of "Lohengrin."

Mr. Paxson, nautical engineer at the Academy of Music in New York, on the first night of the production of "Around the World in Eighty Days," by the Kiralfy Bros., Combination, found a steam whistle pipe clogged. He blew into it and a quantity of steam rushed upon the right side of his face, causing inflammation. Singular to say, the right side of his black moustache has since been entirely white.

Mr. Oliver Doud Byron has commenced an engagement at Mrs. John Drew's Arch Street Theatre with his irrepressible "Across the Continent."

Miss Millie Wyatt, a member of the Metropolitan Company, St. Joe, Mo., committed suicide on the 18th Nov and was buried by her comrades in the German cemetary without religious rites. It appears that the Christian (?) managers of St. Joe refused to pray for the soul of a ballet girl. Comment is unnecessary. Should we not cease to send missionaries to savage countries, St. Joe offering a superior field for their labors.

It is a lamentable fact, but one that cannot be denied, that the amusement season in Chicago, has so far been anything but a success. Slim houses have been the rule rather the exception, and slim purses are almost sure to follow.

The N. Y. Tribune, says Mr. Fred Young was the original D'Alroy in "Caste," and that he was killed in a railway accident, on Jan. 4th, 1867. We will once again set the Tribune right. "Caste" was originally produced on any stage at the Prince of Wales Theatre, London, Eng., on April 6th, 1867. Mr. Fred Young being the original D'Alroy. After a few weeks, Mr. Young started on a provincial tour with the play, his place in London being taken by Mr. H. J. Montague. Mr. Young was not killed until the Fall of 1868.

The Young Man from the East.

" Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy resteration of the genito-urinary organs.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The weather being propitious, and the tide of popular favor being set towards Miss Pateman, her benefit last night was an immense affair. It is said that the receipts will reach $2,000. With the exception of the two characters—Henriette by the beneficiare, and Louise by Miss Ellie Wilton—the cast of "The Two Orphans" was the same as at its previous presentations. Mrs. Judah's reception was one which proved how dear she is to the public. The bill also contained Miss Harrison in her clever impersonations, and concluded with the Curse scene from "Leah," with Miss Pateman as the Jewess. "Our Boys" will be given by general request this afternoon, and "The Two Orphans" this evening.

OPERA HOUSE.—The songs of Walz, Tyrell, Russell and Davis in the first part are well worthy of remark whilst in the choruses, the full bass voice of J. M. Norcross lays in a capital substratum foundation to the harmony. "The Centennial Celebration," "The Skidmore Guards" and the various acts make up a programme of exceptional attractiveness.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The Oriflamme sails unexpectedly for Oregon this afternoon at 4 o'clock instead of to-morrow morning, and as Prof. Hermann sails with her, there will be no magical seance this afternoon or evening.

GRAND GERMAN AND ITALIAN OPERA.—"Robert le Diable" drew another large and fashionable house last night, Mme. Fabbri, Mlle. Elser, Herr. Formes and Herr Habelmann, taking the principal parts. To-morrow evening the season will conclude with the presentation of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro."

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—The new acts for this and to-morrow night are 'Alike as Two Peas," "Laughing Gas," "Banjo Act,' The sensation of "Virginia City; or, Above and Below Ground," with Miss Kitty Leroy as Nobby Nocker, concluded the bill.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—Fred Williams, the great Dutch comique, made his first appearance here last night and was an immense success. The first part concluded with a new sensation walk-around and the second part is first-class.

THE NEW LYCEUM THEATRE.—Miss Louise Summers makes her first appearance to-night and on Wednesday evening, Harry Howard and T. Luther, late of the Luther Æolians will make their bow. The bill for to-night is simply immense.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Attractions.—Among the new features for this week are Mrs. C. A. Woodroffe, of the world renowned Bohemian Troupe of Glass Blowers, who operates every day; Miss Emma Cooper in her Banner song; Sen Gonzalee, the greatest living tumbler; Miss Mathews the facinating dansense; the three acrobats, the laughable pantomime, the variety and gymnastic troupe and concert Saturday and Sunday.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody, of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if those who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. The Green Room.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

News from England informs us that Miss Jennie Lee, at the close of her successful engagement at Liverpool in "Joe," was engaged by Mr. W. Holland for the hero, Jack the Giant Killer, in the great Xmas pantomime of that name, to be put on at the Surrey Theatre.

For some months Manager Wilson has had it in his mind to send a circus company to Australia, and on Friday a troupe consisting of about thirty people and several animals, left for the Southern Isles under charge of Omar Kingsley. Mr Wilson purposed following by the January steamer, or as soon after the completion of the Palace Theatre as he found it convenient, but changed his mind and went on the same steamer.

Mr. John McCullough opened at Washington on the 29th ult., closing his season on the 4th of this month.

Welch and Rice are at the Arch Street Opera House, Philadelphia.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett closed a two-weeks' engagement at New Orleans on the 4th.

Several New York papers declare that Rignold is coming to California with "Henry V," and we suppose it must be so.

Especially as we learn that Miss Ida Yerance formerly of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, is now playing in San Francisco (!).

On Saturday night next, Dec. 18th, the Palace Theatre, will be opened to the public, with a popular melodrama and specialty company, under the Management of Charles Thorne, Sr. Those who remember this commodious place of entertainment as a circus, will be wonderfully surprised at the complete transformation that has taken place. It is now a convenient, handsome theatre, with good seats for nearly twelve hundred people The opening piece will be the melodrama, "Gaspado; or, the Three Banished Men of Milan."

Signora Marie Palmieri is determined not to leave the city without giving San Franciscans an opportunity of judging her merits. Whether she will take the Sunday nights at Wade's Opera House when the spectacle season is over, or whether she take the position of prima donna to a combination troupe of the Fabbri artists, and sings in the Theatre on Bush street, we do not yet exactly know, but it is decided that she does not go East without playing "Norma."

The frescoing at the New Theatre on Market street, will commence under the supervision of Senor Gariboldi, next week, and the theatre will be ready for the reception of the public by Jan. 1st; but whether it will be opened then or in February on the arrival of a favorite opera bouffe prima donna, has not yet been decided.

News from the diamond mines. Millie de Granville is at the Globe, N. Y.

Hackett as Falstaff, was an original inflationist. He invented a rubber lined dress to wear when representing the fat knight, and inflated himself with bellows-blown wind. One evening, while the Knight was on the stage, the valve turned, and all that was corpulent about his dress vanished into thin air, accidentally leaving Mr. Hackett a comparatively poor man, much to his discomfiture and the amusement of the audience.

The time of our seeing Mr. and Mrs. Florence and "The Mighty Dollar" seems still uncertain, as they propose organizing a company at the close of their New York engagement and traveling through the country.

Great preparations are being made for the complete presentation of the Xmas spectacle at the California Theatre. "The Devil and Dr. Faustus" has one great advantage over most spectacles, it has music of its own and that too by so eminent a composer as Sir Henry Bishop. The choruses are said to be all good and some of them beautiful. The scenery will be a good proof of what Mr. W. T. Porter is able to do. Mechanics are at work on the stage effects, a ballet has been organized, and a splendid troupe of specialty artists has been engaged from New York, including amongst their number the wonderful Leona Dare.

On Wednesday next, Mr. William Horace Lingard and Miss Emmie Dunning, will commence a short season at the California Theatre. They will open bravely with the first presentation in America of Henry J. Byron's latest comedy entitled "Married in Haste," now running at the Haymarket Theatre, London. W. T. Gilbert's comedies of "Sweethearts" and "The Wedding March," will also be put on. And lastly, a comic opera by Arthur Sullivan, entitled "I Ladroni," will be presented, in which Miss Emmie Dunning will make her first appearance. It was proposed to commence the season on Monday, but detention of the stars en route necessitates a postponement.

On Monday the 20th, Mr. Joseph Murphy starts out for an interior tour by way of Stockton, and Humboldt county.

The Baltimore Bulletin speaks of Mr. McCullough's acting during his recently concluded season in that city: "Mr. McCullough's acting, impresses us with the fact that the careful study to which he compels himself and the assiduous culture to which he subjects his voice are producing remarkable changes. We find a greater grace in his gestures and carriage, in his method more self-repression and restraint of conscious power; and in his voice a greater delicacy of modulation and depth of expression. Comparing different periods of Mr. McCullough's career as it has come under our observation, and recognizing his present power and acquirements as an artist, we cannot refrain from regarding him as the coming American tragedian. It is apparent to us that Mr. Boucicault's opinion of him was a just and well conceived one—that he would, with health and good fortune, take rank as the leading tragedian of America.

At the amateur representation of "Pepita," in Sacramento, a few nights ago, there was enacted a duel scene between a Mr. S. C. Scoville, and a Mr. J. G. Chesley, and in the fight there were a pair of sharp pointed swords, instead of the regular stage combat weapons. As Scoville was supposed to be worsted, Chesley gave a lunge at the appointed time but instead of harmlessly passing the person of the former the sharp blade pierced his right thigh and made quite a cut. Mr. Scoville did not pay any attention to the wound at the time and the performance went on as if nothing had happened. In returning home the hurt began to be a little troublesome, and this morning it was discovered that the weapon had passed entirely through the fleshy part of the thigh.

On the 30th Nov., the Piper Opera House Troupe gave "Under the Gaslight," at Grass Valley. Since then we have heard no more concerning the whereabouts of the company.

On Monday last, "Richard III," was given at the Santa Clara College Theatre, the characters being taken by the collegians, one John T. Malone, playing Gloster.

The Maguire Comedy Company opened at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, on Tuesday evening in "The Overland Route." The business was good and has continued so all during the week.

Indefatigable Frank Morse has succeeded in getting enough subscriptions in and around Portland, to warrant him in telegraphing to Mr. Bianchi of this city to engage and forward sufficient talent to carry out the season, which will, if possible, be begun on the 10th. Miss Fanny Marston is, of course, to be the prima donna.

A company entitled "The Lenton Ware Combination" has been playing to good business in Salt Lake. We expect the troupe to come on here

How Sherry Corbyn will be disappointed. In a letter dated Portland, Dec. 2d, from him yesterday, he speaks of having completed his preparations for the advent of Hermann, who was to make his first appearance on the 10th, which was yesterday.

A Boston paper of the 21st ult., says: "An incident of a rare character occurred at the final performance of Colonel Sellers by Mr. Raymond at the Globe, last evening, reflecting great credit on the talent of a member of the company. Mr. Raymond received a dispatch during the performance stating that the illness of his wife in Brooklyn necessitated his immediate presence there. In consequence he was obliged to leave in order to take the 9.30 train, and Mr. H. S. Murdoch was announced to the audience as a substitute during the rest of the performane. Mr. Murdoch filled the part in a manner which, considering the suddenness of the call and the singular faithfulness of his performance, can only be characterized as wonderful. We trust that this adjective will not be considered extravagant, when we say that old theatre-goers, who had witnessed the performance many times, could not detect the change. As a piece of acting alone, Mr. Murdoch's performance was entitled to great credit; as an imitation it, of course, deserved much more; but as one taken almost on the spur of the moment, it was one of the cleverest things that has been done on a Boston stage. Mr. Murdoch's readiness and versatility are, to say the least, remarkable.

Next week, double sets of workmen will be employed at Wade's Opera House, and work will be driven forward night and day. The gorgeous chandelier, which is to be one of the sights of the theatre, will be put in position early next week, and a general illumination is spoken of, to which members of the press will be invited.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

A Popular Requirement.

During these cold and wet nights theatregoers, before going home, naturally crave a good hot drink, in some cosy saloon, but when they turn to the lunch table nothing but the cold remains of a meagre lunch meets the eye. Origins.

While it must be anything but pleasant to be a sensitive person who means well to be called a humbug, it is considered a mark of honor to be called a "brick." In fact there is no way in which we can so decidedly and unequivocally express our approbation of a man as to say "he's a brick.' Perhaps it may be a surprise to many to learn that this phrase, which is regarded by the mass as an American vulgarism, is of classic origin. Yet such is the case. An envoy from Epirus to King Agesilaus asked him where were the walls of Sparta. Casting his glance to a plain not far distant, where his armies were marching in review, and with a majestic wave of the hand, the king made answer, "There are the walls of Sparta, for every man's a brick." What reply could he have rendered that would have been more forcible or that would have conveyed to the mind of the envoy the idea of the invincible prowess of the Spartan soldiery? Our only regret is that at the present time the appellation is less meritoriously applied than on that memorable occasion.

Most Americans have read the history of the mirth-provoking adventures of Don Quixote de la Mancha, and have laughed at the unlucky adventures of his attendant, Sancho Panza. But only a small minority of the number are aware that Cervantes so named the squire because of his personal peculiarites—his very small legs and a redundancy of stomach—the words sancho panza meaning, in Spanish, spindle shanks and paunch, All will doubtless remember that the "knight of the sorry figure" is said to have been called by some Quixoda, which, rendered into English, reads "lantern-jaws."

We often cry "humbug" in these days of sham and make-believes, when humbugs seem to pay better than anything else. Authorities differ as to the origin of this expressive term, some claiming that it was first applied to a drone bee, which kept up a noisy humming, but gathered no honey; but as these claimants are unable to give the name of the person who first used the word, or even to assert with any show of proof that it was so applied, we are obliged to give preference to the claim of other parties who assure us that the term is a corruption of two Irish words uim bog. These words are pronounced "oombug," and were first applied, in the sense in which we now use humbug, to worthless money coined at the Dublin mint by James II. This money was made of such base metal that a pound of it was only worth two pence in genuine coin. In its more general signification the term was applied to pewter, brass, zinc, and other valueless mineral products. From being used as a distinguishing name for base or counterfeit money, it afterwards came to be applied to shams and counterfeits of all kinds; and to-day it is one of the handiest, because one of the most expressive words in our language.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
T[illegible] their EASTERN OYSTERS
A[illegible] drink their Rhenish hock."

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

Signor Rossi has made a great success in Paris as King Lear. Lucy Hooper says that it is not a personation to be analyzed or even applauded; it sinks too deep into the heart to be coldly taken possession of by the judgment. The best tribute that we can give it was proffered by the eyes of half the audience the other night—a passion of unrestrainable tears.

John Oxenford has retired from the post of dramatic critic of the London Times, and has been succeeded by F. W. Hawkins.

The directors of the Paris Porte St. Martin Theatre and the author of Le Tour du Monde en 80 Jours, gave a grand breakfast at the Grand Hotel, to celebrate the 365th performance of the piece. Even the elephant was not forgotten, as he made his entry with M'lle Dica-Petit on his back at the dessert and walked round the table, appearing to relish immensely the sweetmeats with which he was regaled.

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

"Oh, give your mouth a rest," is one of the most beautiful of classical quotations; but when slung at a pulpit orator exhorting sinners to repentance, as was recently the case in an Iowa town, it sounds ducedly improper.

The impression that a man named Guibord died recently, in Canada, seems to be gradually deepening into a positive belief.

When a physician deserts his profession for the pulpit, the inference is that he can preach better than he can practice.

As nearly as we can judge from the playing of the two amateurs near this office, there is little or no difference in the music of a French horn and a cornet. They are both equally damnable.

A St. Louis paper announces that Mr. Hazard, "a large iron man," is at one of the hotels.

It is not the correct thing for a gentleman to wink at a lady. It is always the lady's place to wink first.

A Morrisania deacon is puzzling his brains at present to understand how a foundling left on his doorstep a few days ago, should have come there wrapped up in a religious newspaper.

School-master—"What's the meaning of apparent, boy?"

Boy — "Your mother, sir, or the old man."

Jefferson in England.

Kate Field writes from London to the N. Y Tribune respecting Jefferson's performance in that city this season: The house was excellent, the critics were in their places, the royal box was occupied, the first-night gallery good-humoredly addressed remarks, complimentary and otherwise, to distant acquaintances in the pit, and I began to be nervous, for I am a very nervous woman. Never were nerves so entirely thrown away for if Mr. Jefferson had selected his audience from among his many friends all over the world, he could not have had a greater "ovation" than greeted him on his entrance. Jefferson forgotten? Not a bit of it. "I've come here," said a distinguished surgeon, "to renew my recolections of ten years ago, when I first saw Rip Van Winkle." I really thought gallery and pit and stalls would never stop applauding, but they did at last permit Jefferson to open his mouth, and the entire audience wore a smile. Jefferson's song was encored; he was recalled after his first scene, brought before the curtain at the conclusion of the first and third acts, and, from the beginning to the end of Boucicault's clever drama, was treated with as much demonstrative regard as his best friends could wish. He is the success he deserves to be, the critics cry "bravo," and every seat is sold for to-night.

YOUNG MEN
Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.
Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500
For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!
There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Opera House.

There are several new features on the bill for this evening including Billy Emerson in his budget of fun, the act "I Don't Know What I'm Doin'." Tom and Jerry" by Welch and Sutton, a ballad by Tyrrell and a new song by Ernest Linden. In the first act, too, there are several new songs, whilst Mackin and Wilson repeat their original song of "Charming Little Susie" and the "Centenial Celebration" and the "Skidmore Guards" are still retained.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Manager Maguire has his eyes open for popular attractions, and the announcement that a new season of Italian Opera by the Fabbri Company, is to be commenced at this theatre under his management, is another instance thereof. The opening is fixed for to-morrow night, when "Fidelio" will be presented. "Der Freichutz" will be given on Thursday, and "La Juive" for the first time in San Francisco on Saturday.

California Theatre.

In consequence of a detention en route, and the consequent inability to obtain thorough rehearsals of "Married in Haste" with William Horace Lingard, it has been decided by the management of this theatre to postpone the commencement of the Lingard engagement and continue the presentation of "The Two Orphans" this and to-morrow nights

Wade's Opera House.

Quite a number of the artists engaged in New York, for Manager Bert's forthcoming season, will arrive by the Overland train to-night. The present invoice consists of Mlle. Eugenie Lupo and Mlle. Cora Adriana premieres danseuses; Mme. Adriana, Miss Winnetta Montague and Miss A. Thornton, actresses; Mons. Zavistowski principal dancer and allet master; and Miss Alice Richards, Signorita Christine, Mlle. Betta, Miss Julia Lachmae and Miss Sallie Ross. M'le. Cora Adriana is celebrated for her personal beauty as well as for her terpsichrean skill, and Miss Wiennetta Montague also possesses, in addition to professional merit, rare personal attractions. Of the new company more anon.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

On Saturday night next, Dec. 18th, the Palace Theatre, will be opened to the public, with a popular melodrama and specialty company, under the Management of Charles Thorne, Sr. Those who remember this commodious place of entertainment as a circus, will be wonderfully surprised at the complete transformation that has taken place. It is now a convenient, handsome theatre, with good seats for nearly twelve hundred people. The opening piece will be the melodrama, "Gaspado; or, the Three Banished Men of Milan." The list of the company is as follows: C. R. Thorne, Senior, J. A. Sawtelle, J. H. Leroy, G. W. Marsh, Nat. Cohen, D. Belasco, Frank Rea, Howard, Crowell, Foster from Salt Lake, R. Cox, Barrows, Jake Wallace, Charles Mestayer, Kate Denin, Mrs. Laura Stevenson, McCabe Sisters, Emily Denin, Miss Kingsbury, Nellie Firmin, Mrs. Rea, Lulu Wilson, and Minnie Cowen,

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"The Gigantic Four," the latest sensation, will be given here to-night. Fred Williams will appear in his German warblings; Charley Nickerson in his Eccentricities, and Lon Dixon in song and dance. "Mazeppa" concludes the bill.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Cherry Belle gives ten minutes of illusions, whilst the bill of "Getting Even," "Look out for Green," "the Wood Vendor,'" and "Good Day," are all on the bill, which will conclude with the original farce of "Don Paddy de Bazan."

Woodward's Gardens.

Four new faces on Saturday and Sunday; Marie Schuman the wonderful child danseuse; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Stephen Samuells, juggler, acrobat pantomimist; Dan Ducrow gymnast and acrobat, with the variety and gymnast troupe. The charming danseuse Miss Mathews and Mrs. C. A. Woodruffe, artist in glass, of the Bohemian Glass Blowers, will appear every day.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The new sensation of "Virginia City; or, Above and Below Ground," concludes a programme the fun of which is contributed to by such artists as Ned Barry, George C. Thompson Charley Kimic and Miss Kitty Leroy.

Notes.

On Wednesday next, Mr. William Horace Lingard and Miss Emmie Dunning, will commence a short season at the California Theatre. They will open bravely with the first presentation in America of Henry J. Byron's latest comedy entitled "Married in Haste," now running at the Haymarket Theatre, London. W. T. Gilbert's comedies of "Sweethearts" and "The Wedding March," will also be put on. And lastly, a comic opera by Arthur Sullivan, entitled "I Ladroni," will be presented, in which Miss Emmie Dunning will make her first appearance. It was proposed to commence the season to-day, but detention of the stars en route necessitates a postponement.

Next week, double sets of workmen will be employed at Wade's Opera House, and work will be driven forward night and day. The gorgeous chandelier, which is to be one of the sights of the theatre, will be put in position early next week, and a general illumination is spoken of, to which members of the press will be invited.

Great preparations are being made for the complete presentation of the Xmas spectacle at the California Theatre. "The Devil and Dr. Faustus" has one great advantage over most spectacles, it has music of its own and that too by so eminent a composer as Sir Henry Bishop. The choruses are said to be all good and some of them beautiful. The scenery will be a good proof of what Mr. W. T. Porter is able to do. Mechanics are at work on the stage effects, a ballet has been organized, and a splendid troupe of specialty artists has been engaged from New York, including amongst their number the wonderful Leona Dare.

Several New York papers declare that Rignold is coming to California with "Henry V," and it is so, the production of the great play taking place at the California Theatre in February.

Mr. William Horace Lingard, and Miss Emma Dunning have been engaged by Mr. Allison, for Lazar's New Theatre, Sydney, and will sail for Australia at the close of their season at the California Theatre.

The frescoing at the New Theatre on Market street, will commence under the supervision of Senor Gariboldi, next week, and the theatre will be ready for the reception of the public in January, but whether it will be opened then or in February on the arrival of a favorite opera bouffe prima donna, has not yet been decided.

News from England informs us that Miss Jennie Lee, at the close of her successful engagement at Liverpool in "Joe," was engaged by Mr. W. Holland for the hero, Jack the Giant Killer, in the great Xmas pantomime of that name, to be put on at the Surrey Theatre.

For some months Manager Wilson has had it in his mind to send a circus company to Australia, and on Friday a troupe consisting of about thirty people and several animals, left for the Southern Isles under charge of Omar Kingsley. Mr. Wilson purposed following by the January steamer, or as soon after the completion of the Palace Theatre as he found it convenient, but changed his mind and went on the same steamer.

Mr. John McCullough opened at Washington on the 29th ult., closing his season on the 4th of this month.

Welch and Rice are at the Arch Street Opera House, Philadelphia.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett closed a two-weeks' engagement at New Orleans on the 4th.
suppose it must be so.

On Monday the 20th, Mr. Joseph Murphy starts out for an interior tour by way of Stockton, and Humboldt county.

The Baltimore Bulletin speaks of Mr. McCullough's acting during his recently concluded season in that city: "Mr. McCullough's acting, impresses us with the fact that the careful study to which he compels himself and the assiduous culture to which he subjects his voice are producing remarkable changes. We find a greater grace in his gestures and carriage, in his method more self-repression and restraint of conscious power; and in his voice a greater delicacy of modulation and depth of expression. Comparing different periods of Mr. McCullough's career as it has come under our observation, and recognizing his present power and acquirements as an artist, we cannot refrain from regarding him as the coming American tragedian. It is apparent to us that Mr. Boucicault's opinion of him was a just and well conceived one—that he would, with health and good fortune, take rank as the leading tragedian of America.

A Boston paper of the 21st ult., says: "An incident of a rare character occurred at the final performance of Colonel Sellers by Mr. Raymond at the Globe, last evening, reflecting great credit on the talent of a member of the company. Mr. Raymond received a dispatch during the performance stating that the illness of his wife in Brooklyn necessitated his immediate presence there. In consequence he was obliged to leave in order to take the 9:30 train, and Mr. H. S. Murdoch was announced to the audience as a substitute during the rest of the performane. Mr. Murdoch filled the part in a manner which, considering the suddenness of the call and the singular faithfulness of his performance, can only be characterized as wonderful. We trust that this adjective will not be considered extravagant, when we say that old theatre-goers, who had witnessed the performance many times, could not detect the change. As a piece of acting alone, Mr. Murdoch's performance was entitled to great credit; as an imitation it, of course, deserved much more; but as one taken almost on the spur of the moment, it was one of the cleverest things that has been done on a Boston stage. Mr. Murdoch's readiness and versatility are, to say the least, remarkable.

At the amateur representation of "Pepita," in Sacramento, a few nights ago, there was enacted a duel scene between a Mr. E. C. Scoville, and a Mr. J. G. Chesley, and in the fight there were a pair of sharp pointed swords, instead of the regular stage combat weapons. As Scoville was supposed to be worsted, Chesley gave a lunge at the appointed time but instead of harmlessly passing the person of the former the sharp blade pierced his right thigh and made quite a cut. Mr. Scoville did not pay any attention to the wound at the time and the performance went on as if nothing had happened. In returning home the hurt began to be a little troublesome, and this morning it was discovered that the weapon had passed entirely through the fleshy part of the thigh.

On Monday last, "Richard III," was given at the Santa Clara College Theatre, the characters being taken by the collegians, one John T. Malone, playing Gloster.

The Maguire Comedy Company opened at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, on Tuesday evening in "The Overland Route." The business was good and has continued so all during the week.

Indefatigable Frank Morse has succeeded in getting enough subscriptions in and around Portland, to warrant him in telegraphing to Mr. Bianchi of this city to engage and forward sufficient talent to carry out the season, which will, if possible, be begun on the 10th. Miss Fanny Marston is, of course, to be the prima donna.

Signora Marie Palmieri is determined not to leave the city without giving San Franciscans an opportunity of judging her merits. Whether she will take the Sunday nights at Wade's Opera House when the spectacle season is over, or whether she take the position of prima donna to a combination troupe of the Fabbri artists, and sings in the Theatre on Bush street, we do not yet exactly know, but it is decided that she does not go East without playing "Norma."

E. L. Davenport, Harrisburg, 29th ult; Lancaster, Pa., 30th; Reading, Dec. 1; Norristown, 2d Wilmington, 3d; Baltimore, 4th.

Lotta was billed in Little Rock, 6th and 7th; Marshall, Texas, 8th; Houston, 10th and 11th, will be at Galveston, 13th, one week.

The Kellogg Opera Troupe sang at Pittsburg, Dec. 6th and 7th; Cincinnati, 8th to 11th; will be at St. Louis, 13th, one week.

Mr. Oliver Doud Byron has commenced an engagement at Mrs. John Drew's Arch Street Theatre with his irrepressible "Across the Continent."

Miss Millie Wyatt, a member of the Metropolitan Company, St. Joe, Mo., committed suicide on the 18th Nov. and was buried by her comrades in the German cemetary without religious rites. It appears that the Christian (?) managers of St. Joe refused to pray for the soul of a ballet girl. Comment is unnecessary. Should we not cease to send missionaries to savage countries, St. Joe offering a superior field for their labors.

It is a lamentable fact, but one that cannot be denied, that the amusement season in Chicago, has so far been anything but a success. Slim houses have been the rule rather the exception, and slim purses are almost sure to follow.

Hackett as Falstaff, was an original inflationist. He invented a rubber lined dress to wear when representing the fat knight, and inflated himself with bellows-blown wind. One evening, while the Knight was on the stage, the valve turned, and all that was corpulent about his dress vanished into thin air, accidentally leaving Mr. Hackett a comparatively poor man, much to his discomfiture and the amusement of the audience.

MUD MAULER.

Mud Mauler was an heiress, and
Put on more airs than all the folks could stand.

But she tenderly loved the Judge, though he
Was only a Judge of whis-ki-ee.

She used to smile when his manly tread
Sought for the sidewalks over his head.

But he often sighed, "Oh, warn't I a fool!"
While she combed his hair with a three-legged stool.

And she often stared in mute surprise
At the voice he had for oyster fries.

And it made him open his wondering eyes
When she got up her motion on cold mince pies.

So he sighed in the bitterness of his soul
And plunged his grief in the flowing bowl.

And she said she was awfully sick of him,
And braced her spirits with Old Tom gin.

Of all sad words that we ever wot,
The saddest are some we have done forgot.

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

Theodore Thomas would laugh had he seen a young lady in a green silk pull-back, yellow necktie, and blue kids, who called at Steinway's, and said, as she threw down a V, "I want two preserved seats for the Bryant's Minstrels."

A Lehigh dreamt quarryman that his wife was a boulder, and hurled her from the bed. He scarcely changed his mind, it is presumed, when he awoke, for the item states that she battered him worse than the fragments of a blasting explosion could have done ordinarily.

Count Moltke, on a recent visit to Rostock, returning home late one night, was unable to find the way to his lodgings. He thought over various schemes for finding out the road without betraying who he was, and at last hit upon the following device: He went up to a man who appeared to be a native of the town, and inquired in the broad local dialect of the neighborhood, "Can you tell me where Count Moltke is staying?" "That I can," replied the man, in the same tone; "he is staying in the large house opposite the school in the next street to this." "Yes," returned the Count, "that's just what I thought myself;" and he returned to his lodgings delighted with the success of his stratagem.

Returned Bride—"We were married just a month ago to-day. We went to Bawston and New Yawk and ever so many places, and had a perfectly gawgeous time. New Yawk's just lovely."

A Vassar girl wrote home:—"Dee Paw-Paw, we study Latin fo' owahs a day. Fwench seven up and science evah so long. The good matrons nevah let us go owet. Won't you send me my leggings and skates for a poo' little girl who lives in the village. Don't forget the heel straps."

A meteoric stone weighing ninety pounds fell in Missouri last week striking a darkey square on the head. He seemed to be considerably confused when he got up, and went off muttering: "Ef I knowed for shuah, de man who frowed dat brick, den I'd see whar am de Cibbil Rights ob niggahs."

Bob Longley (with modest fervor): "O, Jack! O, for a woman's love! O, for a true-hearted woman once, once in one's life, to throw her arms round one's neck, and tell one she loves one!" Little Jack Honer: "Ah! If you had as much of that kind of thing as I have, old man, you'd be precious tired of the whole concern!"

Set a man down on a red hot stove and he will rise like a phœnix from the ashes; rise suddenly.

All the angels mentioned in the Bible are males, but all the angels in the world at this period are females.

A good wife is a good thing, but a bad husband beats her.

Mr. Budd asked her, "Rose, wilt thou be mine?" Rose answered: "I am sorry it cannot be—but a Rose cannot be turned into a Budd."

"Beckie, my dear, you were a very good little girl to-day." "Yes'm, I couldn't help bein' good. I got a 'tiff neck."

DR. PERCY tells the past correctly or no fee.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And [illegible] he keeps the freshest
Has [illegible] been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All th[illegible] [illegible]ung men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Palmer's have received a new supply of ladies and children's underwear—very cheap—726 to 734 Market street.

Charles Matthews' Farewell.

Charles Matthews has sailed from England for India on a professional visit, although he is 73 years of age. On the closing night of his recent engagement at the London Gaiety Theatre he made a long speech, the opening portion of which was as follows: "I have promised a few words and I am here to redeem my promise. An actor has always this advantage—he not only promises but performs. 'A few words,' is a vague expression. The few words of some men would fill a column, while those of others would scarcely make a paragraph. Mine are of the latter description. I am a man of few words, and never trouble you with them except on particular occasions—when I really have something particular to say—and this is one of them. Of course the nature of the few words depend upon the circumstances. A few words with one's sweetheart are worth a week's talk with one's mother-in-law, and when a man has a few words with his wife, however much he may love her, the consequences are anything but agreeable. Now a few words at parting are naturally expected to be of a lachrymose character, but I am not sentimental, nor given to the melting mood, so you will excuse the non-appearance of my white handkerchief. As I have observed, I never say a few words except when I am going away, but as I am always going away, you may think that I am always saying a few words. But then I am always coming back again, and I hope this will be no exception to the rule, so there is really no occasion for tears on either side."

DR. PERCY tells the past correctly or no fee.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

All Letters and Communications Strictly Confidential.

Consultations Free—Charges Moderate. Office Hours from 10 to 4 and 7 to 8.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Manager Maguire has his eyes open for popular attractions, and the announcement that a new season of Italian Opera by the Fabbri Company, is to be commenced at this theatre under his management, is another instance thereof. The opening is fixed for to-night, when "Fidelio" will be presented. "Der Freichutz" will be given on Thursday, and "La Juive" for the first time in San Francisco on Saturday. The cast of "Fidelio" will include Mme. Fabbri as Fidelio, Miss Ivy Wandesforde as Marcelina, Theo. Habelmann as Florestein, Carl Formes as Rocco, J. Forti as Don Fernando, F. Lafontaine as Pizarro, and Chas. Pflueguer as Paquino.

California Theatre.

"The Two Orphans" will be given for the last time this evening. These two extra performances have shown how popular the French melodrama is. "Married in Haste" will be produced for the first time in America to-morrow evening, in which Wm. Horace Lingard will appear as Pendragon, an eccentric comedy part.

Opera House.

The songs in the first part are this week particularly worthy of notice—Davis' sings "Driven from Home," old but a favorite; R. T. Tyrrell has "Sing me a Song," very sweet and pretty; J. G. Russell is down for "Birdie has gone with the Angels," which is one of the best in his repertoire; Fred Walz gives "Norah Darling," a touching Irish melody; whilst Billy Emerson and Fayette Welch keep up the comic portion of the programme with "The Man of Many Names" and "Bold Jack Donohue."

Wade's Opera House.

Quite a number of the artists engaged in New York, for Manager Bert's forthcoming season, arrived by the Overland train last night. The present invoice consists of Mlle. Eugenie Lupo and Mlle. Cora Adriana premieres danseuses; Mme. Adriana, Miss Winnetta Montague and Miss A. Thornton, actresses; Mons. Zavistowski principal dancer and ballet master; and Miss Alice Richards, Signorita Christine, Mlle. Betta, Miss Julia Lachman and Miss Sallie Ross. M'lle Cora Adriana is celebrated for her personal beauty as well as for her terpsichrean skill, and Miss Wiennetta Montague also possesses, in addition to professional merit, rare personal attractions. Of the new company more anon.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

On Saturday night next, Dec. 18th, the Palace Theatre, will be opened to the public, with a popular melodrama and specialty company, under the Management of Charles Thorne, Sr. Those who remember this commodious place of entertainment as a circus, will be wonderfully surprised at the complete transformation that has taken place. It is now a convenient, handsome theatre, with good seats for nearly twelve hundred people. The opening piece will be the melodrama, "Gaspado; or, the Three Banished Men of Milan." The list of the company is as follows: C. R. Thorne, Senior, J. A. Sawtelle, J. H. Leroy, G. W. Marsh, Nat. Cohen, D. Belasco, Frank Rea, Howard, Crowell, Foster from Salt Lake, R Cox, Barrows, Jake Wallace, Charles Mestayer, Kate Denin, Mrs Laura Stevenson, McCabe Sisters, Emily Denin, Miss Kingsbury, Nellie Firmin, Mrs. Rea, Lulu Wilson, and Minnie Cowen.

Mrs. S. Rice's Picture Gallery.

We have seen the pictures drawn by this gifted artist, and they are certainly extraordinary. This self-taught artist has sketched all her drawings within the last two years while residing in Gold Run, Placer county, California. See advertisement in another column.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Dan Lowrey made his first appearance here last night in his specialties and was splendidly received "Virginia City; or, Above and Below Ground," concludes the programme, should be seen by everybody before its removal.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Miss Minnie Williams makes her first appearance here to-night. The acts are well acted and the olio contains something to amuse and interest everybody.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Care is taken here to make the second part a regular parlor olio in which farce and specialty occupy the principal places. "Don Paldy de Bazan," is a first rate specimen of the first.

Woodward's Gardens.

Four new faces on Saturday and Sunday; Marie Schuman the wonderful child danseuse; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Stephen Samuells, juggler, acrobat pantomimist; Dan Ducrow gymnast and acrobat, with the variety and gymnast troupe. The charming danseuse Miss Mathews and Mrs. C A. Woodruffe, artist in glass, of the Bohemian Glass Blowers, will appear every day.

Notes.

On Wednesday next, Mr. William Horace Lingard and Miss Emmie Dunning, will commence a short season at the California Theatre They will open bravely with the first presentation in America of Henry J. Byron's latest comedy entiled "Married in Haste," now running at the Haymarket Theatre, London. W. T. Gilbert's comedies of "Sweethearts" and "The Wedding March," will also be put on. And lastly, a comic opera by Arthur Sullivan, entitled "I Ladroni," will be presented, in which Miss Emmie Dunning will make her first appearance. It was proposed to commence the season to-day, but detention of the stars en route necessitates a postponement.

Early in February next, the great tragedian, Barry Sullivan, will make his first appearance in San Francisco under engagement to Manager Maguire. Mr Sullivan has been the cause of much discussion in New York and other Eastern cities, and his advent here will be a matter of much interest, even if it be only to decide upon who was right and who was wrong in the estimation of his talents as an actor.

VERSICAL ODDS AND ENDS.

THE TIN WEDDING.

The poets have sung, till the numbers are old,
Of the wedding of crystal, of silver and gold—
The china, the diamond, the wood and the willow,
The rhymster have wooed from his dream-laden pillow—
But where is the bard who has dared to begin
A poem in praise of the wedding of Tin!

O, wonderful metal! Thy might we confess,
Thy power to control us, thy virtue to bless—
For though we are vicious and though we are vile,
The children of passion and malice and guile,
With thee for our friend we may silence complaint,
And the boldest transgressor may rank as a saint;
For is it not true that abundance of Tin
Excuses and covers abundance of sin.

The father has worked, and worked with a will,
To draw a "sleigh-load" of riches up life's rugged hill;
The son, at the top, with arms open wide,
Hops onto the load, and goes down t'other side.

He blew his little lamp out at the top,
And his life came to a sudden stop,
If he hadn't been so confounded green,
He'd never have fooled with kerosene.

This is the kind of money they are using in the East just now:

Rags, rags, rags, rags;
Torn and tattered, and tumbled in bags,
By worn, and battered and wrinkled bags;
Turned into greenbacks when business lags,
(The very soft sash of inflationist wags,)
Supposed to give speed to feminine nags;
Easy to get by old Money Bags,
But doled in small lots to factory fags:
"A currency better than silver in cags,"
But still, in reality nothing but rags.

Sample of modern obituary poetry:

Put away the little "pull-back;"
She will need it, ah, no more;
For they do not wear such fixings
On that bright, celestial shore.

Edgar A. Poe's monument recalls the epitaph written for the author of "Hudibras:"

While Butler, needy wretch, was yet alive,
No generous patron would a dinner give;
Behold him now, when dead and turned to dust,
Presented with a monumental bust.
The poet's fate is here in emblem shown;
He asked for bread, and he received a stone.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

Rossi has played three Shakesperian parts in Paris -Othello, Hamlet and Lear. His support is said to be very indifferent. and the English auditor cannot reconcile himself to the "Il povera Tom ho freddo, instead of "Poor Tom's a-cold."

A curious error exists in the inscription on Shakspere's monument in Westminster Abbey. The quotation is from The Tempest, the inscription running, verbatim et literatim, thus:—

The cloud cap'd Towers,
The Georgeous Palaces,
The Solemn Temples,
The Great Globe itself,
Yea all which it inherit,
Shall Dissolve,
And like the baseless Fabric of a Vision
Leave not a wreck behind.

The proper reading of the latter part of the quotation is as follows:

And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind.

The following story of the late dramatist, Mr. Edward Lancaster, is told by the illustrated Dramatic News: "He was one evening at a play with one of his numerous friends, from whose pocket he contrived, in sport, to extract a pocket handkerchief, which he quickly transferred to his own. Shortly after a tap on the shoulder called his attention to a gentlemanly man in his rear, who said in a whisper, Beg pardon; here's your purse. Didn't know you belonged to the profession; all right!' at the same time slipping into his hand the purse which he had previously extracted from Lancaster's pocket."

The Bellecour Theatre at Lyons, was burned about three weeks ago, just before the performance commenced. The flames spread so quickly that the actors had barely time to make their escape. One of the actresses, who was dressed as a Republican Conscript in M. Claretie's new drama, Les Muscadins, fled into the street in a shirt and the well-known red-striped trousers of the First Republic.

Curran's Ingenuity.

A farmer attending a fair with a hundred pounds in his pocket, took the precaution of depositing in the hands of the landlord of the public house at which he stopped. Having occasion for it shortly afterwards, he resorted to mine host for payment. But the landlord, too deep for the countryman, wondered what he meant, and was quite sure no such sum had ever been lodged in his hands by the astonished rustic. After ineffectual appeals to the recollection, and finally to the honor of Bardolph, the farmer applied to Curran for advice.

"Have patience, my friend, said the counsel; "speak to the landlord civilly—tell him you have left your money with some other person. Take a friend with you, and lodge with him another hundred in the presence of your friend and come to me."

He did so, and returned to his legal friend.

"And now I can't see how I am going to be better off for this, if I get my second hundred back again. But how is that to be done?"

"Go and ask him for it when he is alone," said the counsel.

"Aye, sir, asking won't do. I'm afraid without my witness at any rate."

"Never mind; take my advice," said his counsel; "do as I bid you and return to me."

The farmer returned with his hundred, glad to find that safely in his possession.

"Now, sir, I must be content; but I don't see I'm much better off."

"Well, then," said the counsel, "now take your friend along with you and ask the landlord for the hundred pounds your friend saw you leave with him."

We need not add that the wily landlord found he had been taken off his guard, while our honest friend returned to thank his counsel exultingly with both hundreds in his pocket.

Getting on the Stage.

Some Boston gentlemen of prominence, at a dinner party given recently to John T. Raymond, conceived the idea of appearing as jurymen in the court scene of the "Gilded Age," which they did that evening to the great delight of their friends. This will be copied, of course, and the good natured Col. Sellers will receive similar offers from "gentlemen of prominence" in other places. The itching to get on the stage is not confined to stage-struck boys and romantic misses. During the spelling mania, last Winter, we saw how ready our solid men were to have their names enrolled "to spell in public on the stage:" and how they frisked and ambled about, and prepared little jokes to make the crowd laugh, even the most grave and staid putting an antic disposition on and endeavoring to "show-off" in some manner. It is human nature. We would all be actors if we could. This thing wont stop with prominent citizens on Col. Sellers' jury. Probably P. C's. will besiege Jefferson to let them come on as Hendrick Hudson and his ghostly crew up among the Catskills. They would have no lines to speak, and the most timid would feel safe in his spectral disguise. Barrett will be overwhelmed with applications from solid men who want to take part in the dance which concludes "Rosedale;" notable citizens, of the strictest sobriety, will turn up ready to take the parts of the Mayor and the Judge in Chanfrau's "Arkansas Traveler," and Booth may receive a proposition from some numskull to personate the skull of Yorick.

"ROSE MICHEL."

"Rose Michel," now being played at the Union Square Theatre, New York, is a powerful melodrama which depends for its effects on the efforts of the actress who embodies the heroine. Such an actress is found in Miss Rose Eytinge. She is Rose Michel. When she comes on the scene a type of the French peasant woman stands before one. The dark eyes gleaming in the swarthy face, the long gold rings dangling from the ears, the quaint cap, the costume of dark red, black and grey—all this makes up a peasant woman of France as she lives. Miss Eytinge's identification with the character is so complete that when she curtseys she curtseys—as does an inferior; when she walks she moves about as though in sabots, and every motion is governed by this intuitive sense of compliance with the exactions of the character. In the first act she is the honest woman rejoicing in her holiday and the pleasure of again seeing her daughter. In the second act she comes into the dimly-lighted inn of her husband and is made to understand that all her bright hopes for her daughter are to be blighted, and that the unnatural father has determined to sell their child to infamy. All her maternal love stands on guard. "Who will prevent me?" flings forth the miser. "I—Rose Michel—a mother," and at this point, given with the full declamation of indignation and contempt, Miss Eytinge afforded the finest indication of the startled affection, which was soon to impel a sublime devotion. It is night, and the wind whistles and the lightning flashes. Pierre Michel, deterred by his wife's prayers and defiance from disposing of the daughter, has seized upon that more remunerative plan of murdering his guest, and thus securing all the money in his possession instead of a comparatively small recompense for his child's infamy. He bares his arm and moves towards the room where he is to do the deed. Rose Michel appears on the landing of the staircase. She has begun to undress, for her grey petticoat alone remains of her gay attire, disclosing her white bodice. Her loosened hair falls over her shoulders, and a handkerchief is drawn about her neck. She watches her husband's movements with an interest which changes to alarm when she sees him steal into the guest's apartment. She follows him in indefinable terror, and then, as she gains the door and the horrible sight meets her gaze, she utters a series of piercing screams and falls insensible. Thereupon ensues a terrible scene of accusation, of reproach, of trembling delay between the guilty husband and the wife. In the next act the chief situation is at the close, where Rose Michel witnesses the charge of murder against the young nobleman whom she too well knows to be innocent. She tries to speak even while she knows that she must not, but while she stands half distracted between the consciousness of a double duty, insensibility mercifully comes to her aid, and she falls unconscious to the ground. It is in the fourth act, however, that the scene requiring the most subtle art occurs. Rose Michel, tortured by the knowledge that an innocent man must suffer, determines to endeavor to gain an idea of the depth of her daughter's affection for the lover, from whom a revelation of her father's guilt must separate her. She pictures to the girl how transitory is even the deepest affection, all the while soothing her with caresses. Louise bursts into a torrent of despair, and Rose Michel renounces forever aught but adherence to self-imposed silence. Rose Michel takes the oath of eternal silence. In the last act she is brought into a gallery of the prison of the Petit Chatelet (a spot of almost sublime beauty through the view of Paris in the moonlight which stretches out in the distance) after having been subjected to ineffectual torture. She consents to aid in the last resource of the Count's escape, but Pierre Michel, whose aid has been secured, fearful lest this measure should lead to his ultimate conviction, proves a traitor and announces the plot to the officials. Then Rose Michel, in a speech of avenging strength, denounces him as the murderer, moved by his contemptible action to what even the rack could not extort from her. The happiness of the daughter is secured after the murderer, in flying to escape, has been shot and fallen from the gallery, and the curtain falls on the final exclamation of the heroine—"Heaven pardon the sin of my maternal love!"

A Legal Mind.

A young lawyer in Indianapolis has recently given evidence of a sublimity of impudence before which the cheek of a lightning-rod peddler is the veriest modesty. Having asked a young lady to appoint a day when she would like to go driving, he added: "In this connection I will say that I am only a poor young lawyer, who has expended his all to get an education to fit himself for the practice of his chosen profession. Were I situated as I once was, I would proceed differently, but as it is I hesitate not to say that my purse will not allow me to expend money for pleasure, and knowing you to have ample means, I have no doubt you will be pleased to bear the expenses of the proposed buggy ride."

Comparative Mischief.

"I know that my little boy is bad," said a loving mother, "and I know that he may be breaking somebody's windows or something right now; but isn't it far better for him to be out in the fresh air than to be stuck here in the house, where he might be falling into a tub of hot water or permanently injuring himself some way? Seems to me it is."

DR. PERCY tells the past correctly or no fee.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

California Theatre.
Last night's performance and the last performance of "The Two Orphans," drew a house scarcely one whit less crowded than any at the first week of its production, and not one whit less interested in the stirring action of the drama. This evening, the Lingard engagement will commence with the production of Byron's latest comedy entitled "Married in Haste." The cast will include Wm. H. Lingard as Percy Pendragon, an old, eccentric bric-a-brac hunter, Barton Hill as Gibson Greene, T. W. Keene as Augustus Vere, W. M. Leman as Mr. Josiah Grainger, John Wilson as Mr. Buffler, W. A. Mestayer as Rockstraw, Miss Bella Pateman as Ethel Grainger, and Mrs. Saunders as Mrs. Grainger.

Opera House.
Having spoken at length of the songs in the first part, it remains to say a few words anent the acts in the second part. "I Don't Know What I'm Doin'," with Charley Reed as Jim Dipsey the somnambulist, is particularly funny. Mackin and Wilson's song of "Charming Little Susie," is original and leads to some most extraordinary eccentric dancing, the rest of the programme being equally as good. "The Two Off-uns" is in rehearsal and the Allen children and little Marie Schtmann have been engaged.

Maguire's New Theatre.
"Fidelio" was given to a very fair and critical audience last night, the second or prison act being given with such exceeding lyric spirit and musical merit that the quartette, Mme. Inez Fabbri, Carl Formes Theo. Habelmann and F. Lafontaine were thrice recalled. On Thursday next "Der Freichutz" will be given, and on Saturday evening Halevy's great work "La Juive" (The Jewiss) will be given for the first time in California.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.
On Saturday night next, Dec. 18th, the Palace Theatre, will be opened to the public, with a popular melodrama and specialty company, under the Management of Charles Thorne, Sr. The opening piece will be the melodrama, "Gaspardo; or, the Three Banished Men of Milan." After which will come an olio of music and dance, the bill concludcluding with the original musical sketch entitled "Opera Mad." The list of the company is as follows: C. R. Thorne, Senior, J. A. Sawtelle, J. H. Leroy, G. W. Marsh, Nat. Cohen, D. Belasco, Frank Rea, Howard, Crowell, Foster from Salt Lake, R. Cox, Barrows, Jake Wallace, Charles Mestayer, Kate Denin, Mrs. Laura Stevenson, McCabe Sisters, Emily Denin, Miss Kingsbury, Nellie Firman, Mrs. Rea, Lulu Wilson, and Minnie Cowen.

Wade's Opera House.
Quite a number of the artists engaged in New York, for Manager Bert's forthcoming season, arrived by the Overland train last night. The present invoice consists of Mlle. Eugenie Lupo and Mlle. Cora Adriana premieres danseuses; Mme. Adriana, Miss Winnetta Montague and Miss A. Thornton, actresses; Mons. Zavistowski principal dancer and ballet master; and Miss Alice Richards, Signorita Christine, Mlle. Betta, Miss Julia Lachman and Miss Sallie Ross. M'le. Cora Adriana is celebrated for her personal beauty as well as for her terpsichrean skill, and Miss Wiennetta Montague also possesses, in addition to professional merit, rare personal attractions. Of the new company more anon.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.
Miss Kitty Leroy as Nobby Nocker, in "Virginia City" should be seen, whilst Ned Barry, George C. Thompson, St. Leon, Charley Kimic, Frank Mortimer, make out a programme with which there is no fault to find.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.
Miss Minnie Williams was well received last night on her re-appearance here. "The Gigantic Four" is a capital eccentric act, and there is a host af good things to choose from.

New Lyceum Theatre.
Mr. Boedecker is musical director here which means that everything is as it should be in his department. "The Tobacconist's Daughter" has replaced "Getting Even" for to-night. Look out for Xmas novelties.

Mrs. S. Price's Picture Gallery.
We have seen the pictures drawn by this gifted artist, and they are certainly extraordinary. This self-taught artist has sketched all her drawings within the last two years while residing in Gold Run, Placer county, California. See advertisement in another column.

Woodward's Gardens.

Drayton the Modern Milo; Stephen Samuells, juggler, acrobat pantomimist; Dan Ducrow gymnast and acrobat, with the variety and gymnast troupe. The charming danseuse Miss Mathews and Mrs. C. A. AN OLD MAN.

The hour far spent, the harvest in,
He goes serene along his ways,
Blessed with the sunshine that befalls
The Indian Summer of his days.

A dear old man whom all men love,
Who loves all men, and round whose head,
As round the brows of ancient saints,
The silver locks of nimbus shed.

Just as the sun comes sifting through
The violet vapors on the hills,
Building a land of promise where
The vista with new glory thrills.

So shines his smile on all he meets,
A tender after-glow and mild;
He sees the other side of life,
And takes it sweetly as a child.

For genial as the Autumn day
That spells us with its soft surprise,
Life seems to wait, as waits the year,
Obeying his benignant eyes.

He dreams not of a dark unknown
So close at hand, so chill, so drear,
The ice-cold and snow-covered grave;
He only sees the sunshine here.

He lifts his eyes up to the hills
Whence cometh all his help, and stays
To bless us with the light that fills
The Indian Summer of his days.

Hit Him Again.
Some men were talking athletics the other night, and bragging rather. One young fellow in particular, was evidently conceited about his pugilistic prowess. "I put the gloves on with a man two stone heavier than myself, last Tuesday," he said; "not a bad sparrer, either; and, curiously enough, I caught him on the nose with my left, and sent him clean over on the broad of his back." A middle-aged man, who was finishing his cigar and soda-and-brandy in the corner, and had hitherto made no remark, now observed that he could well understand it. "For," said he, "I knocked an elephant down last week." The young men did not believe him, but he spoke the truth. He was an auctioneer.

A New Butter Churn.
The man of the age has risen. His name is Currier and he lives in Orleans county, Vermont. His achievement is a milk-thresher which is worked by the wheel of a wagon. All that the owner has to do is to hitch up his horse and drive down to the post-office, and when he gets back, the butter is made. Narrow-minded adherents of the old style call this a lazy man's churn, but broad-headed people see that it marks an epoch in the history of the human mind, and shows a spirit of saving wisdom still alive in this country.

Dr. Percy tells the past correctly or no fee.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers
Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

The look a man gives his wife when he suddenly awakes in the morning and finds her going through his vest pocket, is not a studied expression, but it is excellent in its way.

Politeness is the mother of peace. She keeps familiarity and impudence from being knocked to death, and often saves a broken head.

"Isn't your husband a little bald?" asked one lady of another, in a store. "There isn't a bald hair in his head," was the hasty reply of the wife.

Here is a Mormon reason for marrying a Gentile: "Why isn't he handsome? and then—and then—I wanted every bit of him to myself!"

A little boy in a Scotch school was asked if he did not wish to be born again. "Born again!" said Tommy; "no, I wadna." "You wouldn't?" cried the teacher sadly; "why not?" "For fear I'd be born a lassie," said Tommy.

Why are pianos the noblest of manufactured articles?—Because they are grand, upright, and square.

Women sometimes run with hose—striped hose, we mean.

Notice in front of a grocery store in Harrisburg: "Presants givn awa more usful than kromers" (chromos).

Chicago is no longer a good place to die in. The undertakers have struck, and are making it expensive for corpses.

"Bless you," said John Henry, with tears in his eyes, "she takes her own hair off so easy that perhaps she doesn't know how it hurts to have mine pulled out."

How to make a home happy is a question with many men. Sometimes it can be done by staying at home, and sometimes by going out. It all depends upon how agreeable the man is.

"Fred," said a young man, walking up State street in Chicago, the other day, after listening to his wonderful story, "do you know why you are like a harp struck by lightning?" "No," said Fred, "I give it up." "Because a harp struck by lightning is a blasted lyre!"

A girl refused to be engaged until her lover first insured his life in her favor, and then traveled two years abroad to improve his manners. "If he survives," she sighed, I shall keep my engagement."

A venerable Irish lady in Taunton went into the telegraph office, the other evening and stated her wish to send a message to her son in a neighboring city. Whereupon the obliging operator asked if he should write it for her, to which she hesitatingly responded: "Av ye plaze, Mister, I'll do it mesilf, for James knows my handwriting."

Next time you're in Berlin and want to go to the opera, just casually tell the hackman to drive you around to the Eriedrichwilhelmstadtisches. He'll know all about it.

Spriggs wrote a note to Miss Whifet, asking her to go to Maguire's and delivered it himself, waiting in the hall for an ansewer. And Mrs. Whifet, near-sighted and hasty, called over the balustrade: "Bridget, do let the man wait outside, and take Mr. Whifet's overcoat off that rack. There's too much of this note business going on!" Maguire's Theatre had two empty seats that night.

An Indiana paper tells about a pony who, finding no water in the trough, seized the pump handle in its teeth, and pumped itself enough water for a square drink.

"Now," said a citizen of Rawlings, Wyoming Territory, at a recent dance, "you see that heifer in a red dress; that's my wife; an' ef yer dance with her more'n two two times, pard, I'll shute the hull top uv yer hed off. What'll yer drink?"

WHAT HE WANTED.

The bolt on the back door had needed replacing for a long time, but it was only the other night that Mr. Throcton had the presence of mind to buy a new one and take it home. After supper he hunted up his tools, removed the old bolt, and measured the location for the new one. He must bore some new holes and Mrs. Throcton heard him roaming around the kitchen and woodshed, slamming doors, pulling out drawers, and kicking the furniture around. She went to the head of the stairs, and called down:

"Richard, do you want anything?"

"Yes, I do!" he yelled back. "I want to know where in Texas that corkscrew is?"

"Corkscrew, Richard?"

"Yes, corkscrew, Richard! I've looked the house over, and can't find it!"

"Why, we never had one Richard."

"Didn't, eh? We've had a dozen of 'em in the last two years, and I bought one not four weeks ago. It's always the way when I want anything."

"But you must be out of your head, husband," she said, as she descended the stairs. "We've kept house seven years, and I never remember of seeing you bring a corkscrew home."

"O, yes, I'm out of my head, I am!" he grumbled, as he pulled out the sewing-machine drawer and turned over its contents. "Perhaps I'd better go to the lunatic asylum right away!"

"Well, Richard, I know that I have never seen a corkscrew in this house."

"Then you are as blind as an owl in daylight, for I've bought five or six! The house is always upside down, anyhow, and I never can find anything!"

"The house is kept as well as any of your folks can keep one!" she retorted, growing red in the face.

"I'd like my mother here to show you a few things," he said, as he stretched his neck to look on the high shelf in the pantry.

"Perhaps she'd boil her spectacles with the potatoes again," answered the wife.

"Do you know who you are talking to?" he yelled, as he jumped down.

"Yes, I do!"

"Well, you'll be going for York State, if you don't look out!"

"I'd like to see myself! When I go, this house goes!"

"Look out, Nancy!"

"I'm afraid of no man that lives, Richard Throcton!"

"I'll leave you!"

"And I'll laugh to see you go!"

Going close up to her, he extended his finger, shook it to emphasize his words, and slowly said:

"Nancy Throcton, I'll apply for a divorce to-morrow! I'll tell the judge that I kindly and lovingly asked you where the gimlet was, and you said we'd never had one in the house, which is a bold falsehood, as I can prove!"

"Gimlet!" the gasped.

"Yes, gimlet!"

"Why, I know where there are three or four! You said corkscrew!"

"Did I?" he gasped, sitting down on the corner of the table; "well, now, I believe I did."

"And you went and abused me like a slave because I wouldn't say a gimlet was a corkscrew!" she sobbed, falling on the lounge.

"Nancy," he said, tenderly lifting her up.

"O, dear Richard!" she chokingly answered.

"Nancy, I'll go right out doors and kill myself!"

"No, you needn't—I love you still, only—only—you know a gimlet is not a corkscrew!"

"It ain't—it ain't, Nancy; forgimme, and let's be happy!"

A· that household is so quietly happy that . canary bird would sing its head off if hung up in the hall.

YOUNG MEN
Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.
Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500
For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.
MIDDLE-AGED MEN!
There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

California Theatre.

H J Byron's latest comedy was given here last night for the first time in San Francisco. It was also the occasion of the commencement of Mr. Wm. Horace Lingard's first star engagement at this theatre. The story of "Married in Haste," the comedy in question, is briefly as follows: The first act is laid at the house of a retired manufacturer named Grainger (W. M. Leman), who bases his claim to a high social position on the strength of fortune acquired by trade His daughter, Ethel Grainger Miss Pateman), is a young lady of many accomplishments, and her taste for painting is especially fostered, a young artist known as Augustus Greville (T. W Keene), being retained to give her daily lessons. Between master and pupil a deep affection springs up, and marriage is proposed. Thereupon the father would turn the tutor out of the house but for the intervention of a shrewd London friend, Mr Gibson Greene (Barton Hill), who arrives opportunely, and hints that the teacher who has won the heart of his fair scholar is a distinguished individual of high social position and heir to an enormous fortune Circumstances having altered cases, the young lady's father and stepmother readily give their assent, and the union in haste of Augustus Greville and Ethel Grainger is forthwith to be solemnized. In the second act the newly-married are passing the honeymoon at a hotel in the Lake district, under the assumed names of Mr. and Mrs. Frederichs, and the husband is seriously embarrassed by the sudden stoppage of a liberal allowance from his uncle, Percy Pendragon (W. H. Lingard), which constituted his chief source of income. His perplexities are heightened by the arrival of his benefactor, whom he has not seen since he was a child, and who, indignant at the want of confidence placed in him, and the extravagant, idle life his nephew is leading, proclaims his determination henceforth to cut off the supplies Gibson Greene arrives in time to extricate the entangled couple from the dilemma of not having the means to discharge the landlord's bill; but it is evident that the hasty marriage is now likely to be followed by its proverbial consequences When the third act commences a year is supposed to have elapsed, and Augustus, now shown by his real name of Vere, is depending entirely upon painting for his subsistence, and showing some mortification at the pictures executed by his wife being preferred to his own. He, moreover, becomes neglectful of his clever wife and is mean enough to gratify a foolish fancy in accepting attentions from a certain fashionable lady whose portrait he professes to be taking. Ethel's patient endurance is ended when she fancies she has reason to complain of his inconstancy, and her resolution is formed to abandon him, the intention being expressed in a letter, which Gibson Greene undertakes to convey to her husband. In the last act the Graingers, who have also suffered serious vicissitudes of fortune from losses in speculation are mainly dependant on the talents of their daughter, who finds a ready market for her sketches, through the liberal purchases of a mysterious patron, ultimately turning out to be the angry uncle of her husband. By Gibson Greene's contrivance a meeting takes place between them, the nephew, properly repentant to his wife, is restored to the favor of the uncle, and the curtain descends on a picture of general domestic happiness The house was full and responsive. "Married in Haste" again to-night.

Opera House.

Good houses, crowded houses every night, the show closing at the reasonable hour of a little past ten o'clock. Ernest Linden has a new selection this week entitled 'The Song of the Butterfly,' which is particularly good and capitally sung. Billy Emerson is a favorite in whatever he does, and this week his "budget of fun" is a well stored one

Notes.

A lengthy article copied from the Chicago Times concerning the Titus-Oates Divorce Case, appeared in yesterday's Chronicle. Whilst we have no desire to concern ourselves with the affair, it should be stated in justice to Mrs. Oates that the article in question is not a model of impartiality.

DRESS IT UP.

If you've got a truth to advocate,
Or chaff from wheat to separate,
Don't be in a hurry, but wait a while,
And dress it up in approved style;
Yes, dress it up.

For the people now are modest, very;
And of truth, in any shape, are wary;
And when they're told the naked truth,
They painfully blush, and must forsooth;
Have it dressed with a gore or two,
And flounces and ruffles not a few;
Or a bias fold may better convey
A truth or fact of the present day;
So dress it up

If you've a doctrine to expound,
Or a difficult problem to propound,
Just dress it up in colors bright,
And all are sure you're in the right;
So dress it up.

If you've got 'gainst the world a complaint to make,
If you think you've a bitter pill to take,
Just dress it up with sugar or sauce,
And give your complaint an extra gloss;
It will all go down with the best of grace,
With scarce a frown on any face;
So dress it up.

Where'er it may be, whatever it is,
If you think it a truth or think it a "fiz,"
Whate'er the idea you wish to state,
Whatever fact to elucidate,
Don't waste your time, and hesitate,
Dress it up.

In words that all will acknowledge great:
Then send it along to meet its fate,
All dressed up.

A New Book.

The works of Fortune de Boisgobey, occupy a position amongst French readers, second to those held by Eugene Sue. Another "Mysteries of Paris" has been written by de Boisgobey under the title of "The Chevalier Casse-Cou," and has made such a sensation that its translation into English has followed as a matter of course, and also necessity. Robert De Witt of New York, is the publisher, and the San Francisco News Co., on Washington street, are the agents here.

Celestial Coolness.

A Chinaman at Truckee, California, being detected the other day in an attempt to steal a piece of rubber hose, was kicked around the entire block by irate owner, and after he had thoroughly exhausted himself and worn out the seat of the Celestial's pantaloons, John calmly propounded the following question: "You no likee lendum?"

The Young Man from the East.

" Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE NEW DRAMATIC SENSATION.

Jacques, in "As You Like It," says: "And one man in his time plays many parts." Doubtless some of the "player-folk" recalled this familiar line when they read the recent announcement that Oakey Hall, warned by medical men that he must no longer encounter the worry of court-house practice, and the vexations of political strife, had, to use his own phrase, "embraced the dramatic profession in the hope that it would embrace him." In his short day (and it is only twenty years since he first shot athwart the sensational firmament of New York as prosecutor of Lewis Baker for the Poole murder) he has played the "many parts" of District Attorney and defender of star criminals, of Albany and Washington manipulators, of ingenious contriver of police systems and charters, of jury advocate, after-dinner orator, lecturer, club humorist, journalist, and, during four years of absolute sensationalism, Mayor of New York. In all of his pursuits, which were dependent upon his own exertions, he has been ever lucky, since it is clear that he lost power and popularity as Mayor, because of the shortcomings of associates, and it remains to be seen whether this luck will accompany him before the footlights. What are his elements of success? He has lost all risk of stage fright. Hard knocks have certainly destroyed vanity. He is a famous elocutionist. He has studied human nature, its passions and emotions in varied shapes. He has been afforded the most ample opportunities of studying the stage, not only in theory, but in its mechanism. He has been a sedulous student in all the schools of acting. He has aided in theatrical management, and he has written plays and supervised rehearsals. He has mimetic power, play of feature, and grace of gesture and carriage. He was the best advertised man in America during the ring troubles and trials. He is heartily welcomed by all the managers and actors excepting a few who nourish the professional envies of fifty years ago. He is popular with the journalistic craft, and, doubtless, his enemies will welcome his exit from law and politics into his new profession. What are his elements of risk? Being of middle age his range in the drama must be limited. He encounters a host of traditions. He violates scores of precedents. He flies in the face of all dramatic history, so that our readers who speculate on the doctrine of chances can make up their own choice in advance of the event which will occur on Saturday evening, the 18th of December, at the Park Theatre, The play is named "Crucible," and is of four acts. It is a piece of distributive interest, and does not depend upon one or two characters alone. The construction is said to have been suggested by Mr. Boucicault, who, however, had no hand in filling in or filling out. The situations and dialogue grow out of the suggestions of the master dramatist who has taken a great interest in the project, and has been the sole confidential friend of Mr. Hall in the matter. He is said, however, to have promised for next Winter a new dramatization of Eugene Aram for the aspirant to Thespian fame and fortune. Mr. Hall conducts all the rehearsals, and is said to have exhibited surprising familiarity with the necessary details of situations. position, and force of dialogue. His own part is rather himself than an impersonation, which diminishes the risk. While the sympathy of the plot centres in him, his associates entirely share the interest and capabilities of the drama in which toil, sentiment, pathos, and broad fun, are judiciously divided. Of course, it is not our present province to anticipate the plot, action, and merits or demerits of "Crucible." A discussion of these will become more appropriate hereafter. At present, it is rather our object to refer to the personal relations of Mr. Hall to the undertaking. Should he achieve an unquestionable success, his appearance will, indeed, have been the dramatic event of the year in both hemispheres.

A CLEVER LETTER.

The following is an extract from a letter to a little girl staying in the country in the Autumn: "In fact, we miss you in all ways, and I have even been commissioned by the fruit and vegetables to complain of your absence. Kemp [the gardener] tells me it is quite saddening to listen to the groanings in the kitchen garden. The potatoes feel it sorely, and their eyes are getting quite watery. The cabbages declared their hearts will burst, and the onions are in a sad pickle. The vegetable marrows look remarkably seedy, and the beans were so anxious about you that they sent out runners in all directions dressed in scarlet. The peas (knowing your fondness for them) have stated, that in consequence of their connection with the mint, they are in a position to offer a large reward for your recovery, and will shell out to any extent. This seems tall talk for poor cripples that have to be supported on sticks. The tomatoes are guilty of any quantity of sauce, while the radishes grow hot and red in the face. It is the opinion of the beet root that you ought to be mangold, but that you will turn up [illegible]. The parsley has curled itself in contempt, but the herbs hope you will listen to sage advice, for it is thyme to return. The cucumbers are terribly cut up, and I'm afraid it's all over with the asparagus, as it has quite taken to its bed, and even there is never inquired after now. The hops aver your conduct will bring them to the bier and the tobacco plants made a fuss, but it ended in smoke. The rasberries have decided that you deserve a good caning, and the strawberries that you could scarcely be more independent if you were the British Queen. The Morello cherries were purple with rage, and we had to send them to the kitchen, where they were stoned to death; in fact, nearly all went to juice, the remainder, by the aid of a little brandy, being preserved. The grapes are visibly changing color, and we are preparing to go into black for your loss. What few apples there are look remarkably sour while they profess not to care a pippin about you. The currants hang disconsolately about in bunches, and fancied you were smashed into jelly instead of them. The gooseberries certainly have the appearance of being made a fool of; the walnuts are up a tree; the chestnuts have grown horse calling for you; and the filberts, through your heartless conduct, have actually cracked."

Making it Pay.

A young man who recently attended a morning service at a fashionable church in this city was evidently greatly embarrassed when the collection was taken up. His pew was about the first into which the basket was thrust, and he plunged his hand into his pocket, kept the collector waiting a moment, and then quickly thrust a coin — evidently the first that he could get out of his wallet—into the basket. After the service the young man lingered, and when the congregation had retired approached the gentleman who had charge of the collection, and who was counting it at the time, and remarked that he was a stranger in the city, that he was a poor young man, and that in the hurry of the moment put a $10 gold piece into the collection basket by mistake for a half. He inquired modestly if it would be unfair to ask for the return of $9,50 to him.

The collector, appreciating the stranger's evident frankness and modesty, looked over the collection, and, finding an eagle, offered to return it. The stranger declined, saying that he meant to contribute fifty cents, and that, as he had no small change, he would be satisfied if $9 were refunded to him. This was proof positive to the treasurer that the stranger was really honest, and he accordingly gave him $9—all there was in the basket, with the exception of the gold piece, and the stranger departed with many thanks and apologies. After the treasurer reached home, he was struck with the appearance of the $10. He examined it closely, and was satisfied that he had been badly victimized. It was counterfeit.

The Deacon's Horse.

A Georgia newspaper tells the following horse story: Deacon Smith of Wilkinson County, owns, or did own, a horse, which once saved him an incalculable amount of money by its intelligence. The deacon says that he and his wife while partaking of their noonday meal, were very much surprised at the actions of their horse, which was loose in the road near the house. It would run up to the gate, neigh vociferously and then run off again. This was repeated several times, and the deacon rose from the table to ascertain the cause of its strange conduct. He reached the door and looked out, and saw, away in the direction the horse had run, a dense smoke. He seized his hat and ran to the place. "Gentlemen," said he, "lightning had struck a tree and set it on fire, and the flames had communicated to my fence around my corn field containing about 600 bushels of corn. The fire had consumed about a dozen panels of fencing, and reached a brook. My horse when I arrived, was standing in this brook dipping her tail in the water, and throwing the water on the burning fence." The crowd looked incredulous, and the deacon said: "Gentlemen, if you don't believe it, you ask Mahaly, my wife."

DR. PERCY tells the past correctly or no fee.

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

Opera House.

What with good songs in the first part and a capital olio collection in the second, the whole programme is one well calculated to please and amuse everybody. "Charming Little Susie," Mackin and Wilson's original song and dance, allows the pair to appear in an exceedingly pretty costume, while in the encores they indulge in such rhythmical gymnastics as are sufficiently wonderful to warrant them in calling themselves the prize eccentric dancers.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Der Freischutz" last night, and as usual the glen scene, next to the singing and the principals, attracted most attention. These principals were Mme. Fabbri, Mlle. Elzer, and Herrs Formes and Habelmann. Every member of this quartette received a recall. To-morrow evening Halevy's masterpiece, "La Juive" (The Jewess) will be presented, and, we believe, for the first time in San Francisco; at all events, for the first time in German.

California Theatre.

Mr. W. H. Lingard is the present star, and doubtless, as the star had the choice of characters in "Married in Haste." That of Percy Pendragon, the old bric-a-brac hunter, is a good one, and allows Mr. Lingard scope for much eccentric make-up, but that of Gibson Greene, as played by Mr. Barton Hill, somewhat overshadows the "old man." Gibson Greene is a good fairy, who has assumed the disguise of a good-natured man-of-the-world. It is Gibson Greene who has all the worldly sharp things o say, who is Deus ex machina from beginning to end in fact. This will readily be understood when t is known that Mr. Byron wrote up the character for himself, and is at present playing it in London.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

This commodious place of amusement designed strictly for the People will be opened to morrow evening, with a bill consisting of melodrama, farce and an olio of song and dance. The prices will be popular and reasonable and the aim is to afford a cheap and good entertainment to those who cannot afford an expensive one.

Prof. Plummer.

This well known humorous elocutionist, purposes this (Friday) evening, giving a parlor entertainment at Corinthian Hall for no particular benefit but his own. The programme of "Particklers" is a fair index of the nature of the proposed entertainment.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

A programme for every one, humor, wit, song, dance, sentimentality, whimsicality, and sensationalism.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Changes of talent are constantly taking place here, the endeavor being to constantly present a new and pleasing series of entertainments.

Woodruffe, artist in glass, of the Bohemian Glass Blowers, will appear every day.

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Seore at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

TOM'S THANKSGIVING.

"Pray, are you thankful ?" Margaret asked,
"For all the blessings of your life?"
Said Tom: "Ah! one thing yet I want—
The blessing of a loving wife;
And till I find that precious gift
I cannot give thanks quite sincere."
"Ah! wicked Tom!" the maiden sighed,
"Your case is hopeless, then, I fear!"

"Not so!" cried he; "if you, my friend,
Would only try to find for me
A maiden fair, whose heart is mine,
Devoutly thankful I shall be!
But she must have—well, let me think—
Eyes like your own, as soft and blue,
And hair as golden, lips as red—
In short, she must resemble you!"

"That which you ask," she answered then,
"I really dare not undertake."
"What!" answered Tom, "have you the heart
Thus a poor mortal to forsake?"
Low dropped her head before his gaze;
"Oh, Tom!" said she, "what shall I do?"
Said Tom: "I think—indeed, I'm sure—
I could be thankful, dear—for you!"

Taking Him Down.

Young men who wear good clothes can amuse themselves by standing near church-doors on Sunday at the time when church is going in and coming out. In the interim they can enjoy themselves by going to an adjacent cigar or beer shop. We have seen young men enjoy themselves in this way, and then go among their friends and tell of the many conquests they had made. But occasionally they are taken down. One of them was standing in front of Trinity Church last Sunday, smiling on every young lady that passed, and feeling that he was making an impression. Just when the greatest crowd was passing, an elderly but robust female stepped up to him, looked at him for an instant, and then said: "Oi want ye to pay me that four dollars and fifty cints ye owe me for washin'. Arrah, ye needn't attimpt to denoy the truth of what Oi say, ye mane schamp. Didn't Oi darn yer dhirty socks for ye, and mind the very pants ye've got on? Pay me money, ye villain, or I'll have ye arristed!" Then the church members gathered around, and the young ladies said to each other, "Isn't he real mean not to pay the poor woman?" And the men said, "He's one of the corner loafers who live by cheating and what they can carry away with them." And he burst through the crowd and madly dashed down the street, and never stopped running till he had got somewhere in the vicinity of Kearny street. And yet there wasn't a bit of truth in the washerwoman's story. She had been hired to do the job by some of the young ladies that our hero thought he'd make conquests of. We bet, however, that he doesn't display his manly form in the vicinity of that church next Sunday.

Shakspeare Immutable

Perhaps the attacks upon the literary and moral records of Shakspeare are partly owing to a sense of oppression suffered by mankind under the weight of so tremendous an intellect. It is an unendurable tyranny. There is no escape from it. No matter in what new direction a new writer sallies forth, almost always he discovers that this indomitable mind has pushed its way before him. Imagine, for instance, the effect of a consciousness of this upon our nineteenth-century writers of tragedies. Tennyson knew well, before essaying his latest work, that the highest praise he could hope to win was the praise of even remote association with "that high and sacred name." A critic dares to suggest such an association, and the world rises up in rebuke. In vain The Spectator reviews one of Shakspeare's tragedies, points out its weaknesses, and shows how much more severe we are upon the contemporary poet, than upon the author of "Henry VIII." What does the world care for Shakspeare's faults? It is Shakspeare that it wants.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

PICTURE — "THE SMITH FAMILY ABROAD."

SCENE—The Hall of a Hotel. Landlord bowing at the door to the departing Members of the Smith Family.

Landlord—"Everything has been to your satisfaction, has it not? Gentleman and ladies—has it not?"

Mr. Smith Senior—"Certainly not. The view of the lake was disfigured by the hotel flagstaff."

Mrs. Smith Senior—"Satisfied! Of course not. The muslin curtains in the bedrooms had not been changed for at least a couple of days."

Mr. Smith Junior—"Satisfied! and the souffle overdone at the table d'hote!"

Mrs. Smith Junior—"Oh dear, no! Why, the piano was out of tune in the salon!"

Mr. John Smith—"Satisfied! I like that! Why, the boot varnish was of inferior quality!"

Miss Smith—"And the chambermaid was as clumsy as possible in arranging my hair!"

All the Smith Family (together)—"Ah, so very different at home!"

COMPANION PICTURE—"THE SMITH FAMILY AT HOME.

SCENE—The Dining Room of No. 00 Sutter Street. Day after the Return of the Smith Family.

Mr. Smith Senior—"That dead-wall in front of the window is rather a contrast after the borders of the lake and the flagstaff we thought so pretty—isn't it?"

Mrs. Smith Senior—"Yes, and only look at the furniture! Why, the cleanest things in the house are those muslin curtains we put up in the drawing-room last Christmas twelve-month!"

Mr. Smith Junior—"The usual dinner, I suppose, to-day. Cold mutton and jam pudding. Ha! rather a contrast! A rolly-polly! When one thinks of that excellent souffle!"

Mrs. Smith Junior—"How absurdly small the piano looks after that splendid grand we used to play upon, you remember, in the salon!"

Mr. John Smith—"With only one servant to wait upon us all, I should be a fool to expect to find my boots properly blacked. I wish I had bought a bottle of that varnish, by the way."

Miss Smith—"After getting accustomed to a lady's maid in Europe, how can I do without one at home?"

All the Smith Family (together)—"Ah! so very different abroad!"

Bouton and Louis Philippe.

An anecdote of Bouton, the painter of interiors, and the friend and comrade of Daguerre, is told by the Paris correspondent of the Boston Post. Bouton was at work one morning upon an immense picture, when a man entered without announcing himself and stood behind him. With his mouth full of paint brushes, the artist did not look up but mumbled: "Look about if you like; don't mind me." The visitor looked around for awhile, and then came back to his original position. Suppressing a curse at the interruption, the artist, without looking from his work, growled: "Well, how is everybody at home?" "Oh, nicely, thank you." "So much the better," continued the artist; "children well, then!" "Oh, perfectly." The visitor then began to criticise the picture; and when, after an hour's conversation the artist turned around, he beheld King Louis Philippe. Bouton blushed and stammered: "Sir, you are artist-King enough to know that I should have lost my tint had I stopped my work to display the atelier to Your Majesty." "Good," replied the King; "I like your reception so well that I mean to have the picture."

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

Anna Dickinson is in very delicate health, and has been ordered by her doctor to relinquish lecturing and her contemplated stage appearance, and take a sea voyage.

A Madame Sophie Dowland, created an immense furore at Steinway Hall, by her singing of Handel's aria, "Lascia ch'io Pianga."

Upon the production of the great tragedy of "Julius Cæsar," at Booth's Theatre, on Dec. 27th, the Forum Scene, it is said, will exceed in magnificence and magnitude anything of the kind ever witnessed on the stage Beyond the illusions of the painter's art, by which thousands of people will seemingly be in the perspective, an actual representation of over four hundred men, women, children and horses will enliven the picture, while the noble architectural surroundings, will add wonderfully to the majesty and beauty of the whole. Mr. Lawrence Barrett, Mr. E. L. Davenport and Mr. F. C. Bangs will be in the cast.

Jarrett & Palmer have advertised for five hundred men "six feet or more in height," to appear as Roman soldiers and citizens in "Julius Cæsar." Just think what "noble Romans" they will make.

"Sardanapalus" is to be imported and produced at Booth's.

Miss Kate Bateman (Mrs. J. B. Crow), on the recent production of the "New Leah" at the Fifth Avenue, in New York, brought suit against the management to restrain the performance, asking a permanent injunction and $20,000 damages. An order to show cause why an injunction should not issue, granted by Judge Donohue, brought the parties into court, when counsel for the management asked for an adjournment. He said that owing to the illness of Miss Clara Morris the play had been withdrawn, and he was willing to stipulate it should not be produced until the decision of the motion.

The thousand and one assertions in relation to an intended season of Italian opera at the New York Academy of Music, with Mlle. Titiens, in January are said all to be premature, and the confident announcement that Signor Campanini will join Mlle. Titiens, has as yet no foundation whatever in fact.

Cora Pearl is going to appear on the New York stage. Cora is a pearl of great price.

Joseph Jefferson is to be immortalized in granite in Central Park, New York. The figure will be life size, and a fac-simile of Joseph Jefferson in the character of Rip Van Winkle.

Mr. George L. Fox, after making his last stage appearance at Booth's Theatre, in N. Y., Nov. 27th, was taken in a carriage by his brother James and his brother-in-law, Mr. George O. Howard, to the depot, and there induced to enter a car for Boston, with the assurance that he was simply going upon a little pleasure trip. At Boston, he was persuaded with great difficulty to enter a close carriage. He was then driven to the private insane asylum of Dr. McLean, in the neighborhood of the city. There is but slight hope that he will be cured of his insanity. His late "Humpty-Dumpty" Troupe will be conducted by George H. Tyler, under the name of the Fox Pantomime Troupe, and Mrs. Fox will receive half the net profits. Fox is said to have rapidly grown worse since his withdrawal from the stage.

Miss Morris' short engagement at Mr. Daly's Theatre was the subject of some painful incidents. At first, she was engaged to act in a society drama written for her by Mr. Daly. Unfortunately, on reading it she found it not worthy her study, and refused to perform it. Then Mr. Daly insisted upon her opening in a version of "Deborah," which she reluctantly agreed to do. Mr. Daly, in his agreement with Miss Morris, stated that she was to appear in a play written expressly for her by Mr. Vider, on the subject of Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, which she thought she would be able to produce with very great effect. On Saturday there was a very exciting scene between the lady and the manager, at the close of which Miss Morris fainted and was carried home dangerously ill.

It is said that Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer of Booth's Theatre, contemplate taking an American company to England.

Charles Fechter appeared on Thursday evening the 2d, at the New York Lyceum Theatre, in "L'Abime," ("No Thoroughfare,") From Mr. Winter's criticism of his performance we should judge that Mr. Fechter had not improved, to say the least, since his last appearance in the metropolis. He says: "Time deals no more kindly with Mr. Fechter than with the rest of his playthings; yet the famous player retains all his ease of action and grace of posture and gesture, and—except that he often uses action in such excess as to call attention to it, making it eclipse rather than transmit meaning—he retains all his power to utter feeling spontaneously and to sustain an illusion He rose, in the scene of the attempted assassination to a climax of conflicting passion that was dreadfully real, and that was made entirely absorbing by wildly romantic and picturesque surroundings. Night, loneliness, the solitude of Alpine heights, the chill of Alpine snow, the wail of the storm-wind, the ominous threatenings of tempest and of murder—all suited well with the picturesque, sinister figure, so vital in action and so terrible in purpose of crime. If there was a taint in the performance, calculated to lower the ideal which it suggested, that taint was a certain fleshy grossness combined with elderly jauntiness.

"Caste" has been withdrawn from Wallack's, and "Our Bosom Friends," an adaptation of "Nos Intimes" now hold the boards.

"Rose Michel" as played at the Union Square, is the attr[illegible]n of New York.

Last Monday, the one hundredth performance of "The Mighty Dollar" was celebrated at the Park Theatre. This will score the sixth success of the kind for Mr. Stuart, the following memorable one hundreth-night performances have been given under his management; Miss Matilda Heron as Camille, Mr. and Mrs. Florence in "The Ticket of Leave," Edwin Booth, one hundred each, in "Hamlet" and "Richelieu," and John T. Raymond, as Colonel Mulberry Sellers.

Charley Howard is at the Third Avenue Theatre.

George S. Knight is at Wood's Museum.

Barney and Rickey are at the Eagle.

Miss Alice Kemp is at the Globe.

Mlle. Zoe, Globe Theatre.

Leotard, Harry and Ducrow are at the Olympic Theatre.

Mlle. De Granville is at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn.

Johnny Allen is at the Theatre Comique.

So is Ella Wesner.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—This evening Halevy's greatest work "La Juive" (The Jewess), will be produced at this theatre for the first time in California. The cast will include Mme. Fabbri, Mile. Anna Elzer, and Herrs Formes, Pflueger, Habelmann, Fischer and Forti. In the second act, the Jewish Home Feast will be celebrated by all the company, and in the fifth act, the great Cauldron scene will be presented. The production of this opera is quite a musical event, and we look forward to an indication of much popular interest therein.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Although the characters of Percy Pendragon and Gibson Greene are the two most conspicious personages in "Married in Haste," that of Ethel Grainger, as played by Miss Pateman, is not to be forgotten. Very tender and womanly at all times, tender in the love scenes, womanly in her times of injury received, the performance is one delightfully true to nature, and exceptionally artistic. "Married in Haste" will be withdrawn to-night. On Monday, Gilbert's comedy of "Sweethearts" and Arthur Sullivan's comic opera "I Ladroni" will be produced, Miss Emmie Dunning making her first appearance in the atter piece.

OPERA HOUSE.—This week will end as all the other weeks have ended with a crowded house. The programme is, as may be seen, full of excellent causes for humor, "quip and crank and merry wile," being as general as leaves in Summer. Next week "The Two Off'uns" will be produced and the Allens aud La Petite Schumann will appear.

PALACE THEATRE.—The state of affairs of this theatre yesterday afternoon showed that everything will be in perfect readiness for the opening to-night. It will be found that this is a commodious, comfortable and handsome theatre, with a seating capacity as follows: Orchestra contains ix rows of seats, dress circle nine, and gallery ght. The seats in the orchestra and six rows in he dress circle, are formed of the chairs that were riginally used in the California Theatre. The total capacity will be thirteen hundred. The drop urtain pictures, drapery and medalion landscapes. The bill for to night has been thoroughly rehearsed nd no doubt there will be a crowded attendance at s opening night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—New bill for this and to-morrow nights. Miss Emma Bellmore, a vocalist of some note, makes er first appearance. Miss Kittie Leroy is down for an Irish jig, and Miss Kittie Leroy has a new song and dance.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—"Mazeppa" having had a splendid run has been removed and this evening the novelty entitled "Behind the Scenes," will take its place. On Monday evening Millie Josephine premere danseuse and C. W. Anderson, the working man,s friend, will make their first apppearance.

THE NEW LYCEUM THEATRE.—Matt Kelly is on the look out for Xmas novelties, and meanwhile the bill is full of attractions. Acts and io are all of a capital nature, chiefly humorous as befit the season.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Attractions.—our new faces on Saturday and Sunday; Marie Schuman the wonderful child danseuse; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Stephen Samuells, jug[illegible]r, acrobat pantomimist; Dan Ducrow gymnast and acrobat, with the variety and gymnast troupe. The charming danseuse Miss Mathews and Mrs. C. A. Woodruffe, artist in glass, of the Bohemian Glass Blowers, will appear every day.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day om the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

An 18-carat Gold, 3 ounce Case, Chronometer lance, Skeleton Lever Watch. The finest one the kind in this city. For sale for the loan d one month's interest, at Uncle Harris, 702 earny, corner Clay street.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Seore at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Word to the Wise, etc.

Don't Help Pay Other People's Debts,

But go to the Furniture and Bedding Store of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, and save fully 25 per cent. by buying of them. Their motto is: "Buy for cash, and sell for cash," therefore they have no bad debts to make up out of extra profits. L

DRAMATIC NOTES.

There seems to have been some slight mistake about announcing the presentation of H. J. Byron's comedy at the California Theatre, on Wednesday last as being its first production in America. It was given at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on Monday, the 6th, and is soon to be brought out in Brooklyn by Lester Wallack, with L. W. himself as Gibson Greene.

Mr. Oakey Hall is determined to let nothing stand in the way of his new profession. He has shaved off his moustache What do you say to that Messrs. O'Neil, Edwards, Hill and Keene?

A party of ladies and gentlemen in Keokuk, Iowa, were talking about theatrical matters, when Forrest's name was introduced. "The last time I saw Forrest," said a pompous individual, who had been assuming to be a finished critic, "was, when he appeared as Leah, the Forsaken." And that's where the laugh came in.

Several New York papers have declared it to be a fact that Miss Kate Field is playing in the English Provinces under an assumed name, and commented somewhat sneeringly on a proceeding which strikes us to be a particularly laudable one. If Miss Field is determined to go on the stage, and if she have found the opportunity of gaining stage self-possession in the English Provinces, so much the better for Miss Field. To be sure, said English Provinces may put forward a claim for commiseration, and a sense of justice may lead us to allow it.

The New Orleans Times states that Leona Dare, the celebrated female gymnast, "died recently." Those who attend the Xmas spectacle at the California Theatre, will have an opportunity of seeing how sprightly and graceful a dead woman can be.

The Alleghanians are still here, wintering, after their tour of nearly twenty months, through nearly every town and village on the Pacific Coast. D. G. Waldron is not idle, however, but is organizing a troupe to travel through Central and South America. Geo. Galloway and Frank Moore will join the cympany.

Charley Schultz arrived in town Thursday morning, after a lengthened trip through the Southern counties. He resumed his high chair the same evening and seemed much improved in health.

Mr. John McCullough already plays an improved version of "Damon and Pythias," the improvements being the handiwork of Dion Shakspeare Boucicault, and now we understand that the same master-spirit is at work on "Jack Cade" for our tragedian. When he intends "improving" "Othello" we will let our readers know.

As we have already twice announced, Rignold and "Henry V." will open at the California Theatre in February next. We also learn that Frederick Thorne, whose Fluellen attracts as much, if not more attention than Rignold's young monarch, has also been engaged.

We hear that Prof. Ehrich, for a long time leader at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, has been appointed chef d'orchestre of Wade's Opera House.

Maguire's Comedy Company is doing well at Sacramento. "Under the Gaslight," which was produced on the 14th, created quite a sensation.

Mr. Herold has concluded to postpone his next orchestral matinee until the 12th of January next.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulford are now playing with a small company in Eureka.

Nothing doing at Salt Lake City.

Bills from Indianapolis of the 1st show that "Our Boys" was being played there, at the Opera House, with Jas. L. Carhart as Sir Geoffroy Champneys.

Handsome Mme. Careno Sauret has taken Mme. Arabella Goddard's place as pianiste in the Titjen's concerts,

We regret to hear that Miss Clara Morris continues very unwell.

The Grass Valley Union states that a Chinese theatrical company is performing in Nevada City.

We beg to acknowledge a complete set of Brooklyn Daily Stage containing programmes of Olympic Theatre, New Park Theatre, Brooklyn Athenæum, Brooklyn Theatre and Hooley's Theatre. At this last place Hooley has a full Minstrel Company.

Charles Vivian last heard from in Austin, Nevada.

PORTLAND, OREGON, Dec. 9th, 1875.

DEAR FIGARO: I have advertised the first night of Herrmann for the 17th, and feel sure of great success. Portland is very ripe for amusements, not having had anything worth patronizing since the circus. After Herrmann, I shall have Maguire's Comedy Company, and I am assured by the very best citizens that if I fulfill my promise (which is to give them a complete company), they will give me what delights a manager, "full houses." The theatre which I have leased is a splendid building, will hold $1000, is beautifully constructed, accoustics, and point of sight magnificent. But Portlanders will not be trifled with, they must have what they buy of the best and nothing else. The press of the State, without exception, have treated me very kindly and promise to second my endeavors to make this the second theatrical city on the Pacific. The latest dates we have from Frisco are Nov. 29th, the steamers and overland both having come to a dead lock, but I daily look for a batch of FIGARO'S which will be most acceptable.

Your truly, SHERRY CORBYN.

On Saturday next, Xmas Day, George Soane's spectacular play of "Faustus; or, the Demon of the Drachenfels," will be produced at the California Theatre. Immense preparations have been made, a ballet of thirty ladies has been secured, (notwithstanding the corner), Mr. W. T. Porter has exerted himself and the scenery will, we think, be a good instance of what this artist is able to do. Two scenes in particular will, we know, receive much attention, that of the tranformation of the Prison to the Palace and that of the sinking of the Drachenfels and the disclosure of Venice. In this scene, a new mist effect will be introduced. At Venice will be a carnovale and in the carnival will be introduced the ballet headed by Mlle. Teresa Antoneli, premiere danseuse; that wonderful young woman, Leona Dare, said to be the finest gymnaste in the world; Stephen Dare and Thomas H. Hall, trapezists; the Garrellas, parlor gymnasts of Eastern fame and the Razillia Brothers, three young gentlemen of this city, who are emulating and, it is whispered, who are quite equal to the Girards.

Work is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible at Wade's Opera House. The balcony has been upholstered and the marble tiles of the corridor are being laid. In addition to those members of the company, whose names we have already mentioned, there is now Mr. James J. Bartlett, the Stage Manager, who arrived last night from the East and under whose supervision the grand spectacle of "Snowflake," will be produced in which Miss Winetta Montague will take the part of Queen and Miss Annie Dean that of Snowflake.

The steamer Sol Thomas will make excursion trips from Market-street wharf to the Japanese man-of-war Tsukuba, on Sunday. A Japanese man-of-war ought to be a great curiosity. For time table see advertisement.

In consequence of the dampness of the ceiling it has been found impossible to do anything with the frescoing of the Market Street Theatre, next week however, Signor Garibaldi inteads leaving the tokens of his brush. The proscenium boxes are receiving the finishing touches. One of the sights of this theatre will be principal staircase of black walnut, rich, handsome and costing about $4,000. The theatre will be positively opened on the 1st of February, 1876, by Mrs. Oates and Opera Bouffe troupe, her engagement to be followed by that of the Kellogg English Opera Company.

Amongst the stars engaged for appearance at the California Theatre is Mrs. Waller who has been recently playing at Booth, New-York. As she will in every probability play Meg Merrilies during her engagement it will be interesting to hear something about her. The last issue of the N. Y. Spirit of the Times says:

> A rather large audience assembled on Monday to see Mrs. Waller as Meg Merrilies. We are sorry so good an actress chose so forlorn a play for her first appearance. Guy Mannering is simply intolerably wearisome. Certainly if it were not for women like Miss Cushman, Miss Dargon, and Mrs. Waller undertaking from time to time, to act the remarkable character of Meg Merriles, "Guy Mannering" would ere this have been banished the stage. Mrs. Waller displayed, as the Gypsy queen, ability of the highest order. She was admirable in almost everything she did. Her elocution is remarkably good, and her voice really beautiful; in fact, too beautiful, rich, and sonorous for the part. She could not keep it toned down to the squeaky accents of an old beldame, and so at times it was squeaky and at others powerful and rich, beyond the natural capacity of an ancient hag like Meg. Mrs. Waller did not attempt to use the Scotch accent. It is absurd to compare her with Charlotte Cushman, but still she kept close to the traditions of the character, and her business did not essentially differ from that of her illustrious predecessor. Her make-up did not please us; the red, which predominated in her rags, was of too vivid a hue. Mrs. Waller chose the shade of red the Irish love, and not the dark brick red which is so great a favorite with the Scotch peasantry. Her handkerchief was brought too low upon the forehead, and separated the white locks so as to give them the appearance of not belonging to her. Her shoes were nothing like as skillfully contrived as were Miss Cushman's, and, on the whole, she was not as picturesque as she might have been. She possesses superb plump arms, which no amount of charcoaling will make appear scraggy and withered. When one plays old women who ought to have thin arms, and one has a fine pair of plump ones, one wears sleeves and hides them as much as possible. So much for Mrs. W.'s costume; now for her acting. This was, to say the truth, very powerful and often very grand. Mrs. Waller is undoubtedly a fine tragic actress, and deserves to be more often before metropolitan audiences. She proceeds to California, and will there doubtless be eminently successful. Her death scene was excellent, and won great applause.

NOTES FROM ABROAD.

Our readers will be pained to hear that Mr. Jefferson has lost his youngest son, four years old. This child, Harry, was Mr. Jefferson's pet, and was born n Chicago on the night of the great fire.

Minnie Hauck's triumphs in Berlin, as her many American friends and admirers will be glad to hear, are as pronounced as those she won at Vienna. In Verdi's "Aida" she took the Prussian capital by storm.

Recent advices speak of the great success of J. K. Emmett, at Belfast, Ireland, in his Teutonic delineation of "Fritz, Our Cousin German."

Among the stars who are coming over from England next year are Madge Robertson and her husband, W. H. Kendal.

Lydia Thompson and her associate burlesquers will surely re-visit this country next April. They are singing at the London Globe Theatre.

"The Two Orphans" are going the round of England and having great success.

Adolph Belot's latest Parisian drama is described as "a clever, powerful piece of lurid and disgusting brutality." As a matter of course, some one will at once adapt it to the American stage.

East Indian advices announce the death of John Edouin, husband of Tilly Earl and brother of Willie Edouin of the Lydia Thompson Troupe. He died at Bombay on Nov. 16 of consumption.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Not Exactly Original:

A young man was in company with several ladies and gentlemen one evening in a house on California Street. He is an amusing young fellow. The life and soul of all parties. He has such a flow of spirits, and such a delicate wit. On the evening in question he was in extra spirits, and launched out conundrum after conundrum. He noticed that one middle-aged gentleman did not laugh—that in fact his countenance bore a sad expression. The young man gave out the conundrum: "Why is a locomotive engine like a man that chews?" Out came the middle-aged man's handkerchief, and he buried his face in it and sobbed violetly. "Good heavens!" said the young man. "What's the matter?" "That conundrum," was the reply, "that conundrum took me back to the sunny days of boyhood, when I stood by my mother's knee, and she told me stories, or combed my hair, or jabbed me in the ribs with the hair-brush. It brings back the companions of my childhood, the games of tops and marbles, the swing under the great elm-tree, the bathing in the brook, the mud pies and the black eyes and bloody nose. Ah, young man, you should be careful in referring to acquaintances of the aged. "Look here, old fellow, do you mean to say you ever heard that conundrum before? Why, it's original with me," said the young man. "Let me grasp your hand, sir," said the middle-aged man. "I have long wanted to know the author of that conundrum. It soothed me in hours of pain, and it got me a wholloping when I went to school, when I propounded it to the children in the class with me, and they laughed at the answer in their ignorant innocence. Ah, sir, it gives me pleasure to meet you. You bear your years remarkably well, for you must be old enough to be my father if you invented that conundrum." The young man subsided for the evening.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

California Theatre.

"Married in Haste" would certainly have run longer than Saturday night, but Mr. Lingard's engagement closes on Friday next and the management is desirous to show that Mr. Lingard has a few other good things in his stellar repertoire. So to-night W. S. Gilbert's comedy in two acts entitled "Sweethearts" and Arthur Sullivan's comic opera in one act entitled "I Ladroni" will be produced. In both pieces Miss Emmie Dunning will appear, W. H. Lingard being of course prominently in the casts. Both Gilbert and Sullivan are well known authors, Gilbert's "Palace of Truth," "Pygmalion and Galatea" and "Wicked World" having raised him to a high position in the dramatist's world and Sullivan as the author of "Cox and Box" and the composer of some lovely songs taking fair rank amongst musicians.

Maguire's New Theatre.

On Saturday night last the short season of opera at this house was concluded with the presentation of Halevy's "La Juive." It was advertised as being the first production in California, but this announcement was obviously in error as may be seen by referring to the note concerning its former presentations in this city. The Fabbri company is more to be congratulated on its dramatic than on its musical success of Saturday night. The opera company opens at Sacramento Thursday night.

That same night the Maguire Burlesque and Comedy Company having returned from Sacramento, will open at this theatre in the famous burlesque of "Fortunio, and His Seven Gifted Servants," which will be produced after six weeks of preparation.

Opera House.

The first part of the bill concludes with the Centennial Finale which has made quite a hit. In the second part, Charley Reed will make a few remarks, Ernest Linden will sing a favorite cavatina, Emerson is down for his specialties and the Allen Sisters a d La Petite Schumann will appear in new infantile ballets.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

Every portion of this new place of amusement was crowded to excess on its opening night, on Saturday last, and a very large audience was present last evening. The opening is certainly a success. "Gaspardo" proves to be a play above the ordinary literary merit of ranting melodramas. Mr. Thorne in the title role gave a powerful rendition of the hero, and frequently brought down the house with applause. Miss Kate Denin, Miss Emily Denin, J. A. Sawtelle, R. G. Marsh, C. Mestayer and Jas. C. Burrows, gave able support in their respective characters. Lulu Wilson and Jake Wallace are noticeable for their hits made in the Interlude. In the musical farce of "Opera Mad," Laura Stevenson gave some excellent vocalization in her operatic imitations, and R. G. Marsh was quite quaint and funny as Timothy Brown; his classifying his opera as a real opera and not a Fabbri-cated one was a hit. Same bill to-night. The theatre is very comfortably arranged, commodious, and well lighted. The stage is large and capable of presenting fine melodramatic effects. The drop curtain, a medalion landscape by Straus, is a very creditable piece of work.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

St. Leon and Swain's double song and dance, Miss Emma Bellmore's vocalisms, G. C. Thompson's specialties, Charley Kimic's Dutch eccentricities and a good quartette of acts all on to-night's bill.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Millie Josephine premere donseuse and C. W. Anderson, the working man's friend, will make their first apppearance here to-night, the first is a Scottish dance and the second is a serio comic song. Other novel features will be found on the bill.

New Lyceum Theatre.

For to night there will be banjoistic comicalities by Charley King, the act "A Live Indian" by Kelly and Company, violin solo by Miss Cooper, a guitar duet by Cherry Belle and W. Luther, and other attractions too numerous to mention.

Woodward's Gardens.

Extra attractions for Saturday and Sunday; John Wretland the Lancashire clog dancer, M. Cathcart, character and Irish jig dancer; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Samwells and Ducrow in acrobatic feats, Miss Mathews; Mrs. Woodruffe, artist in glass, and orchestral concert.

Notes.

The Lenton family recently playing at Salt Lake are under engagement to Manager Bert.

We are glad to say that Prof. Plummer had a good house at Corinthian Hall on Friday night last, the audience being kept from beginning to end a capital programme in an excellent humor.

It is said that we may shortly expect a colored troupe of minstrels here, who will attempt the revival of the old plantation melodies Mr. Hayden, who will be remembered as the agent of Cole's Circus, occupied the same position for this troupe and is at present, we believe, in Sacramento.

The story published in Friday's Chronicle about the difficulty experienced in obtaining ballet girls for the holiday pieces must be taken with a grain of salt, The managers have engaged all the ballet girls they want, and could have got plenty more if needed.

Chas. Vivian has effected a combination with Johnny Angeles, and will with him, daughter and son, shortly visit this city.

"La Juive" was produced by Signor Bianchi, October 3, 1866, at the Metropolitan Theatre, in Italian, and was several times repeated with great success. The cast included Signorina Brambilla as Rachel, Miss Tourny as Eudossio, Schraubstadter as Leopoldo, Milleri as the Cardinal, Bianchi as Lazaro, and Charles and Roncovieri in the other roles. It was revived by Professor Mulder-Fabbri at the California Theatre, February 24, 1873, for a few nights, with Mme. Fabbri, Miss Elzer, and Messrs. Bianchi, Baccei and Muller in the cast.

Miss [illegible] Howard has been playing successfully in "Solid [illegible]er" in Chicago, and was to commence her second week in Boucicault's "Hunted Down," to be followed by "The New Magdalen."

Some week or two ago we mentioned the intention of Joe Murphy to take a trip into the interior with a company He started this morning, playing at Vallejo to-night; Napa, Tuesday; Oakland, Wednesday; Stockton, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. On the 27th, he will be found at Truckee, from which the tour will extend through Reno, Gold Hill, Virginia City, Carson, Winnemucca, Palisades and Eureka. The company includes, Harry Gordon, Jake Wallace, Miss Hattie Roach, Miss Robinson, and Williams and Christie. Time of trip about three weeks.

Frank Wilton and troupe will give three Xmas performances at the Petaluma Theatre On Xmas Eve "Dora" will be presented. "Don Cæsar de Bazan" for the Xmas Day Matinee, and "Nick of the Woods" for the Xmas night

Mr. John McCullough already plays an improved version of "Damon and Pythias," the improvements being the handiwork of Dion Shakspeare Boucicault, and now we understand that the same master-spirit is at work on "Jack Cade" for our tragedian. When he intends "improving" "Othello" we will let our readers know.

As we have already twice announced, Rignold and "Henry V." will open at the California Theatre in February next. We also learn that Frederick Thorne, whose Fluellen attracts as much, if not more attention than Rignold's young monarch, has also been engaged.

We hear that Prof. Ehrich, for a long time leader at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, has been appointed chef d'orchestre of Wade's Opera House.

Maguire's Comedy Company is doing well at Sacramento. "Under the Gaslight," which was produced on the 14th, created quite a sensation.

Mr Herold has concluded to postpone his next orchestral matinee until the 12th of January next.

Mr. and Mrs, Robert Fulford are now playing with a small company in Eureka.

Mr. George L. Fox, after making his last stage appearance at Booth's Theatre, in N. Y., Nov. 27th, was taken in a carriage by his brother James and his brother-in-law, Mr. George O. Howard, to the depot, and there induced to enter a car for Boston, with the assurance that he was simply going upon a little pleasure trip. At Boston, he was persuaded with great difficulty to enter a close carriage. He was then driven to the private insane asylum of Dr. McLean, in the neighborhood of the city. There is but slight hope that he will be cured of his insanity. His late "Humpty-Dumpty" Troupe will be conducted by George H. Tyler, under the name of the Fox Pantomime Troupe, and Mrs. Fox will receive half the net profits. Fox is said to have rapidly grown worse since his withdrawal from the stage.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

CONSTRAINT.

Down through the orchard wandered we,
Where, bending low each burdened tree
  Hung full of fruitage yellow;
'Twas morning, and the Autumn sun,
Shone on the leaves of gold and dun,
  With radiance soft and mellow.

There came a blush upon her cheek,
I thought my time had come to speak,
  She seemed so sad and tender;
I touched her snowy, dimpled hand,
But found no words at my command,
  My burning love to render.

At last we paused beneath a tree,
The branch that sheltered her and me,
  Reached low its luscious fruit.
"Be seated, pray," I gently pled;
"I cannot cannot," soft she said,
  "I'm in my walking suit."

FEMININE NAMES AND THEIR SIGNIFICANCE.

Anne, Annavor Hannah, signifies gracious. Anne has been a favorite name with royalty. Anne "the Good," Anne of Austria, the queen of James I, two of the wives of Henry VIII, the gentle Anne Nevil, Anne Boleyn, the wife of Richard III, and daughter of the "Last of the Barons," are only a few of the royal personages who have borne this appellation, and who were, we hope, all "gracious." Anne, or its variations, has also been the name of many literary ladies. Mrs. Hannah Moore, Miss A. M. Porter, one of the Misses Bronte, Mrs. S. C. Hall, Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Steward, all had this name. Adelaide or Adelene, signifies noble lady; Agnes, chaste— a nunlike name; Barbara, strange or foreign; Bertha, bright, white or fair.

Caroline and Charlotte, the feminine of Charles, signifies valiant. The Lady Caroline Lamb, Mrs. Southey, the Honorable Mrs. Norton, were Carolines: while Charlotte has been honored by such such women as Charlotte Corday, Charlotte Smith and Chorlotte Bronte. Cecilia, dim-eyed. Constance signifies constant, and Clementina merciful; Ellen or Helen, aluring; Elizabeth, worshiper. There have been many royal Elizabeths, besides "Gloriana;" Emma, a nurse.

Frances, frank or free--a good signification—the name of Mrs. Trollope and Mrs. Butler, better known as Fanny Kemble; Felicia, happy.

Harriet or Henrietta, rich lady, the name of Miss Martineau and Mrs. Howe. Jane signifies gracious, the name of several queens, also of the authoress of the "Scottish Chiefs," and Johanna, that of the poetess, Miss Bailie. Julia signifies mossy-bearded. Lucy is derived from lucid, and has the same signification—namely, clear.

Letitia, joy. Letitia is the name of the sweet poetess, Miss Landon, or "L. E. L." Mabel signifies fair; Margaret a pearl.

Mary, bitter. Mary Queen of Scots was only one of many crowned heads of all nations who have borne this favorite appellation. Literary ladies, too, have often borne this name. Lady Mary Worley Montague; also Mrs. Howitt. Mrs Chapone, Miss Mitford, Mrs. Shelley, and other gifted persons have been "Marie." Marthe signifies bitterness, and Marian has the same meaning.

Olivia, signifies an olive; Penelope, a turkey; Priscilla, ancient. Rosamond, Rosalind, and Rose, a rose; Rhoda, the same flower. Rebecca, plump; Rachel, a lamb; Ruth, a trembler. Sarah signifies a princess, and was the name of the Shrewish Duchess of Marlborough, as well as that of the majestic Miss Siddons; Susan, a lily; and Stella, a star. Ursula, a she-bear.

Dr. Percy tells the past correctly or no fee.

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

A traveler visiting a cathedral was shown by the sacristan among other marvels, a dirty, opaque, glass phial. After eyeing it some time, the traveler said: "Do you call this a relic?" Why it is empty." "Empty," retorted the sacristan indignantly; "sir, it contains some of the darkness that Moses spread over the land of Egypt.

After a diligent search of ancient and scriptural history, we find that it was a woman who used the first oath. Adam complained that it was wrong to eat the forbidden fruit. Eve replied, "I don't care A-dam!" and took a mouthful.

A Yankee says: "If our wife desired to run away with another man, we would wish her Godspeed. We think too much of her to see her want for anything."

Little Willie having hunted in all the corners for his shoes, at last appears to give them up, and, climbing on a chair, betakes himself to a big book on a side table. Mother says to him: "What is darling doing with this book?" "It ith the dictionary: papa lookth in the dictionary for things, and I'm looking in it to see if I can find my shoes."

A drag driven by an elegantly attired lady, and with a trim and neatly-dressed colored boy perched on the footman's seat behind, was passing through the streets, when it was espied by an old colored woman. "Bress de Lord," she exclaimed, raising her hands as she spoke; "bress de Lord, I never 'spected to see dat. Wunder what dat cullud young gemman pays dat young white 'oman fur drivin' dat kerridge? I know'd it'd come, but never 'spected to lib to see it. Dis nigga' ready to go 'way, now!"

"Flipping toes" is the fragrant flower of speech applied to dancing by the first society of Osborne City, Kansas.

A milkman was awoke by a wag in the night with the announcement that his best cow was choking. He forthwith jumped up to save the life of the animal, when, lo! he found a turnip stuck in the mouth of the pump.

A Virginia widow furnished her second bridegroom with this card for the satisfaction of the authorities: "This is to certify that I hereby give Tom ——— leaf to get license to marry me, I being full grone, and of age, forty-five years old, my parents and all of my relation being willing for me to marry. Lucinda ——, daughter of ——, November 3, 1875."

"My son," said a dying grocer to his probable successor to the business, "never put sand in the sugar. Cherish a reputation for fair and honorable nealings with your fellow-men and use terra alba instead; it's quite as heavy, and don't grit on the teeth!"

The attitude of Europe toward Turkey reminds one of the old caricature in which the housewife is represented as coming into the poultry yard, with the remark, "My dear chickens, I was just thinking whether I would have served up roast or stewed." Whereto the chickens respond, "but we don't want to be killed." "Ah! But, my dear chickens," says she, "you wander from the point."

The other day, a young man, decidedly inebriated, walked into the Executive Chamber, and asked for the Governor. "What do you want with him?" inquired the Secretary, "Oh, I want an office, with a good salary—a sinecure." "Well, replied the Secretary, "I can tell you something better for you than a sinecure—you had better try a water cure." A new idea seemed to strike the young inebriate, and he vanished.

"I scream," said the little boy who had been trying to lick the bottom of the freezer, and fell in.

The season is now upon us when she pulls all the clothes over to her side of the bed at 5 A. M. sharp, punches him vigorously in the small of the back with her icy-cold left heel, and sarcastically inquires if he expects her to fry flap-jacks without fire.

When the man said, look into my heart," it is supposed he had a windy-pane in his stomach."

A subscriber to a Southwestern newspaper died recently, leaving four years' subscription unpaid. The editor appeared at the grave and deposited on the coffin a palm leaf fan, a linen coat, and a thermometer. Moral—well, that's obvious.

Dr. D. PERCY, Astrologer and Healer, No. 206 Kearny street. N

A Clever Parody:

A good parody of Wolsey's speech in "Henry VIII.," which might well be called "The Bad Actor's Lament," is the following:

"Farewell, a long farewell to all my my acting.
This is an actor's state;—To-night he puts forth
The diffident words of hope; the next night bellows,
And bears his friend's applause loud upon him—
The third night comes a hiss, a killing hiss;
And, when he thinks, good easy man, full surely
His fortune is a ripening—nips his fame
And then he falls as I do. I have ventured
Like brainless wanton bards who swim with the tide
These several ev'nings, in a dream of glory,
In parts beyond my power, my high-strained rank
At length broke under me, and now has left me,
Weary and tired with speeches, to the mercy
Of a just pit, that will forever damn me.
Vain, pomp, and glory of the stage, I hate ye!
I feel my mouth now open'd—O, how wretched
Is that poor man, who hangs on critics' favors.
There is, betwixt the applause he would aspire to
(That sweet aspect of faces and loud hands),
More pangs and terrors than newspapers have;
And when he falls—he falls as dead men do
Never to act again.'"

This curious, but clever parody, was published as early as 1818, in an old English paper, and, we believe, has never been reprinted since until now.

A Careful Husband.

We suppose the fact will be conceded that the best husbands in the United States are raised in Connecticut. As an illustration we have the following story of a Norwich man who recently lost his better half. Being of a thrifty turn, he was somewhat exercised by the expenses incidental to his wife's illness. A few days before her death he went to his drugger with an empty four-ounce bottle to have it refilled with a solution of chloral-hydrate, of which she had required a considerable quantity. With some hesitation he handed it to the druggist, saying, "Is that chloral as expensive as ever?"

"The price is the same, sir."

"Let me see; it costs sixty-five cents to fill the bottle, I believe?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, then, I guess you need not but half fill it this time. The doctor says she can't last but a day or two longer, anyhow.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

On Thursday night the Maguire Burlesque and Comedy Company having returned from Sacramento, will open at this theatre in the famous burlesque of "Fortunio, and His Seven Gifted Servants," which will be produced after six weeks of preparation.

Yesterday, we spoke of the probable arrival here of a troupe of Colored Minstrels, and to-day we have to announce that this company, known as the Tennessee Jubilee Singers, from Lexington College, will open at this theatre on Monday, January 3d, under engagement to Manager Maguire.

Opera House.

The representatives of "The Regular Army Oh being Messrs. Emerson, Sutton, Wilson, Mackin, Reed and Welch are bound to be as great favorites as were the gallant colored troops who fought so nobly under the name of "The Skidmore Guards." "Betsy and I are Out" by Mackin and Wilson, is new and clever. Emerson's specialties are always acceptable and in fact the whole bill is a great improvement on that of last week. An immense house of course.

California Theatre.

Miss Emmie Dunning, concerning, whose first appearance, the chief interest was felt at this theatre last night, is undoubtedly of the family Dunning; face, form and manner all seem familiar to us. She has a pleasant, sweet voice as was shown in the comic operetta of "I Ladroni;" and many capabilities as an actress as was proved by the manner in which she played Miss Jenny Northcott in the comedy of "Sweethearts." In the comedy too Mr. Lingard was seen to advantage, his powers of make-up being well illustrated in the first and second acts of this clever little piece, between which thirty years are supposed to elapse. In "I Ladroni," W. H. Mestayer and Miss Belle Chapman were the only two members of the stock, supporting the stars. The music is exceedingly pretty and the situations generally well arranged and always ludicrous. The whole bill concludes in good season, the curtain coming down at 10 o'clock.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

This evening the melodrama of "The Fool's Revenge" and the drama of "The Miser's Daughter; or the Seven Clerks and Three Thieves." THE UNFINISHED PRAYER.

"Now I lay,"—"repeat it, darling"—
"Lay me," lisped the tiny lips
Of my daughter, kneeling, bending
O'er her folded finger tips.

"Down to sleep"— "To sleep," she murmured,
And the curly head bent low;
"I pray the Lord," I gently added,
"You can say it all, I know."

"Pray the Lord"—the sound came faintly
Fainter still—"my soul to keep,"
Then the tired head fairly nodded,
And the child was fast asleep.

But the dewy eyes half opened,
When I clasped her to my breast,
And the dear voice softly whispered,
"Mamma, God knows all the rest."

Pauline Dejazet.

Pauline Dejazet, was born August 30th, 1797. Her debut was made at five years of age, in a little theatre standing near where now the Rue de la Paix dazzles the stranger's eye. The success was wonderful. Dejazet was never great, but she was brilliant, and her vanity became amusing. During sixty-five years Dejazet persevered in hating and ridiculing fair-skinned and fair-haired girls, because one had eclipsed her in dancing, singing, and acting at Bordeaux. Yet she had no special predilections for parts demanding the possession of feminine beauty; her favorite impersonation was that of Bonaparte, as a young man, with the glories of Arcola upon him, pale, sallow, solemn, with the well-remembered uniform. Few among her contemporaries have approached her art of mimicry. But Dejazet was rarely comic, though in young men's parts, often ludicrously satirical. She had ever been the most graceful fairy, the most delicate Mignon, the most imperial lady of five feet two, amd the most charitable actress of Paris. Paris called her "the Muse of Vaudeville," and it is recorded that no piece in which she appeared was ever a total failure. Dejazet danced before the allied sovereigns when they entered Paris in 1815, and even then was well known as a celebrity. "How old is Dejazet?" inquired the ex-Queen of Spain. "She will soon, madame, be twenty years." "Twenty years!" "Yes, madame, for the fourth time!" Mlle. Dejazet was never married, but left a son and a daughter. The former, Eugene, was for years the business manager for his mother. Both himself and sister tried the stage, but without success. They achieved better success as musical composers, yet attained little celebrity on that stage.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1860 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if those who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

MARTIN TUPPER'S DRAMA.

Martin F. Tupper, the author of "Proverbial Philosophy," has written a drama in five acts entitled "Washington," which he intends to have brought out in this country during the coming centennial year. Colonel Forney writes that Mr. Tupper will come over in person and superintend the introduction of the play. The characters represented are Washington, Franklin, Patrick Henry, John Adams, Benedict Arnold, Lafayette, Andre, Martha Washington and Mary Arnold. And a vastly odd play it is, says the New York Spirit of the Times. Proverbial philosophy abounds throughout the dialogue. Ben Franklin is a rare old tiger as Mr. Tupper makes him out. He's down on state and church. Listen to him:

> "I said we hated priestcraft, and would none
> Of State religion and its hierarchy;
> We would have none of foreign laws or judges
> Or taskmaster officials grinding us
> By tyrannous taxation everywhere;
> I told them we renounced, renounced all these,
> And claimed, though loyal still, self-government.
> Yet all fell through; an utter chaos of failure
> Seemed to crash round me like a shattered world;
> And I then felt much as that self-strong man,
> Horace, you remember, who defied,
> As you with me defy, the thunderbolt
> Even of tyrannic Jove himself. Alone,
> In the calm majesty of self-respect,
> I then threw down your gage of independence,
> And, full free conduct granted, came away
> Pledged, like ourselves, a rebel for the right."

This isn't the Franklin of history; but what's history to Tupper? Mr. Cathcart ought to play this character, or Junius Brutus Booth would do it justice. Ben in the play is an out-and-out blood and thunderer. As to Washington, he is grand. He says in his soliloquy he don't like to be "hanged, drawn, and quartered." He considers that a fearful price for the mere strife to conquer liberty. He think it's disagreeable to forfeit the vast estates, "his honored father left him, and to part with his best loved wife." To see Martha a beggar would be awful indeed. Washington, according to Mr. Tupper, looks upon England as his mother, but as a very naughty old hussy at that. Poor old Britannia is described by him as worse than she looks on a penny piece when a cart wheel's been over her visage—"an unmotherly, harsh-featured, heavy-handed (did she ever smack Washington or Tupper), callous, hard-hearted"—baggage, we add—that's General Washington's old mother, England. Mr. Tupper describes the battle-field of Lexington, as full of "a mighty people, flaming red with rage!" Anything funnier than Mr. Tupper's Centennial poem cannot be imagined. We should like to see the audience which would sit it out. Even the gods could never be bribed to do it. They'd fall asleep before it was half over. For pity's sake let Mr. Tupper stay on Britain's shores and keep Washington in his breeches pocket until called for.

DR. D. PERCY, the Eminent Healer, describes your disease and all its symptoms without asking a question, and charges nothing for it.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, Nov. 16th, 1875.

DEAR FIGARO:—Such a plethora of first class entertainments has never before been presented by the Australian public than has been furnished since I last wrote you. At the Opera House the charming artiste

EMILIE MELVILLE,

Has been the great attraction. She has appeared in "The Grand Duchess," "Girofle-Girofla," "Fra Diavolo," "The Bohemian Girl," and "La Perichole." The last assumption was a perfect gem of opera bouffe acting and singing, and the sweet little woman excites the utmost admiration and applause wherever she appears. In engaging this talented lady,

MR. WILLIAM SAURIN LYSTER,

Has again shown his eagerness and determination to obtain talent of the highest class within reach, and has added another to the many obligations the public are indebted to him for during his lengthened management of operatic affairs in this city. The company engaged consists of Mesdames Clara Thompson (sister to Lydia Thompson), Mrs. Bell (Jennie Winston), Miss Fox, Miss Bessie Royal and Miss Annie Woodbridge. Messrs. Armes Beaumont, Henry Tracy, J. E. Kitts, C. J. Templeton, G. Leopold, A. Bell and many others of lesser note. The Melville season has been a great success. Next week will be produced "La Jolie Parfumeuse" to be followed by "Les pres de St. Gervais," lastly played at the Criterion Theatre, London. At the Royal, another gem in the person of

NELL, THE CALIFORNIA DIAMOND,

Is crowding the house by her clever protean performance in the play of

"NO NAME."

There's no mistake about it, she has taken the people by the wool, and keeps her hold upon them.

MR. GEORGE GIDDENS

Has met with unqualified praise. He is indeed a great acquisition to the ranks of our actors in this colony. Some one or other has evidently hurt his feelings and he has taken such notice of a silly, foolish gossip that all artists have more or less to submit to as to send the following letter to the press for publication:

"THEATRE ROYAL, Nov. 13th, 1875.

DEAR SIR:—To set at rest various rumors that are circulating, concerng in the relations existing between the lady professionally known as Nell, the California Diamond, and myself, in justice to that lady I feel it necessary to state that those relations are of a strictly business nature. This will be the more readily believed when I say that I am happily married to a lady in America, and I am still more happily the proud father of a young lady seven years of age. Your Truly,

GEORGE GIDDENS."

So you see what a good boy is George! Prior to the appearance of Miss Williams (Little Nell), Madame Janauschek played a short season with but indifferent success. Her Lady Macbeth was, however, a fine personation, as was that of the Thane of

MR. DAMPIER,

Who again showed himself to be possessed of talents far above the average of stock leading men. Many and many a star here has appeared in tragedy with nothing like the success obtained by this talented gentleman. His position as an excellent actor and student, and clever attentive Stage Manager is here secured. It is only the want of legitimate opportunities that often prevents him showing the "mettle" that is in him.

THE THEATRE ROYAL COMPANY

Is the best in the Australian colonies. Little Nell's performances will carry the management up to Christmas, when a new pantomime will be produced.

ST. GEORE'S HALL

Has been tenanted by J. McDonough's "Royal Marionettes," a really excellent and clever entertainment, and nothing but the ill-natured, ignorant letter sent by the McDonough (alluded to in a special article) would have marred the mutual friendly relations between the management, the press and the public.

MR. JOHN SMITH,

Like a warrior recuperated, again comes to the fro as an entrepreneur, and will, on Monday next at the St. George's Hall, introduce Mr. Willard, just arrived from London, in his entertainment,

"WILLARD'S WANDERINGS,"

and at the close of his season in Melbourne,

MR. J. C. RAINER,

The spirited lessee of the Hall, will re-introduce

DR. SYLVESTER, THE FAKIR OF OOLU,

To the Melbourne public. This gentleman has been away on a tour in New Zealand, Queensland, and New South Wales, and business has been immense. He will play in Melbourne during the Christmas Carnival.

MLLE. ILMA DE MURSKA.

Has captivated her hearers with her charming vocalization, while the excellent manner in which her business has been engineered by her gentlemanly and almost ubiquitous agent,

SIGNOR DE VIVO,

Is the theme of conversation in all musical circles. The company when in Melbourne, consisted of the fair cantatrice herself, Signor Giammona, Signor Carmini Morley, Signor Susini and Mr. C. E. Pratt, the pianist. The freaks and eccentricities of this latter gentleman have culminated in his entering the married state as the annexed advertisement will testify.

PRATT—SAQUI.—On the 13th ult., at St Andrew's Manse, Carlton, by the Rev D S. M'Eachran Charles Eugene Pratt, pianist, of New York city, to Sarah, daughter of the late Isaac Saqui, of London.

After this he seceded the company.

MADAME RISTORI.

This colony of Victoria is not of half a century's growth, and yet, so far as intellectual progress is concerned, it is far ahead of many nations of the old world. Our educational policy is one that must excite the wonder and admiration of all classes who may deign to study the rise and progress of this young colony. Hundreds of thousands of pounds have been expended with a prodigal hand upon our system of education, and the laws of compulsory education are being strictly enforced. With this gratifying state of things the exaltation of stage representation has received great attention. To Mr. George Coppin, be his faults and foibles in other directions what they may, belongs the credit of introducing from time to time the creme de la creme of the world's talent. In fact there are very few artists who have strutted their brief hour upon the British stage who have not honored us with a professional visit, and have had ample reason to be satisfied with their venture. But the culmination, the climax, of all these, has been the performances of the greatest tragedienne in the world, the Marchioness del Grillo, Madame Ristori, with a company of the most talented artists ever found in one troupe. The visit of this gifted lady will always be a red letter day in the annals of the drama in Victoria, in all Australia. Her acting surpasses all description. Though not understanding one single word, the acting is so great that one almost intuitively comprehends everything that she is delineating. Her sleep-walking scene from Lady Macbeth, being given in excellent English, was an immense treat, and only set one wondering what a grand impersonation it would be as a whole. On Saturday night last she gave her farewell performance to Melbourne at the Town Hall, appearing in selections from "Marie Stuart" and "Elizabeth." The building was crammed in every part, and during the proceedings the great artiste was crowned with a golden coronet amidst the most intense excitement. It is said that she will shortly give an entertainment in aid of our charities, in which she will be most cordially joined by the company. In my last communication to you in reference to Madame Ristori, I said that I objected to the Town Hall being let to her for dramatic purposes, and I still hold to that opinion. The idea of doing so was a piece of snobbery on the part of some of the "unco guid" members of the corporation and sundry "snobs" led on by the kid-gloved gentry of the Argus. I am quite justified in asserting that if any traveling dramatic company without name or fame, and who would be willing to "post the sugar" for the rent, would certainly be repulsed and refused. Though a democratic country, toadyism and snobbery are as rampant here as in any place in the world, and should the heir to the crown of Great Britain condescend to visit us, our people par excellence would crawl on their bellies with as much gusto as though in the most Tory-ridden pocket borough in England. The enthusiasm, however, that has been created by Madame Ristori's visit and the homage justly rendered her has been but a just and honorable tribute to true genius. The remembrances of her great delineations will last while the records of the present generations remain in the minds of her listeners and admirers.

MADAME JANAUSCHEK.

It is with unfeigned regret that I am compelled to state that the career of this lady in this part of the world has been a great financial failure. In Sydney her engagement came to an abrupt termination, partly through the mis-management of Mr. Jas. Allison, who was then locum tenens for Mr. Lazar, and the thoroughly inefficient body of artists engaged to support her. In Melbourne, however, it was very different. She appeared in the finest theatre South of the line, at the Theatre Royal, the company, the best in Australia, with scenery by Mr. John Hennings, who can hold his own easily with any scenic artist in the world, and appointments and properties that would be a credit to any stage in America. Still she did not draw in the people. She opened very ill-advisedly in "Marie Stuart"—recently performed by Madame Ristori at the Opera House, and whose grand conception was green in the memories of Madame Janauschek's visitors—"Medea" followed with worse results—in fact she made no "hit" until the production of "Chesney Wold" in which she assumed the dual characters of Lady Dedlock and Hortense, the French serving maid with considerable force and originality. This she followed up with Lady Macbeth, a really splendid performance, but with too much elaboration. The tide of prosperity had, however, set in against her, and wisely for herself and the management, she prematurely closed her engagement. I can easily trace the cause of her non-success in this city to the injudicious puffery and posting of her abilities and of the thorough mastery she had acquired of the English language. The people were from the first disappointed with the artist, and she at last was disappointed with her audience. She made her last appearance in Melbourne at a "complimentary benefit," given by her to the management, Messrs. Harwood, Stewart, Hennings, and Coppin. It is, I hear, the intention of Madame Janauschek to return immediately to San Francisco, whither she will be accompanied by Mr. Phil Kirby, one of the most popular and gentlemaply agents and business men in the Australian Colonies.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Besides which there are the two comic songs from the end men, "Oyster Eating Nigger" by Fayette Welch and "Susan Jane" by Billy Emerson.

California Theatre.

In the comedy of "Sweethearts" there is a character of a gardener, called Wilcox, taken here by a Mr. E. D. Haygarth. The part is small and the actor is new, but there is enough to show that Mr. Haygarth with more will do more. The preparations for the great Christmas spectacle are on the point of completion and Christmas Eve will not come too soon.

Maguire's New Theatre.

On Thursday night the Maguire Burlesque and Comedy Company will open at this theatre in the famous burlesque of "Fortunio, and His Seven Gifted Servants," which will be produced after six weeks of preparation. A splendid Xmas bill is promised. In the divertisement scene, the Lenton-Ware gymnastic and musical combination will appear. The company, known as the Tennessee Jubilee Singers, from Lexington College, will open at this theatre on Monday, January 3d, under engagement to Manager Maguire.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

The bill now consists of the two powerful dramas "The Fool's Revenge" and "The Miser's Daughter." The first embodies the story of the opera "Rigoletto," and the second is sometimes known as "The Seven Clerks." The casts embraces the strength of the company, there is an interlude of singing and dancing, the house is comfortable and the prices are popular.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

St. Leon and Swain's "Yankee Boy and Girl," Dan Lowry in his specialties, Miss Emma Bellmore in her songs, Miss Kittie Leroy in an Irish jig, all on the bill to-night. Xmas novelty in preparation.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Miss Emma Cooper has reappeared here and has met with a most enthusiastic reception Cherry Belle's delusions, Johnny Wretland's dancing, Charley King's badjoistics to-night. A Xmas piece will be presented.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Not content with giving their patrons a good time, the company last night, or rather early this morning, gave Mr. J. Barrington, the proprietor a complimentary serenade. At the conclusion of some first-rate selections the serenaders were invited into the house and another good time was had.

Woodward's Gardens.

Extra attractions for Saturday and Sunday; John Wretland the Lancashire clog dancer, M. Cathcart, character and Irish jig dancer; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Samwells and Ducrow in acrobatic feats, Miss Mathews; Mrs. Woodruffe, artist in glass, and orchestral concert.

Notes.

An Open Letter to the Public.

Not a day goes by but I receive letters from persons in this city and country inquiring about my goods as to their quality and cheapness. Many proud and foolish persons write, do you warrant your $10 gold chains, your $15 Ladies Watches, your $6 Silver Watches, your $15 Stone Cameo sets, your gold Necklaces, your Guns and Musical Instruments. I only can answer positively, we guarantee every article or refund the money. None need have any delicacy in buying from our store, as I personally inspect every article offered for sale. Very Respectfully, Uncle Harris, 702 and 704 Kearny street, corner Clay.

Cumulative Effects.

A minister who preached in a country town had been told beforehand that the people could not afford to pay him more than five dollar. After the service was over, he answered the congratulations of the elders with the remark, accompanied by a smile almost of contempt: "Do you call that an eloquent sermon? I should just like you to hear my ten dollar ones."

The Deacon's Horse.

A Georgia newspaper tells the following horse story: Deacon Smith of Wilkinson County, owns, or did own, a horse, which once saved him an incalculable amount of money by its intelligence. The deacon says that he and his wife while partaking of their noonday meal, were very much surprised at the actions of their horse, which was loose in the road near the house. It would run up to the gate, neigh vociferously and then run off again. This was repeated several times, and the deacon rose from the table to ascertain the cause of its strange conduct. He reached the door and looked out, and saw, away in the direction the horse had run, a dense smoke. He seized his hat and ran to the place. "Gentlemen," said he, "lightning had struck a tree and set it on fire, and the flames had communicated to my fence around my corn field containing about 600 bushels of corn. The fire had consumed about a dozen panels of fencing, and reached a brook. My horse when I arrived, was standing in this brook dipping her tail in the water, and throwing the water on the burning fence." The crowd looked incredulous, and the deacon said: "Gentlemen, if you don't believe it, you ask Mahaly, my wife."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer,
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Seore at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

MR. JOHN M'DONOUGH AND THE MELBOURNE PRESS.

This individual, who thanks to a really good entertainment (the Marionettes) and the very kind reception his "show" has received both from the press and the public, has amassed a considerable sum of money in this city, on a late occasion appeared at the Theatre Royal as Iago in two acts of "Othello." His appearance was looked upon as a joke on all sides and was thoroughly enjoyed as such. The Moor of

MR. STUART O'BRIEN,

Was a really excellent performance and so saved the presentation from being a burlesque as Mr. M'Donough had neither appearance, gait, figure, dress or even passable talent to represent the Moor's ancient. The press treated him very lightly, and gently, but the great "Walnut Street Theatre" tragedian waxed very sore at the pleasantry of "Tabity," in the Australasian, who wrote thus of his attempt at a performance:

"Mr. J. E. M'Donough played Iago in the second and third acts of 'Othello.' It is not beyond possibility that Iago, supposing him ever to have exhisted, was a short, stout man; but I think the prejudice goes in favor of his being somewhat tall, or if not tall, certainly rather spare. A jolly-looking little fat man rather disarms one's dislike of Iago. Besides, Mr. M'Donough, has not the voice one associates with Iago. It is a loud inflexible voice. I take it that Iago should be played with a smooth, plausible manner; not with apparent craft, not with oily hypocrisy, and yet at the same time, not noisily. Perhaps, Mr. M'Donough was out of practice; perhaps, he has grown stout since he last played Iago; perhaps his voice has lost its mellowness. In any case, I think I should not counsel him to play Iago again."

Now this, in fact, was well meant advice and if taken, will be of service to the person to whom it was tendered. But no—the great "tragedian" from the "Walnut Street Theatre" must resent this injury to his dramatic fame and abilities. He, a ripe Shakesperian scholar and a man of first class literary and classical education to be told and by and Australian critic too, that he cannot play Shakespeare! Perish the thought! His blood was up, and irrespective of good breeding, gentle blood, and good orthography, he launches the following withering letter at the head of the writer, and being like Johnny Gilpin of a frugal mind sends it to the critic's house by a boy. I have seen the MS. of the letter and can vouch for the authenticity of the spelling, of which in printing, pray be careful to give "The Bold Iago" the full benefit.

"MEL., Novb. 5th, 1875.

"Sir,—Your windy eclat in to-day's Australasian, is but a true exhibit of your cynical soul.

"I am informed by those who know you, that a little flattery, and a check of £5, would have converted your gaul into sweet milk.

"Why (If you are capable) did you not Critisise my actinz or readings? Why reflect upon my figure? for I am sure your own insignifigence has many times protected you.

"If wanting in fafor be such a blemish in your eyes, you can find in your own family ample scope for redicule.

"'Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones.' The Bold Iago, To the little man-dragora. J. M'DONOUGH."

The writer to whom this precious epistle was sent, is a gentleman of high standing of over twenty years in this city. As a dramatic writer he justly occupies the premier position, and as a private individual, he is much respected and esteemed. The blackguard reference to the critic's "own family," is an allusion to his son, a poor boy, who from an accident in childhood, causing a curvature in his spine, will never be able to fight the battle of life. This cruel and uncalled for insult shows Mr. M'Donough to be a person without the slightest instinct of a gentleman or even a man while his caligraphy proves him to be an "unlettered rascal." His conduct in this matter is only deserving the contempt usually displayed to "unmannerly ruffians." Let us hope that his brutal conduct will meet with its proper reward. M'Donough, attend a spelling bee and an evening school!

MLLE. ILMA DE MURSKA, MR. GEORGE COPPIN AND "BLACK MAIL."

Since the advent of this gifted cantatrice to these colonies her career, thanks to her splendid abilities and the business energies displayed by her manager,

MR. DE VIVO,

Has been one of unqualified success, and the attendance at each successive performance has increased. Never before have the people of the colony had such a rare musical treat, and to add to her deserved popularity she seemed to take a pleasure in responding to encores and always with a grace that was acceptable to her hearers. On the occasion of her last appearance at the Town Hall here, occasion was taken to present her with a handsome diamond star at the hands of Mr. Gatehouse, the Mayor of Melbourne, who conveyed to her the very high estimation in which she is held in this city. But this charming lady it seems was not to leave the city without some considerable annoyance and unnecessary expense. On one occasion it seems she sang at one of her concerts the ballad "I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls," from Balfe's opera "The Bohemian Girl." It was notified that she would sing it some days before the event took place, and by its fine execution created a perfect furore. For some time after nothing occurred, but just as this lady and her company were about to leave for Sydney, Mr. George Coppin who previously had been unsuccessful in levying "black mail" on the cantatrice, was instrumental in sending the following letter—he averring that he is agent for Mrs. Balfe in the Australian colonies.

October 21, 1875.

Mdlle. Ilma de Murska,
Menzies' Hotl.

Madame,—As solicitors for Mrs. Lina Balfe, the proprietor of the entire copyright of and in the music of the opera known as "The Bohemain Girl," composed by the late Michael Wm. Balfe, we beg to inform you that you have infringed such copyright by having represented and performed a part of the music of that opera by singing the song known as "The Dream Song" on the 16th inst., at the Town Hall, Melbourne, without licence, whereby Mrs. Balfe has become entitled to the full amount of the benefit or advantage arising from such representation, and we are instructed to apply to you for payment of the same accordingly.

In default of your compliance with our request, we shall be obliged if you will refer us to your solicitor to accept service of process on your behalf. We are, madam, yours obediently,

MALLESON, ENGLAND, and STEWART.

On receipt of this precious letter, Mr. De Vivo was thunderstruck at the impudence of the demand never having received notice or having the slightest idea that any infringement of law or etiquette had been committed—"Payment of the full amount," no George, thought De Vivo, not if the latter is aware of it! The plucky manager was not to be done, so he sends the following reply:

24 William street, Melbourne,
October 23, 1875.

Dear Sirs,—We have been instructed by Signor de Vivo, agent for Mlle. de Murska, to accept service of any process which you may be instructed to issue against her for alleged infringement of copyright in singing the "Dream Song" from the opera of "The Bohemian Girl." Signor De Vivo informs us that he has already tendered you 40s., and bearing in mind that the infringement (if any) of copyright was done in ignorance, and that no intimation was given to Mlle. de Murska, or to Signor De Vivo, that her singing of the song would be objected to, although it was fully advertised, we trust that the matter will not be proceeded with. If proceedings are commenced you will, of course, communicate with us as long as possible before the time of Mlle. De Murska's leaving the colony. Yours truly, BLAKE and RIGGALL.

Messrs. Malleson, England and Stewart, solicitors.

At the same time a reasonable fee was tendered and refused—and wherefore? Subsequent events show that almost as soon as the lady set foot in our city, the "stand and deliver to the funds of the musical and dramatic association," policy was resorted to by the Master Warden, George Coppin. He felt piqued that after two applications for black mail had been made he still received no answer. Therefore he writes in explanation: "Having written two letters to Mlle. de Murska without receiving a reply, I did not feel disposed to send a third. I therefore reported the case to the solicitors of the Dramatic Authors' Society, who set the law in motion. The infringement of the act was then in the hands of the lawyers. An offer of 40s., made to Messrs. Malleson, England, and Stewart, was submitted for my approval. I declined to interfere with the process of the law until Mlle. De Murska replied to the two letters she received from me. I was, therefore, favored with the following answer."

Menzies' Hotel, Melbourne,
Nov. 1, 1875.

Sir,—I beg to enclose a cheque for £10 10s., in aid of the Australasian Dramatic and Musical Association.

I regret that the letters, which I am informed you wrote to me on this subject, but which I do not recollect receiving, escaped my attention.

They appear to have been sent to me when I was just in the hurry of leaving first for Adelaide and then for Sandhurst, and as I was not then acquainted with your name, or the association on behalf of which you wrote, I must have thought that your letters were of that numerous class which I am constantly receiving, asking for pecuniary assistance to individuals with whom I am not acquainted, and have laid them aside.

Had your letters been addressed to my manager, Signor D. De Vivo, they would have received immediate attention, and the object would have been explained to me, and I should have at once contributed to so deserving an institution as this appears to be.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

ILMA DE MURSKA.

G. S. Coppin, Esq.

This was received in due course, and George Coppin acknowledged afterwards the receipt as under:

De Murska ats. Balfe.

November 2, 1875.

Received from Messrs. Blake and Riggall the sum of £2 for damages, and £9 9s. for costs, being in full settlement of this action.

MALLESON, ENGLAND, AND STEWART,
Plaintiff's Attorneys.

Which closes the business as far as the Prima Donna is concerned, but it strikes me very forcibly that the "knowing" George Coppin—the Napoleon of Australian theatricals, as he was once called—will find himself on the horns of a dilemma, for, if his claim was a just one, he was bound in the interest of the lady he represents to prosecute it; and in any compromise he might have consented to on her behalf he was equally bound to make as liberal terms as he could do for Mrs. Balfe. But what does he do? No sooner does Mlle. De Murska succumb to the black-mailing process and hands over a donation of ten guineas to Mr. Coppin's hobby—the Dramatic Association—than his solicitors are empowered by him to accept, what he himself calls, "an equitable fee," together with their cost, and the action is stopped, so that for singing the hackneyed song, the lady is mulct in a total sum of £21 19s. as follows: Subscription to the Australasian Dramatic and Musical Association, £10 10s.; fee for singing the song, £2 (of which, by the way, Mrs. Balfe will get one half); and Mr. Coppin's cost of action, £9 9s. The Hungarian Nightingale paid dear for this whistle! But this is not the first time by many that artists have compromised a similar unjust proceeding to save expense, trouble and annoyance. My own impression is, that the British copyright law is not applicable in these colonies; but even if I am wrong in my surmise, the difficulties of proving an infringement would be quite insuperable. This cool attempt of "The Artful Dodger" to obtain from the De Murska the whole proceeds of a night's concert, because she sang "I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls," is a case in point. It would bt first necessary to prove that the original copyright was with Mr. Balfe, who composed the music, and not with Mr. Alfred Bunn, who wrote the words; secondly, that the copyright has been extended time after time during the last thirty years (for copyrights are like patents, only granted for a certain period), thirdly, that Mrs. Balfe is the inheritress of Mr. Balfe's property, and fourthly, that Mr. Coppin is the bona fide agent of Mrs. Balfe. I rather fancy that the great George Coppin—clever as he is—would find that he had a harder task than he bargained for. Sometimes he o'erleaps himself, as, for instance, in the case of Miss May Howard. When she was playing the "Geneva Cross" at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, some time back, this great "oracle" sued her on the part of Mr. George Fawcett Rowe for breach of copyright, when it afterwards came out that she had sent the necessary fees through his partner, Mr. H. R. Harwood. George then looked little and sang small. Again, this pertinacious system of blackmailing at times is very properly resented. The Williamsons would not be bounced by the Great Mogul but left one hundred pounds for the Melbourne charities, and left Mr Coppin's "glorification" out in the cold. Mr. E. D. Davies was more definite in his rejoinder, after several pertinacious applications:—"Tell Mr. Coppin to go to ——" a warmer climate than this. In reference to the Dramatic Association, in another paper I will enlarge upon its merits and management.

Amusements, Etc.

California Theatre.

Lingard's Sketches were introduced in the bill for the first time last night, and they took immensely. They consisted of "The Frenchman's Blunders," "The Widow to Let," "The Gay Girl" and portraits of Henry Ward Beecher, Horace Greely, Emperor William, President Grant, Edwin Forrest and the Prince of Wales. These with "Sweethearts," and "I Ladroni," make a most entertaining bill.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Maguire's Double Comedy Company are all in town and will in combination with the Lenton Family and Mr. and Mrs. Ware, make the presentation of "Fortunio," to-morrow evening, a splendid Xmas show.

Opera House.

There is no need of a Xmas bill here, as an extra attraction for the house is now crowded every night and everybody during the holidays will "go to see the Minstrels." The Allen Sisters and La Petite Schumann appear nightly in their graceful dances.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

"The Fool's Revenge" with C. R. Thorne as Gilbert, the fool, gives Miss Laura H. Stevenson a fairly good part as Walter Arlington. The interlude contains some interesting features and the bill ends with "The Miser's Daughter." To-morrow "The Forty Thieves."

"Faustus."

The Xmas spectacle for the California Theatre is now ready for presentation, the Eastern specialists are here, and everything will pass off smoothly to-morrow night.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

What with Ned Barry, G. C. Thompson, Dan Lowrey, Charley Kimic, St. Leon and Swain, the bill for to-night is a good one. To-morrow night the Xmas novelty.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The new stars are great favorites, and new favorites are constantly starring here. A fresh run of entertaining and amusing subjects is always provided here.

New Lyceum Theatre.

Saturday evening the long and carefully prepared Xmas novelty will be produced here. Meanwhile the bill is full of clever things.

Woodward's Gardens.

Extra attractions for Saturday and Sunday; John Wetland the Lancashire clog dancer, M. Cathcart, character and Irish jig dancer; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Samwells and Ducrow in acrobatic feats, Miss Mathews; Mrs. Woodruffe, artist in glass, and orchestral concert.

An Open Letter to the Public.

Not a day goes by but I receive letters from persons in this city and country inquiring about my goods as to their quality and cheapness. Many proud and foolish persons write, do you warrant your $10 gold chains, your $15 Ladies Watches, your $6 Silver Watches, your $15 Stone Cameo sets, your gold Necklaces, your Guns and Musical Instruments. I only can answer positively, we guarantee every article or refund the money. None need have any delicacy in buying from our store, as I personally inspect every article offered for sale. Very Respectfully, Uncle Harris, 702 and 704 Kearny street, corner Clay.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

Grand Christmas Masquerade.

A grand prize bal masque will be given at Horticultural Hall, Stockton street, on Christmas Eve. The first prize, for the best costumed lady, will consist of a set of jewelry, necklace and locket; second prize, gold sleeve buttons set with amethyst. Persons are requested to mask before going on the floor. Tickets, $2 00; private boxes, $10 00. *

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 207 Kearny street, between Sutter and Bush, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. B

Don't Help Pay Other People's Debts,

But go to the Furniture and Bedding Store of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, and save fully 25 per cent. by buying of them. Their motto is: "Buy for cash, and sell for cash," therefore they have no bad debts to make up out of extra profits. L

Terrill and Chapman's.

Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, entrance on Bush street. The best lighted and most comfortable Billiard Hall in the city—has 17 front windows. Rooms for private parties. Six new tables. Pocket tables for Pool parties. Best of cigars and liquors. m

Between the Acts

All epicures at the theatres drop in to Schroeder & Green's saloon, 330 Bush street, just above the Opera House, to partake of the good things there dispensed; where may be found the choicest beverages, the best cigars and stunning lunches. c

Get your sweets at the popular candy store of Geo. Haas & Co., 20 Kearny street, who have a fine assortment of French Bonbon Boxes and Confectionery to select from. o

Announcement headed "Arrived."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

"Camille," will be presented at the Brooklyn Academy, 25th, with Clara Morris as the sic'ly orette.

The statements originally made that Mlle. Titjens would appear in grand opera in New York, and that Mlle Zulma Bouffar would not come to America have been authoritatively confirmed.

Of the four hundred giant supernumeraries engaged to personate the Roman legions in the spectacular tragedy of "Julius Cæsar," at Booth's Theatre, 211 are Irish, 120 Americans, 48 Scotch, 9 Welsh, 9 Germans and 3 English. The tallest man is Henry Wallace, a Scotchman, who is six feet five inches high.

Mr. A. Oakey Hall has, as we have said, sacrificed his beard and moustache prior to making his appearance as an actor, and now looks like a modified version of John T. Raymond.

Barney Williams received $600 for each performance at Booth's.

A. Oakey Hall is formally announced as a member of the firm of "Stuart & Hall, lessees and managers of the Park Theatre."

The Florences will probably play an engagement at Booth's Theatre next season.

The super pay-roll for "Julius Cæsar," will be $1,200 a week.

"On the opening night of Kiralfys, at Milwaukee, 'Around the World' Combination, a gawky backwoodsman with a crippled Anglo-Teutonic dialect was attracted to the performance by a wood-cut representing the 'Cave of Serpents,' He inquired of the ticket-seller if 'dere vas shnakes up shtairs.' and receiving an affirmative answer, deposited his stamps and passed it to the auditorium, where he remained until the fall of the curtain. He then rushed to the hotel, where the troupe were preparing to retire, and created considerable merriment by excitedly denouncing the whole play as 'a tam sheat und dot dem shnakes vas noting more as leber sossiges pented over.' In order to restore peace, Mr. Bolossey Kiralfy returned the irate farmer his fifty-cent stamp, who received it, saying. 'By tam, you can't sheat me; I know shnakes ven I see dem.'"

Edward Charles Voltz, stage manager of the Euclid Avenue Opera House, Cleveland, Died Dec. 1. He had been in ill health since the opening of the season. Mr. Voltz was born there, where his mother and brothers now reside, and commenced his theatrical caree with Manager Ellsler thirteen years ago at the Academy of Music, where he remained for seven years, working his way up until he reached the position of prompter. He afterwards went to Philadelphia as prompter and assistant stage manager at the Arch, where he remained for five seasons. For two seasons previous to the present he was stage manager at the Olympic, St. Louis. In that city he was married to Miss Rosalie Jack, daughter of John Jack, who is now one of the most prominent members of the Opera House company. Hints on House Furnishing.

HOW TO FURNISH A HOUSE FOR A COMPOSER.

Every article of furniture should be instrumental in affording him assistance at his work of genius. Nothing should be lost. His chairs should combine the harp at the back and the pianette in the seat.

The glasses on his table should be each of a different tone, and so arranged as to produce most melodious tunes at every meal.

The patterns on his plates should be in musical notes, and these would exhibit his peculiar crotchets in decorative art.

His fire-place should have five bars. His tongs should be two quavers, and his poker another quaver, and they could stand on clefs. Nothing more simple, nor, I may add, to the artistic mind, more touching.

What for a flower stand can be more suitable than a post-horn?—fitting into a small stand, so as to prevent dust getting into the mouth-piece, and also not to allow of the escape of the water so necessary for the support of the flowers.

For the composer's washing stand what better than a drum with moveable lid, so that when the basin was removed it would be a drum, and when the basin was restored it would be a washing stand?

A tambourine tray or salver is also suggested by the musician's skill.

His front door posts would be formed by the uprights of bassoons, if bassoons be the name of those long wooden sticks with a brass mouth-piece sticking out of them; and to these mouth-pieces the visitors could apply themselves, and with a good blast would become at once "Somebody with a note—at the door."

A violoncello would form an admirable cupboard, and the pillars of the house could be fluted columns.

The window-blinds should be covered with his own compositions. Another would form exquisite patterns for his portières. All the stools should be musical boxes, and all the fauteuils likewise.

Venetian blinds lend themselves to bar patterns admirably, and with a couple of strings you can change the tune from time to time.

The lower part of the house should be styled the thorough basement, and the upper the altics.

There should be a key of a different pattern to every lock in the house—one set of major keys and another of minors.

The staircase carpet pattern (or pavement, in use) should represent the chromatic scale.

The key of A should be that of the Anteroom.
The key of B, the Boudoir.
The key of C, the China Closet.
The key of D, the Drawing-room.
E, the Eating or Dining-room.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

All Letters and Communications Strictly Confidential.

Consultations Free—Charges Moderate. Office Hours from 10 to 4 and 7 to 8.

Amusements, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—Here we have Planche's burlesque extravaganza of "Fortunio; or, the Seven Gifted Servants," produced by Maguire's Comedy Company after many weeks of preparation In the divertisement scene an entertainment is given by the Lenton Family and Mr. and Mrs. Ware. The scenery is new and the burlesque one of the best that has ever been written by the famous Planche. The cast includes Miss Katy Mayhew as Fortunio, W. H. Crane as King Alparite, Miss Emma Wilmot as Prince Elfo. A. D. Billings as Emperor Matapa and W. A. Kennedy as the Princess. One of the scenic effects of the burlesque is the prismatic fountain.

OPERA HOUSE.—No Xmas piece is needed here where a full attendance every time the house is opened, is a matter of certainty. Both in the first and second parts the interest and amusement are sustained unfailingly. The Minstrels will not suffer in the crush of holiday pieces.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Here for the Xmas show, the German legendary drama of "Faustus; or, the Demon of the Drachenfels," is the bill The cast of the drama includes the principal members of the company, to wit: Messrs. Barton Hill, T. W. Keene, Robert Pateman, John Wilson and Nelson Decker and Misses Bella Pateman, Ellie Wilton and Alice Harrison. The scenery is of that artistic and effective character for which this theatre and W. T. Porter are celebrated. One of the principal scenic effects will be the Rising of the Mist and another the transformation from the Prison to the Palace. Incidental to the programme will be the appearances of Mlle. Teresa Antonino premiere danseuse, that of Leona Dare America's greatest female gymnast, of Stewart Dare the one-legged gymnast, of T. S. Hall the Comique, of the great Garnellas in their parlor gymnastics and of the Razillia Brothers in their leg-mania. The music which is that of Sir Henry Bishop will be under the direction of Mr. S. W. Leach.

THORNE'S PALACE THEATRE.—The patrons of this place of amusement will be treated his Xmas, first to the two-act comedy of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" and next, to the great fairy drama of "The Forty Thieves." It is given with all the original music, with many and new scenic effects, and with a cast including, J. A. Sawtelle as Hassarac, the robber chief, R. G Marsh as Ali Baba, Frank Rea as Cassim Baba, Miss Laura H. Stevenson as Morgiana, Kate Denin as Cogie, and Nellie Firman as Zadie.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Here the Xmas piece is the original fairy extravaganza "The Queen of the Waters," written expressly for this establishment with appropriate music, new scenery and ingenious mechanical effects. The cast includes the entire company, and the whole will be produced under the supervision of Frank Mortimer.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—"The False Princess, or the two bags of Gold" is given for the Xmas piece here, with Miss Eliza Harrington in the title role, the rest of the company in appropriate parts and with the usual demoniac and fairy appointments.

THE NEW LYCEUM THEATRE.—For Xmas show at this place there is the fairy extravaganza entitled "Cinderella; or, the Little Glass Slipper," new scenic effects will be introduced, there s a grand fete al fresco and a grand transformation. Altogether the show is a first rate hoilday piece.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Attractions.—Extra attractions for Saturday and Sunday; John Wretland the Lancashire clog dancer, M. Cathcart, character and Irish jig dancer; Mons. Drayton the Modern Milo; Samwells and Ducrow in acrobatic feats, Miss Mathews; Mrs. Woodruffe, artist in glass, and orchestral concert.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day om the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

Nothing at Salt Lake since the Lenton-Ware troupe except a benefit of the Salt Lake Amateur Dramatic Company on the 18th, when Home's tragedy of "Douglas" was performed.

At San Jose, Madame Le Vert gave a reading at the Music Hall on Monday, the 20th.

According to an article in the Illustrated Sydney News of the 12th ult., and signed Edward Ellis, Australia will, during the coming year be subjected to an artistic invasion. Ristori, Ilma de Murska, and the Lingards are already there. Miss Katherine Rodgers is expected from England immediately after Xmas; Jas. O'Neill is spoken of as a certain arrival; John McCullough leaves us for the Southern Seas in the early part of '76; Dion Boucicault and H. J. Montague are also bound to try the colonies, and E. A. Sothern is under engagement to W. S. Lyster for an Australian trip which will commence next Autumn.

John Wilson will pitch his tent in Sydney about Xmastide.

Ellis, in speaking of the production of "The Two Orphans" in Sydney—which, by the bye, he does not characterize as an astonishing success—refers to the French pronunciation of the stock as variably abominable, and therefore worse than if it were uniformly bad. Marianne makes her wicked lover's name, "Jacques," rhyme exactly with "tacks;" whilst "Mossiioo," and "Mossheew," and "Mossbere," and "vally de sham," and "marquee," and "schwaller," are momentary occurrences. The acme of aural torture is probably attained, however, when the matron of La Salpetriere, which, by the way, the minor characters generally call "Sall-partryare," is perseveringly spoken of as "Sister Johnnyveeve."

Majeroni, Ristori's leading man, has left the company and is in Sydney studying with the intention of appearing in English.

Frank Lawlor has become a favorite in Sydney.

Wheatleigh and "The Shaughraun" are in New Zealand.

NEW YORK, December 19.—The critics of the press, reviewing the debut of ex-Mayor Hall in the play of "Crucible," at the New Park Theatre last evening, generally consider it a decided dramatic hit. The Herald says: "He was self-possessed from the beginning, and, for a young actor, played admirably and showed much feeling." The Times says: "The play was well put on the stage and all the material points in Mr. Hall's playing were brought out in a very natural and effective manner. As an actor Mr. Hall has doubtless much to learn, but, for a first night, few actors, even of the first-class, have ever made a more successful appearance.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Wm. J. Florence, the actor, was given a dinner by the Lotus Club to-night on the occasion of the conclusion of his engagement in New York. Among the prominent gentlemen present were John Brougham, Harry Palmer of Booth's theatre, General Custar of the United States Army, Colonel H. Breed of the Egyptian Army, and Wm. R. Floyd of Wallack's theatre.

Borthwick Reed reports from Gold Hill to have played there two nights with great success. He would have stayed at Virginia City, but that there was no suitable hall.

Jas. O'Neil's Richelieu, which was first presented at the Metropolitan Theatre on the 17th, seems to have made a great impression on the by no means impressible Sacramentans. The Bee says concerning it: He tooks his hearers by storm at once and held them spell bound to the close of the play. So well did he make all the points that his every appearance was the signal for applause. In the fourth act, where the Cardinal protects his ward by the power of the church and pronounces the anathema upon whoever should dare to lift his hand against the authority of Rome, "even though he wore a crown," Mr. O'Neill fairly outshone himself and the curtain fell amidst rapturous applause. The curtain was again raised to disclose the picture, but this was not enough; the gentleman had to come before the curtain before the enthusiasm abated in the least. There were these in the audience last evening who have seen the greatest actors of the day in this role and these gentlemen were among the most appreciative. This was without doubt the finest performance ever rendered in this city, as it certainly gave the best satisfaction to every spectator. Mr. O'Neill's conception differs widely from that of other artists, but that is a greater credit to him, for it displays the genius of the man.

A postal card from Sherry Corbyn has reached us stating that the first appearance of Prof. Herrmann in Portland had been fixed for the 16th. Hope the Prof. got there in time.

We were in error last week in stating that Mr. Florence intended organizing a "Mighty Dollar" company to travel with. All his dates are filled with stellar engagemements, and we may expect him here in the Spring.

Jolly Nash, the comic singer and chern time of H. R. H., the Prince of Wales will visit us shortly after Xmas.

"Sweethearts" was produced at the Globe Theatre, Boston, on the 18th.

Miss Clara Morris has so fully recovered from her last illness that she appears to-night at Brooklyn in "Camille." A cheerful Xmas piece.

On Monday, January 2d, the original Tennessee Jubilee singers, will make their first appearance in San Francisco at Maguire's Theatre, under the engagement to Mr. Maguire. The members of this troupe are all colored, and consist of five ladie and five gentlemen. Their repertoire consists of over a hundred slave melodies, entirely new to a white audience.

At Bert's Theatre, the chandelier is being fixed in place and the upholstering is going forward at a rapid pace. Daily rehearsals of "Snowflake" are being held in one of the city's largest halls.

The juvenile opera bouffe company will spend the Winter in South America, the cold weather not agreeing with the little people.

The London Hornet now speaks of Madame Janauschek as "the great American actress." Glad they don't hold us responsible for Boucicault in return.

We advise the coming playright to turn his attention to Tweed's escape, and if he do his work intelligently he shall become rich and famous. The dark ways and vain tricks by which the Boss eluded justice; his confabs with his keepers; his production of large diamonds and gold and rolls of greenbacks wherewith to entice those virtuous men from the path of duty; the laying of his outside schemes whereby the hardy captain of some noble craft was beguiled; his production of narcotism in policemen and his immediate guards, would furnish themes of the most exciting and dramatic nature. Let the

NOTES FROM ABROAD.

Mr Lytton Sothern, a son of Lord Dundreary, is getting scarified by the London critics for going on the stage notably imperfect. "One of those things no fellow can understand."

The rumor that John Oxenford had retired from the dramatic editorship of the London Times is again contradicted. His withdrawal was only temporary.

Miss Eliza Weathersby has left the Lydia Thompson troupe, and is now starring on her own account at the Prince of Wales Theatre, Liverpool.

E. A. Sothern is playing in Belfast, Ireland.

Lillian Adelaide Neilson will make her re-appearance on the London stage at the Haymarket theatre, January 10th, acting Anne Boleyn, in the new play, upon the life of that beautiful, unfortunate queen, that has been written for her by Tom Taylor.

"Girofle-Girofla" has been produced at Moscow with great success.

Announcement headed "Arrived."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

Considerate father: "You should eat Graham bread, my son; it makes bone."

Responsive youth: "H'm, I'm 'bout all bones now."

A London custom house officer says that his experience convinces him that women as a rule would rather smuggle their gloves and other nick-nacks, than receive the same as a gift at cost.

If a small boy is a lad, is a big boy a ladder?

What is that which every one can divide but no one can see where it is divided? Water.

Wig-makers are a conceited set—always putting on (h) airs.

Often found where it is not—Fault.

They were taking of death yesterday when one man asked: "What were his last words?" "He didn't say anything," was the reply." "That's just like him," said the first man, with an approving nod. "There was no gas about him. He was all business.

To confide too much is to put your lemons into another man's squeezer.

"I should have no objection," said a henpecked husband, "to my wife's having the last word, if I could only be assured that it would be the last."

The roll of honor—a big roll of money, so the world goes.

The Duke of Edinburgh is gifted with a wonderful memory. When his wife throws hot water over him for playing the flute on Sunday he never forgets it, and always waits until she goes aways before doing it again.

"Say, Johnny," remarked a Patterson, New Jersey, boy, "we're goin' to have bread puddin' most all next week. Father's an elder, and has all the bread that's left over after communion Sundays."

"Would you like to look at the moon?" asked a professor, who had stationed his spy-glay at the street corner, of an Emeralder. "To de divil wid ye—would I be afther givin' ye ten cints to look at the moon wid one eye, when I kin see it wid my two and not cost me a cint."

"He was one of our most energetic trustees," says a village paper in an obituary notice, "and we trustee's happy."

"Keep your dog away from me, said a dandy to a butcher boy. "Hang the dog," said the boy; "he always will be after puppies."

Never stand second for a cross-eyed man in a duel. His eye may appear to be on the enemy, while his pistol is on you.

"Charles!" she murmured as they strolled along the other evening, and gazed upward at the bejeweled firmament; "Charles, dear, which is Venus and which is Adonis?"

"What brought you to prison, my colored friend?" said a visiting clergyman to a negro. "Two constables, sah." "Yes, but I mean had drinking anything to do with it?" "Yes, sah; dey was both of 'em drunk."

You should not tell a man that he lies. Simply remark that he is guilty of heterophemy and drop the subject—if he'll let you.

"Pat, have you seen a stray pig this morning?" "Shure, an' how could I tell a shtray pig from any other, sure!"

There is a married woman with four legs in Connecticut, and because she won't have two of them sawed off, her husband is obliged to work sixteen hours a day in order to keep her in striped stockings.

"Mamie," said a mother to a little six-year-old, "If I was a little girl like you I would pick up all those chips." "Well, mamma," said the little one, "ain't you glad you are not a little girl?"

Why is a pig the most provident of animals? Because he always carries a sparerib or two about him.

At one of the colored A. M. E. churches in Columbus, Ga., the other night, a woman screamed, "Glory!" Ise jest like soda water! Ise b'ilin' over!"

"I stand upon the soil of freedom!" cried a stump orator. "No," exclaimed his shoemaker; "you stand in a pair of boots that have never been paid for."

Nothi[illegible] is so well calculated to confirm our suspicious that things are not proportioned just right in this world, as fifteen prisoners endeavoring to hit one spittoon, while the reporters and lawyers have one apiece to fire at.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

METROPOLITAN THEATRE
SACRAMENTO.

This very desirable property is located on K Street, between Fourth and Fifth, and is 80 feet on 80 on K street by 160 deep, running to the alley in the rear. The Theatre is a very good one, and is well stocked with scenery and all the appliances necessary to the production of any ordinary play. The stores in front are all rented, and the rental receipts are now between $500 and $600 per month. It would cost about $90,000 to build a Theatre and stores like the building in question but this desirable property can be bought for less than half that sum, say $35,000. Parties wishing to purchase can write to W. K. MORROW, Sacramento. I will receive bids for the property until April 10th, 1876. de24-tf W. K. MORROW.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

All Letters and Communications Strictly Confidential.

Consultations Free—Charges Moderate. Office Hours from 10 to 4 and 7 to 8.

Opera House.

The Minstrels have not fared badly during the Xmas and now for this week have the advantage of a new bill. After the first part has concluded with Norcross' Centennial, comes Ernest Linden in "Feminine Eccentricities;" "The Ethiopian Quandary" by Fayette Welch and Charley Sutton; "Beautiful Caroline" by Billy Emerson; "The Funny Old Gal" by Charley Reed, Norcross and Richards, concluding with the great act of "Plantation Life Before the War" with Billy Emerson as Uncle Jefferson.

California Theatre.

"Faustus" is a success. Magnificent scenery, clever mechanical effects, a strong cast, and a host of specialty attractions make this something like a Christmas piece. Amongst the imported attractions are the Garnellas who rival the Lenton's in gymnastic grace and feats, [Leona Dare, the first female gymnast in America; Thomas Hall the comique; Stephen Dare a one-legged gymnast of exceptional powers; and Mlle. Teresa Antonio, a premiere danseuse of some reputation. Besides these there are the Razillia Brothers, three young men of this city who do almost as much as the Girards did; and Amy Bennett, premiere danseuse of local repute. In the way of other attractions, there are the masks in the carnival, the ballet, demons, the devil himself, red-fire and others things literally and truly too numerous to mention,

Maguire's New Theatre.

On the opening night, Xmas Eve, the spectacle of "Fortunio" (which is up for the holiday bill here), showed some signs of insufficient rehearsal; besides which Crane who plays the principal comic character, was so ill as to be unable to appear, Mr. Brown reading the part. On Saturday afternoon, however, things looked very different, Crane was back, the piece went well, cues were taken up, scenes were shifted at the proper time and altogether A. D. Billings may be congratulated on having worked a miracle of stage management. The chief attractions here are the Lenton Family, the Wares and the scenery. The Lenton's are three in number and certainly are as clever a family as have ever appeared in San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Ware have been exceedingly well received, Mrs. Ware being particularly good in her character songs. Of the spectacle itself we shall have more to say another day.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

On Christmas night this place was crowded to excess to see the holiday show. The bill consists, first of the comedietta of "Who Killed Robin?" with Messrs. Burrows, and Cox and Mesdames Denin and Rea in the cast and secondly of the fairy drama of "Ali Baba; or, The 40 Thieves." In this the entire company are in the cast with the exception of Charles R. Thorne. There is plenty of singing, plenty of fun, plenty of comic situations, plenty of thrilling ditto, and altogether the evening's entertainment and the popular price of admission will not by any means be overlooked.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The holiday extravaganza at this theatre, "The Queen of the Waters," is much more pretentious in costumes, business and scenery, than pieces usually produced at the variety theatres. The femininities of the piece are gorgeously dressed. The costumes of Misses Ida Fisk, Carrie Willis, Claude Steuart and Maggie Brewer are very handsome. The marches are done with neatness and precision, and the whole piece is very creditably performed.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"The False Princess" has made quite a hit and will be repeated unil further notice. For to-night Dickerson and Dixon are on in a banjo act, Sam Dennis gives some historical readings and the bill is generally new.

New Lyceum Theatre.

The holiday spectacle of "Cinderella" has drawn well and from all appearances will continue so to do. It will be repeated to-night and all during the week. The olio is full of attractions.

Pavilion Skating Rink,

Open every morning from 10 to 12, every afternoon from 2 to 4½; Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings from 8 to 10.

Notes.

"Parkwater; or, Told in the Twilight," is the last new work from the pen of Mrs. Henry Wood. It is printed from Advance English Proof Sheets, and is issued in America simultaneously with the publication of the work in Europe. It will command a large share of attention from the whole novel-reading community, as Mrs. Wood's fascinating manner of narration is here faithfully preserved. Since she first took the public by storm, with "East Lynne," Mrs. Wood has successfully maintained her position at the very head of her class. In no stories is the action more briskly kept up. "Parkwater; or Told in the Twilight," is more powerful than Mrs. Wood's novels are in general, and it will not be laid aside until the last page is reached, for the interest never flags. For sale by all Booksellers.

Xmas Eve, after the performance of "Faustus" was over, and the California Theatre green curtain had been rung down, there was a stir on the stage apart from that caused by the breaking up of the last tableau. It soon transpired that a presentation was in order, and that Mr. Barton Hill was to be the presentee. Foremost in the crowd of presentors was burly Wm. Mestayer, who after a short and well-conceived speech, handed Mr. Hill a gold watch and a list of the subscribers. It is hardly necessary to say that the watch is handsome and that the list contains the name of every member of the company. Mr. Hill is justly a favorite, for there are few managers who treat those in their employ with such unvarying and impartial kindness as the acting manager of the California.

From the correspondence of the Call, we learn that Dion Boucicault hopes to be in San Francisco by July 18[illegible]

The Lingards (Wm. H. and Miss Emmie), commence a season at the Sacramento Theatre this week, under engagement to Manager Maguire.

On Xmas Day, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rea, passed the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding day, and are, from all appearances, as happy now as they were in the Winter time of that long ago, 1845.

We have received from Mr. Stephen Fiske, the synopsis of the new play "Pique," which has been recently produced at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, and of which we will make future use.

The original Tennessee Jubilee Singers who open Reno, will be to-morrow Tuesday, the 28th, at Gold Hill, and on the 29th, 30th and 31st at the Presbyterian Church, Virginia City. We are indebted for the above route to Mr. T. A. Caswell, the agent.

Frank Jones, character actor, Senorita Philamina, specialist, and Nina Duboise, vocalist, arrived overland on Saturday night. Mr. Jones brings with him his specialty piece, a sensation drama in 4 acts, entitled "The Black Hand, or the Lost Will." The piece has among its sensations a very startling railroad scene. It has been played very successfully in the East. The objective point of the party is Australia, though they may put in an appearance here if fitting opportunity offers.

On Friday evening, Dec. 31st, Manager Thorne will produce at the Palace Theatre a new National Centennial play in 4 acts entitled "The Dawn of Freedom." The title is sugestive of the action of the play.

The company at Buckley's Varieties presented Managers Hocking and Peters with sets of diamond studs on Xmas Day. Every male members of the company was presented by the managers in return with sets of gold mounted California quartz studs. The ladies of the company were recipients, from the same source, of a gold thimble each.

Thomas Maguire, Jr., treasurer of the Opera House, and during the absence of Manager Maguire, was the recipient of a handsome diamond ring, a present from the united Opera House company on Xmas Day. Long may it shine on Tommy's finger.

Holiday presents are the order of the day at Xmas, to which San Francisco managers and their companies have certainly been no exception. Messrs. Englehardt and Gardner, proprietors of the new Lyceum Theatre publically return thanks by a card in another column for the present of two handsome mirrors received on Xmas Day from the members of the company.

By the kind arrangement of the acting manager of the California Theatre, a full lunch was laid out behind the scenes at the conclusion of the Xmas Day matinee performance of "Faustus," so that all who chose to remain in the theatre for the short time between the afternoon and evening presentations would not lack Xmas cheer.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

In speaking of Palgrave Simpson's new play "All For Her," a critic judges from its title that it is exactly the sort of a play all star actresses want.

Mlle. Aimee is as sparkling in adornment as in style in Paris. She wears a close-fitting collaret of diamonds set with emeralds, her fan is fastened to her side by a diamond clasp, there are diamond pins in her hair, and from her dainty ears hang rings of diamonds and pearl-shaped emeralds.

A reconstructed version of "Masks and Faces" is now running at the London Prince of Wales Theatre. Mrs. Bancroft (Marie Wilton), playing Peg Woffington. Great pains and expense have been expended upon the production of this piece, and it has met with remarkable success.

The latest news respecting M. Gounod reports a decided improvement in his condition.

A musical farce called "Half Cracked," which has been produced by Mr. Burnand at his theatre in London, is said to be very amusing. An enthusiastic composer and an equally enthusiastic dramatist simultaneously enlist the services of the maid-of-all-work at their common lodgings to assist in rehearsing their works, and ludicrous situations arise from this arrangement.

The London Athenaeum gives Mr. Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle very high praise. It says: "No representation of the class during ten years his stirred equally an English audience. Yet none of the means to which the modern actor resorts is employed. There is no preposterous attire to win a laugh, no extravagance of gesture, no noise, no rant, no effort. Everything moves as easily and as noiselessly as machinery, and the required effect is produced. It is a source of saddening reflection that we have scarcely a second instance of the kind to advance."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

A certain colored deacon, on occasions of missionary collections, was wont to shut his eyes and sing: "Fly abroad, thou mighty Gospel," with such earnestness and unction that he would quite forget to see the plate as it came around, "Oh, yes!" said the plate-bearer, "but I'll just give something to make it fly."

The Prohibitory law being in full force in Maine, a witness before a Belfast Grand Jury was asked if he had drunk in a certain saloon. "Yes." "Often?" "Yes." "How much in six months?" "Well, I can't tell exactly. It might be—well—perhaps—well, say a barrel!"

Love induced a Portland girl to steal her father's best boots and overcoat and give them to her lover, thus enabling that impecunious youth to go on a hunt for employment.

This is the cheerful state of affairs which at present exists between two Illinois lovers: The girl was about to marry another young man, when her former suitor replevined a sewing machine he had given her. She responded by suing him for the value of meals eaten at her house, and now he has sued her for the time occupied in courting her.

A case came up for trial in a French court, and as the evidence was expected to be of a certain character, the judge intimated the fact, and requested the decent women to withdraw. Not a soul moved. "Usher," said the judge, "now that decent women have withdrawn, turn the rest out."

It is said that the human body contains over two pounds of lime. This makes it easy for a Congressional Committee to whitewash a Government official.

When you hear a man loudly asserting that his motto is "principles, not men," keep your eyes open. He will never pay back borrowed money.

Three ballots of twelve given by a New Hampshire jury: 1. "Guiltee;" 2. Gilti;" 3. "Gillty."

When a sweet little child skips up carelessly and rests its molasses smeared fingers on your light cassimeres, it is well enough for you to remember that of such is the kingdom of Heaven.

Wherefore is a darkey with "no hair on the top of his head" like a candidate for a club who has been rejected by its members? Because he is a black bald individual.

A Virginia editor says "everybody will smoke two centuries hence." He evidently is not a Universalist.

A Chicago girl worth $3,000,000 is out doing housework in order to know how to govern her own mansion when she gets one. This item is right from a Chicago paper, and can be relied on.

They are getting so accustomed to hangings in Louisiana that people constantly accost each other with this question: "Any noose to-day?"

A Detroit woman could think of but twenty-nine different ingredients to put into a mince pie, and she wept at the idea of losing her powers of memory.

A fond parent who bought a cow for his Summer residence, in anticipation of the delight that the fresh product would cause his daughter, was somewhat chagrined when Julia, looking upon a pan of nectar, exclaimed, "Oh, what horrid yellow stuff! It isn't half so good as the nice blue milk we get in town."

A correspondent suggests that the elephant howdah exercise the Prince of Wales will take on his Eastern trip will probably improve his Indiagestion. How dah you?

Two editors were chosen to office at the late election in Mississippi, and they now feel so high-toned and independent that they refuse to take dried apples as usual in payment for subscriptions.

The Marechal de Faber at a siege was pointing out a place with his finger. Instantly stretched out another he continued his discourse. "Gentlemen, as I was saying—"

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurante,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

All Letters and Communications Strictly Confidential.

Consultations Free—Charges Moderate. Office Hours from 10 to 4 and 7 to 8.

California Theatre.

Last night again the house was thronged. Leona Dare is certainly entitled to the rank she claims, that of the first gymnaste in America. Coupled with a most graceful form is an extraordinary strength and suppleness of limb, whilst her jaw seems even stronger than that of Mlle Granville. The way in which she catches her companion in a trapezette (wont that do for little trapeze?), clenched by a thong held between her teeth, is marvellous.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The story of "Fortunio" is in itself sufficiently interesting to draw good audiences and when, in addition, there are the attractions of Mr. and Mrs. Ware, serio-comic vocalists; the Lenton family, wonderful gymnasts; much good and new scenery and plenty of incidental fun, it is not surprising that the attendance here every night should continue good.

Opera House.

The sketch entitled "Plantation Life: or, Before the War," is by long odds the best thing on this week's programme. Billy Emerson as Uncle Jeff and Fayette Welch as Aunt Chloe give most excellent bits of ludicrous character-acting. Emerson's songs "Days When I Was Young" and the "Swanee Ribber," and many other old and favorite airs are judiciously and effectively introduced.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

The Comedy of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" is immediately followed by the fairy drama of "The Forty Thieves" which is well produced under the stage management of Mr. R. G. Marsh. Miss Laura H. Stevenson appears as Morgiana and Miss Nellie Firman as the Fairy of the Lake. On Friday "The Dawn of Freedom."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The fairy extravaganza entitled "Queen of the Waters; or, The Demon of the Cave," introduced all the company, the costumes being particularly gorgeous. The piece is prefaced by the usual olio programme.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"The False Princess" is still continued, and will certainly hold the boards for the week. Miss Nettie Bellmore makes her first appearance here to-night, also Butler and Russell, specialty artists.

New Lyceum Theatre.

The acts are unusually good this week and the holiday spectacle of "Cinderella; or, The Little Glass Slipper" concludes the bill. Miss May Leroy is cast for Prince Popette and Eddie Fontenau plays sweet Miss Clorinda.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Open every morning from 10 to 12, every afternoon from 2 to 4½; Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings from 8 to 10.

Notes.

PORTLAND, OR., Sunday, Dec. 19th, 1875.

DEAR FIGARO:—As this is the good day, I will do a good deed and write to you. Well, Herrman arrived last Wednesday, highly delighted with the voyage, also with the way he had been worked up here. We opened on Thursday to a big house. Friday about the same money, and Saturday, though it rained as it can only rain in Oregon, we had the biggest matinee ever seen in Portland, and the night house was a jam. I have great faith in this place for a good show, but no bilks, and then it must be worked up. We play here all next week then go to Salem, Eugene, Corvallis, Albany, Tacoma, Seattle and Victoria. I will be down for a trip about the middle of January, but will hurry back with something good. Do send me the FIGARO, especially Saturdays, I want to keep posted.

Yours Truly, SHERRY CORBYN.

The Daily Oregonian of the 18th says: Professor Hermann's second performance last evening at New Market Theatre was attended by a still larger crowd than on the opening night. A more appreciative and highly delighted audience is seldom seen assembled at that popular and fashionable resort. To say that all who witnessed his marvellous feats of magic were enthusiastic in their demonstrations of appreciation, is nothing more than the plain truth. It is true Portland has been visited by a number of very clever magicians, but certainly we have never seen Prof. Herrmann's equal.

Jeems Pipes is by no means passive in England. We have received a programme of his monologue entertainment given at Wolverhampton on the 28th ult., under the patronage of the Lord Lieutenant of the county.

We have received from Mr. Chas. Wyndham a circular concerning a new series of plays to be produced under the management at the Crystal Palace. The series commenced on the 23d ult., and the plays as at present arranged, are—Shakspeare's "Tempest" (with Sullivan's music); Shakspeare's "Comedy of Errors" (first time); Sheridan's "Rivals;" G. W. Wills' "Man o' Airlie" (by special request); Poole's "Paul Pry" (first time); Lovell's "Love's Sacrifice;" Sophocles' "Antigone" (first time); as adapted by Mr. W. Bartholomew, with Mendelssohn's music.

It is now some five years since the band of native melodists, now celebrated all over the world as the Tennessee Jubilee Singers made their first campaign through America, awakening, wherever they appeared, an enthusiasm such as had never been created by any musical organization. It was not a mere ephemeral rage after a novelty, but a genuine interest, profound and abiding, in the public mind. What was there in these quaint, sweet hymns, the songs of their captivity, that exercised such a charm? Audiences were held spellbound, and their hearts melted to pity or roused to religious fervor at will by the simple strains of these untutored singers. Here for the first time were heard the sad, sweet songs that did not seem to be composed, but to well up as they had done for many years, from the heart of an oppressed people. It was this, and the fact that the singers themselves "had learned in suffering what they taught in song," that created the enthusiasm which has followed the Jubilee Singers all through America, and perhaps in a still higher degree, through England, Scotland and Ireland. And now on Monday next we shall have the opportunity of hearing them in San Francisco, at Maguire's New Theatre.

BILLY ARLINGTON'S TRUNK.

BY FRANK DUMONT.

It happened many years ago,
In a traveling minstrel band—
There was a "banjo player" then,
Now well known in our land;
He owned a trunk of smallest size,
In which his things to pack,
So light and diminutive
He could hang it on a tack.
It was the subject of our jokes,
And one I'll now relate—
It happened in the summer time
Out in Ohio State.
Among the baggage, a certain wag
Espied the trunk one day;
And, calling the negro porter up,
In commanding tones did say:
"Take this box of strawberries,
And, to keep them cool and nice,
Just open the refrigerator
And place it on the ice."
The darky placed it there with care,
The "boys" all ripe for fun,
And very soon Bill Arlington
Came in from dust and sun.
He wished to don a "fresh boiled" shirt—
He glanced round with a sigh,
And among the baggage sought that trunk,
While a tear stood in each eye
Sam Price suggested it might be
Safe in the porter's care,
For every nook was searched in vain,
While Bill did rave and swear.
"My box of collars, shirt, and camo
That precious trunk is lost—
Besides, it is a family gift,
And its price beyond all cost."
The darkey came in time to hear
Bill swear he'd search the "States.
The darkey's eyes expanded then
As large as two soup plates.
"Boss! a man guv me a cigar-box
Full of berries, to keep cool—
It's in de ice-box over here."
Bill muttered "What a fool!"
He raised the lid and looked within—
There, with butter, pie and meat,
The little trunk, deep in the ice,
His anxious eyes did meet.
A ringing laugh responded as
The "boys" all gathered near While Billy, with his "Saratoga,
Felt like standing on his ear.
"Nice joke," he said: "that nigger there
Don't know cigar-box from a trunk,
And to put it in a refrigerator,
The idiot must be drunk.
Though the weather's hot, I can keep cool;
My feelings are not hurt—
I'll take my trunk up to my room
And don a frozen shirt."

Angels in the Rough.

They have some tough little customers at the South Omaha Methodist Episcopal Mission Sunday School. Last Sunday about half a dozen new boys were gathered into the fold, and Superintendent Tibbets asked those who had been to Sunday School before to hold up their hands. One of the boys pointed to another who had held up his hand, and said: "He's telling you a d—d lie. He's never been to Sunday School before in his life."

"How many of you were born in the old country?" was another question put to them.

Another boy singled out one who did not hold up his hand, and said: "He's lying to you, mister. That sucker came from the old country, but he wants you to believe he is a regular Yankee."

Some questions were asked about Jesus the King. A Swedish boy was asked if they had a president in Sweden.

"No; they had a king," was the reply.

"Did he dress in fine robes and jewels, and ride in splendid carriages?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Now, boys," said Mr. Tibbets, addressing himself to them all, "was Jesus that kind of a king?"

"No," spoke up one of them; "he rode a mule and knew as much as you do."

Taking Your Measure.

The Norristown Herald says: "Young man, if you should see your girl gazing intently at your feet don't shift them about uneasily, or draw them up and sit upon them, under the impression that she is overwhelmed by their immense size. She is merely taking their measure mentally for a pair of slippers, on the toes of which she intends to work a blue dog with a green tail and scarlet ears."

No Truant.

A Detroit boy paid his first visit to one of the union schools the other day as a scholar, and when he came home at night his mother inquired: "Well, Henry, how do you like going to school?" "Bully!" he replied in an excited voice. "I saw four boys licked, one girl got her ear pulled and a big scholar burned his elbow on the stove! I don't want to miss a day."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

CLIPS FROM THE "ARCADIAN."

The title of Mr. Gilbert's new fairy comedy, produced at the Court Theatre, London, on December 9th, is "Broken Hearts." It is written in three acts, and is in blank verse. Miss Bessie Hollingshead, a young actress, daughter of the lessee of the Gaiety, is entrusted with the principal female part.

A well-known judge of the Supreme Court of New York often relieves his judicial remarks with a touch of humor. A few days since, during the trial of a case, one John Gunn was a witness on the stand, and as he hesitated a good deal and seemed unwilling to tell what he knew, the judge said to him: "Come, Mr. Gunn, don't hang fire; revolve your thoughts in your brain and blaze away." After the examination had closed, the judge added, "Mr. Gunn, you can now go off—you are discharged."

We have not got rid of the Maid of Athens business yet. The Maid's daughter, Miss Caroline Black, now appeals to the British public because she has been left destitute by her mother's death. It is "coming it rather strong," as Toole says, that because Byron once cast affectionate glances at an Athenian lady, the English people are to be expected to support herself and her descendants so long as they please to live.

M. Faure's re-appearance at the Paris National Opera House, after his severe illness, in "Hamlet," has been cordially greeted; the Ophelia was Mme. Carvelho. At the end of the third act, Signor Rossi was congratulating the French baritone when the curtain was drawing up, and only a precipitate retreat prevented the audience from seeing the French and Italian Hamlets at the same time.

Pique. What Mr. Daly felt when he couldn't get "Rose Michel."

There is a "Society for the Suppression of Vice." We fear that to be effectual it will have to be "A Society for the Suppression of Vice and Human Life."

The Herald says that Wachtel cannot bear that any of the singers of his troupe should be applauded. Fortunately he is not likely to be much troubled on that account.

An interesting present has been made to the German Emperor by some inhabitants of Berlin. It consists of a collection of autograph manuscripts by celebrated composers, and includes two quartetts by Spohr; a piano forte piece, by Thalberg; an Italian air, with orchestral accompaniment, by Weber; a symphony, by Schubert; and other works. The most important, however, is said to be a first sketch in four volumes (?) of the eighth symphony by Beethoven. Written partly with ink, partly with different colored pencils, in some parts with extreme haste, in others with minute accuracy, the whole presents a curiously variegated appearance, and is often hard to decipher. Several pages are crossed through with the remark, "Nothing will ever come of that!" or "That's nothing!" In another place is written, "Shall I repeat this?" These notes imply a careful revision of the whole work.

A Bond.

"Have you any bond to give for your re-appearance before the Court?" inquired the Police Judge of a criminal, this morning.

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Well, who's your bond—produce him," continued the justice.

"Here, sir," said the prisoner, leading forth a seedy, ragged-looking specimen of humanity, "here he is—my brother Bill."

"But he is no bond," declared His Honor.

"Yes he is," protested the prisoner.

"I say he is not!"

"What, he ain't no bond?"

"No."

"Not a vaga-bond?"

Then the spectators grinned, and the prisoner thought he was going to be set free, but he wasn't.

Two Assuagers.

Nothing like time and travel as assuagers. A New York friend having business not long since that called him to San Francisco, mentioned his intended departure to a brother, who said:

"When do you start?"

"To-morrow afternoon."

"Well, I wish you would stop at the St. Nicholas and let me introduce you to a pretty, little California widow, who arrived yesterday, on the steamer from Havre, with the body of her husband, who died a couple of weeks ago in Paris."

"Guess not," replied our friend.

"Don't think a fresh widow with a husband's body in a baggage car would be very pleasant company. She must be very sad."

"Oh, not a bit of it, my dear fellow; she's one of the liveliest little things you ever saw!"

He was introduced. He said it was a pleasant trip.

Good Conductors.

The assurance of the lightning-rod man has always been looked upon as something appalling in its dimensions. It was never better illustrated than the other day, when one of them applied to the President of a Railway Company to put lightning-rods on all his bob-tails. "Lightning-rods on our cars?" asked the latter. "Why, certainly." "What in thunder do we want 'em for?" "Because they are such good conductors!" replied the imperturbable lightning-rod man. It took him right where the back-bone leaves off.

Among the memoranda of a young man who was recently married, were these: "Things to be done this afternoon, before the wedding: "Get some keyes to fit valise; engage carriage for train; get license to marry; get shaved and hair trimmed a little; sew button on black breeches, and get a pair of suspenders; buy a bottle of perfumery; be sure to wash feet well."

Queen Elizabeth always displayed her worst temper in her best clothes. She was always dreadfully ruffled then.

Why is the root of the tongue like a dejected man?—Because it is down in the mouth.

Physician Extraordinary.

A French lady of title fell ill and called in a doctor, who cured her. The man of medicine requested to be permitted to print on his card "Physician to her Grace."

"Impossible," said the latter; "I have a physician-in-ordinary."

"Well, we will get over that difficulty," replied the doctor. "I will put on my card 'Physician to her Grace—when she is ill.'"

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Palmer's have received a new supply of adies and children's underwear—very cheap—726 to 734 Market street.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE
SACRAMENTO.

This very desirable property is located on K Street, between Fourth and Fifth, and is 80 feet on K street by 160 deep, running to the alley in the rear. The Theatre is a very good one, and is well stocked with scenery and all the appliances necessary to the production of any ordinary play. The stores in front are all rented, and the rental receipts are now between $500 and $600 per month. It would cost about $90,000 to build a Theatre and stores like the building in question; but this desirable property can be bought for less than half that sum, say $35,000. Parties wishing to purchase can write to W. K. MORROW, Sacramento. I will receive bids for the property until April 10th, 1876. de24-tf W. K. MORROW.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Maguire's New Theatre.

It should be remembered that the capital burlesque of "Fortunio" will only be played here during the present week, that is, that it will be withdrawn on Sunday night. The scenery and the divertisement are well worth seeing, and the burlesque is now played in first-rate fashion. The fun of the piece is not marred by a want of smoothness in the performance.

Opera House.

Mac .in and Wilson's song of "Betsy and I are Out," having taken so well last week, is repeated this. Billy Emerson as Uncle Jeff, as end man and in selections from his "Boquet of Songs," plays y no means an insignificant part in the filling out of a bill, which is unusually good.

California Theatre.

"Faustus," with its thousand and one attractions continues to draw immensely. In one of the acts, there is a trio serenade sung by Messrs. Jos. Maguire, John Trehane and Walter Campbell, which is extremely pretty, and which certainly merits the encore accorded it every night. It is sung without accompaniment, and is in its way, a little musical gem. The costumes, which are correct and striking, are the handiwork of Mrs. Paulin, the theatres costumer.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.

The comedy of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" and the fairy drama of "The Forty Thieves" will be withdrawn to-night, as on Thursday evening the new National Centennial play in four acts entitled "The Dawn of Freedom" will be produced. In "The Forty Thieves," Mr. R. G. Marsh as Ali Baba pretty nearly carries the piece.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Every member of the company is in the fairy extravaganza of "The Queen of the Waters," in which humor and spectacular effects are combined. It will be kept on until after New Year's Day.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Miss Eliza Harrington as the False Princess in the fairy drama of that name, appears every night, and the olio introduces all the company in whatever suits each artist the best.

New Lyceum Theatre.

An olio full of fun and specialties, and the holiday spectacle of "Cinderella," with Miss May Leroy as Prince Popette. Such is the bill for to-night, a bill in which everybody must find something to please or amuse.

Woodward's Gardens.

Extra attractions Saturday and Saturday: Miss Cooper, the brilliant songstress and violin soloist; Mons. Drayton, the modern Milo; Wretland and Cathcart clog and jig dancers; Samwells and Du crow acrobats; Miss Mathews, a laughable pantomime and concert.

Pavilion Skating Rink.

Open every morning from 10 to 12, every afternoon from 2 to 4½; Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings from 8 to 10.

Notes.

A brief sketch of the organization of the Jubilee Singers will, perhaps, prove of interest to our readers:—At the close of the war one of the large Tennessee hospitals was converted into a Christian school for the education of the Freedmen. It was the first institution established in the South for the education of Freedmen with this distinct and avowed purpose. But the building was unsuited to the uses of the institution, and it was determined to purchase a site for a great and permanent university. In order to raise money for this purpose, a plan was proposed and approved by the trustees, to give concerts with a band of singers selected from among the students. The teaching of vocal music became a branch of the education, and soon a large choir of singers was organized from which to select a band whose gift of song had been developed. It was not intended that they should appear before the public as professional musicians. They merely sought to interpret the spiritual and religious power of the slave songs of the South, and thus touch the hearts of the Christian people wherever they went, and secure their sympathy and liberal aid. The history of the heroic struggles of the band that went out, and the subsequent marvelous success that attended them both here and abroad, are already familiar to nearly every one.

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Holidays.

Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if those who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child [illegible] n a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Store at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

VERSICAL ODDS AND ENDS.

It is sad to hear the Easton Free Press singing:

> Oh! my love has left the garden gate,
> She sits on the steps no more,
> And the old man swears if I go inside
> He'll boot me out at the door.

The Louisville Courier-Journal chronicles river news in this style:

> The old "Nick Longman" hugged the bank
> On Cincinnati's shore;
> She used to run to New Orleans,
> But won't run any more.
> Gone to meet the United States Marshal.

The following, says the Brooklyn Argus, intended to commemorate the fate of a tract peddler who sat down on a can of nitro-glycerine to rest himself, was submitted to the poet Childs and pronounced contraband:

> To the azure depths of the upper air,
> His body has flewn, flewn, flewn,
> And over the landscape everywhere—
> A bit of him here and a bit of him there
> It now lies strewn, strewn, strewn;
> But his soul, I believe and am willing to swear,
> Is grandly climbing the golden stair,
> To an anti-glycerine tune.
> Gone where they don't put it up in tin cans.

"PRESS ON."

> "Press on! You're rusting while you stand;
> Inaction will not do;
> Take life's small bundle in your hand,
> And bridge it briskly through.
>
> "Jump over all the 'ifs' and 'buts;'
> There's always some kind hand
> To lift life's wagon o'er the ruts,
> And poke away the sand."

Dr. Leifchild gave to a theological student the following rules for preaching:

> "Begin low,
> Go on slow;
> Rise higher,
> And take fire;
> When most impressed,
> Be self-possessed:
> At the end, wax warm,
> And sit down in a storm."

An Irish melody transplanted. German tenor warbles:

> "I'll not leaf zee, sow lone von,
> To bine on ze schtem!
> Zms ze lefly are schleepingk,
> Coh! schleeb sow fi. den!
> Zes gbyntly I schgadder
> Zy leafs on ze bet,
> Vair zy maids of ze karrten
> Lie schentles and tet!"

GOSSIP.

> When Mother Eve the tempting fruit
> Plucked for her only kin,
> She then and there did institute
> A precedent for sin.
> She knew the apple tasted sweet,
> But thought not of its price,
> And said to Adam, "Let us eat;
> It's naughty but it's nice."

> A wit stopped at a foundry, where
> Some men were casting iron-ware,
> And entering, said, "You all appear
> To be engaged in casting, here."
>
> "Yes," said the foreman, "that's our 'biz,'"
> The wit remarked: "I'm glad it is,
> For I have sought, and found, at last,
> A place to get a shadow cast."
> The iron man at once replied,
> That "such a feat their skill defied,"
> But recommended him to pass
> To a foundry where they worked in brass.

A Massachusetts poet points out the difference in this style:

> There is a young woman of Lynn,
> Grown up so excessively thin,
> When she wears her pull-back,
> She seems all flesh to lack,
> And her bonnet seems stuck on a pin.
> But a fat little girl up in Groton
> "Says: "This is the fashion I dote on.
> If I do in this rig
> As balloons look as big,
> It is nothing to make public note on."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

"Have you any nice fresh farmer's eggs?" inquired a precise old lady at a grocery store. "No, ma'am," replied the practical clerk, "but we have some very good hen's eggs." She took three to try.

Over the porch of the Old South Church at Boston is chiselled: "Behold! I have set before you an open door," and under, on the door, is printed in emphatic letters, "Positively no admittance."

Professor Proctor is thirty-nine years old, has written twenty-three books, and has eleven children, including twins, born last week.

Agent bookseller to a Fourth street woman—"Yes; but the work is both instructive and humorous." Fourth street woman—"That ain't the point. You see my husband has crippled so many agents, you are a nice-looking young man, and I'd hate to see you hurt! That's him comin' in the back way!" The young man said there was nothing compulsory about it, and was gone.

Talk about the crooked streets of Boston! The Traveler unblushingly publishes a list of one hundred and seventy-eight names of streets which are duplicated in that city, forty-eight which are triplicated, fifteen which occur in four localities, and five which occur in six.

A lady applying for admission to the junior class of an Eastern seminary, being questioned by the President as to her qualifications, replied: "I ain't much of an arithmeticker, but I am an excellent grammarist."

There is a man in Indiana who takes thirty-two newspapers, and you might as well try to ride a whirlwind on a sidesaddle as to attempt to impose upon that man.

"Now my little boys and girls," said a teacher, "I want you to be very still—so that you can hear a pin drop." In a moment all was silent, when a little boy cried out, "Let her drop!"

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

Madame Nilsson-Rouszeaud will soon make a concert tour of Belgium and Holland under Mr. Ullman's management.

A new actress has appeared in London, Miss Annie Lafontaine, for whom the Charing Cross Theatre was recently engaged. She made her metropolitan debut (having previously appeared in the provinces) in Tom Taylor's comedy, "An Unequal Match." The London papers generally congratulate the young lady on her success, and the Telegraph says: "Miss Lafontaine has the advantage of a prepossessing appearance; pleasant features, capable of much variation of expression; and an agreeable, animated style, which is entirely free from all the restraint and nervousness of the novice."

The late Mlle. Dejazet, although a very remarkable example of a person, continuing to perform until very late in life, was, by no means, without precedents. Actea, a Roman actress in the days of Cæsar, acted until she was ninety, and Peg Fryer, an actress of the time of Charles I., acted in the reign of George I., at the age of eighty-five. Mme. Vestris was close upon seventy when she left the stage, and there are many other examples of the like tenacity to the profession, which speak highly for its agreeable nature, since such incidents of prolonged careers are rare in other branches of human affairs.

Vienna, which thirty years ago sent its troupe of dancing children under Madame Weiss to all parts of the civilized world, has now produced a company of twelve youthful prodigies who are giving dramatic performances in the various theatres of Germany. Fairy stories have been dramatized for them, and their acting is said to give delight to young and old. The ages of these Thespians range from six to fourteen years.

An effort is to be made to raise a monument to Auber, in Paris, who has thus far been neglected in this respect.

In 1607 a play was printed by G. Eld for Simon Waterson, entitled "Lingua or, The Combat of the Tongue and the Five Senses for Superiority." This play is a very memorable performance, for Oliver Cromwell acted Tactus in it, and, it is said, his so doing first inspired him with sentiments of ambition.

Rubenstein's opera, "The Demon," has met with favor in St. Petersburg.

Charles Calvert has produced Lord Byron's "Sardanapalus" at Birmingham, England.

Mr. Millais is reported to be painting a large landscape depicting a scene a little north of Birham Wood, celebrated in the tragedy of "Macbeth."

Pollus, the great Roman tragedian, when he played a part which required remarkable passion, contemplated the urn which contained the ashes of his only son, whereby he so excited his own feelings, that by the time he passed on to the stage, he was enabled to impart his great excitement to the audience, and fill the whole theatre with lamentations and tears.

The journals of Berlin announce the death of the celebrated Marietta Brambilla, one of the most charming contraltos that ever appeared on the stage. She was called the great Brambilla, to distinguish her from her sisters, neices and cousins, all distinguished vocalists. The deceased sang for several seasons in Paris between 1840 and 1850.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
Where you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the [illegible]st oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Try the Swan Ale and be convinced of its superior merits.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

SACRAMENTO.

This very desirable property is located on K Street, between Fourth and Fifth, and is 80 feet on K street by 160 deep, running to the alley in the rear. The Theatre is a very good one, and is well stocked with scenery and all the appliances necessary to the production of any ordinary play. The stores in front are all rented, and the rental receipts are now between $500 and $600 per month. It would cost about $90,000 to build a Theatre and stores like the building in question; but this desirable property can be bought or less than half that sum, say $35,000. Parties wishing to purchase can write to W. K. MORROW, Sacramento. I will receive bids for the property until April 10th, 1876. de24-tf W. K. MORROW.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Opera House.
"The Invaded Studio" is old but very funny, Mackin and Wilson's song and dance is one of the best they have given us, the Centennial Celebration Finale, is still a favorite, and "Plantation Life" before the War" is a capital piece of realistic negro life and old-time jollity.

California Theatre.
"Faustus" again to-night. The Razillia Brothers, who made their first appearance on any stage, Xmas Eve, deserve mention. They are three amateurs of this city who, by dint of long practice, have become nearly as limber and grotesque as the Girards. Had they only been original they would have made a sensation.

Maguire's New Theatre.
The days of "Fortunio" are rapidly drawing to a close, and those who wish to see this capital burlesque and witness the feats of the astonishing Lentons, will do well to remember that on Sunday night the curtain will come down on "Fortunio" and all that has made it so entertaining, for the last time.

Thorne's Palace Theatre.
"Who Killed Cock Robin?" and "The Forty Thieves" were withdrawn last night. This evening the National Centennial drama entitled "The Dawn of Freedom" will be produced. The piece is full of patriotic sentiments, historical personages and exciting incidents, and, will, we expect, and hope, prove a draw.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.
"The Queen of the Waters," good as it is, does not constitute the entire bill. The olio that precedes it, contains its usual complement of wit, song, dance and fun.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.
Miss Nettie Bellmore, the vocalist, has made quite a hit, whilst Butler and Russell, specialty artists have also proved a success. "The False Princess" concludes the bill.

New Lyceum Theatre.
In addition to an excellent olio programme introducing all the favorites, the holiday spectacle of "Cinderella," is on the bill as an extra attraction.

Woodward's Gardens.
Extra attractions Saturday and Saturday: Miss Cooper, the brilliant songstress and violin soloist; Mons. Drayton, the modern Milo; Wretland and Cathcart clog and jig dancers; Samwells and Du_crow acrobats; Miss Mathews, a laughable panto_mime and concert.

Pavilion Skating Rink.
Open every morning from 10 to 12, every afternoon from 2 to 4½; Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings from 8 to 10.

Notes.
On Monday next, the Tennessee Jubilee Singers open at Maguire's Theatre on Bush street. Their repertoire, as may be seen by glancing at the advertisement, is novel and extensive. The box sheet is open to-day.

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Holidays.
Are fast approaching and everybody of course, is considering what present would be most suitable, now, if these who so consider, call at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street below Kearny, they will no longer be in doubt, what to give, for nothing is more acceptable to gentleman, youth or child than a nice, stylish and dressy hat, of which there is a larger assortment to be found at "The" Hat Seore at lower prices than anywhere in the city. Those who expect no present, should treat themselves to one. Remember the number, 647 Washington street below Kearny. M

A Word to the Wise, etc.
It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

THE COMEDIAN'S LAST NIGHT.

Not yet! no, no,—you would not quote
That meanest of the critic's gags?
'Twas surely not of me they wrote
Those words, too late the veteran legs:
'Tis not so very late with me;
I'm not so old as that, you know,
Though work and trouble—as you see—
(Not years) have brought me somewhat low.
I failed you say? No, no, not yet!
Or, if I did,—with such a past,
Who is the man would have me quit
Without one triumph at the last!

But one night more,— a little thing
To you,—I swear, 'tis all I ask!
Once more to make the wide house ring—
To thread the boards, to wear the mask,
To move the coldest, as of yore,
To make them laugh, to make them cry,
To be—to be myself once more,
And then, if must be, let me die!
The prompter's bell! I'm here you see!
By Heaven, friends, you'll break my heart!
Nat Gosling's called: let be, let be,—
None but myself shall act the part!

Yes, thank you, boy, I'll take your chair
One moment, while I catch my breath.
D'ye hear the noise they're making there?
'Twould warm a player's heart in death.
How say you now? Whate'er they write,
We've put the bitter jibe to shame;
I knew, I knew there burned to-night
Within my veins the olden flame!
Stand off a bit; that final round—
I'd hear it ere it dies away
The last, last time!—there's no more sound:
So end the player and the play.

The house is cleared. My senses swim;
I shall be better, though, anon,—
One stumbles when the lights are dim,
'Tis growing late; we must be gone.
Well, braver luck than mine, old friends!
A little work and fame are ours,
While Heaven, health, and fortune lends,
And then—the coffin and the flowers!
These scattered garments? let them lie:
Some fresher actor (I'm not vain)
Will dress anew the part;—but I—
I shall not put them on again.

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

"Dear me! How cold it is up here in the mountains; my teeth are fairly chattering," said an elderly lady. "Don't let 'em chatter too much, aunty," yelled a frightful boy of ten years, "or they may tell where you bought 'em!"

What is that which increases the more you take from it?—Why a hole, of course.

"Madam, what do you hold on this question of femal suffrage?" "Sir, I hold my tongue."

"You Swiss always fight for money; we French for honor," said a pompous French officer to a Swiss gentleman. "Yes," responded the latter; "it is natural for people to fight for that which they most need."

"What are you catching my trout for?" cried an irascible old gentleman to a young man whom he found fishing on his place, and who utterly silenced him by coolly saying, "Who wants to catch your trout? I'm only trying to drown this worm!"

"I always have two trustworthy beaux at hand," said a good-natured spinster to her niece. "Why, where are they now, Aunty?" asked the niece. "Here—my elbows," and she placed her arms akim-bo.

A young lady who lately gave an order to her milliner for a bonnet, said: "You are to make it plain, but at the same time smart, as I sit in a conspicuous place in church."

Why is the inside of everything unintelligible?—Because we can't make it out.

Why do girls kiss each other, and men not? Because girls have nothing better to kiss, and men have.

"What are you hallooing about, Bill?" said a mother at the stairs' foot one evening, after her two boys had been put to bed. "Please, mother," said Bill, "Jem wants half the bed." "Well, let him have it, and you take the other half." "Yes, mother, but he will have his half out of the middle, and make me sleep on both sides of him."

COLORADO JUSTICE.

Jim Parker, whose latch-string hangs out at the head of Blue Lizard Gulch, was duly elected a justice of the peace of that section of El Paso county. Recently Jim convened his first court to hear the complaint of Elder Slater, a traveling missionary, who had caused the arrest of Zimri Bowles, a resident of the foot-hills, upon a charge of stealing the Elder's one eyed mule. As Zim had been arrested in the act of easing the descent of the mule down Mad Gun Mountain, with his lariat fastened to the tail of his animal, the proof against him was conclusive. Accordingly, the justice, after much legal perplexity of mind, proceeded to sentence Zimri to one year's imprisonment in the territorial penitentiary, which sentence he concluded as follows: "An' now, Zim, seein' as I'm about out of things to eat, an' as you will have the cost to pay, I reckon you'd better take a turn among the foot-hills with your rifle, an' see if you can pick up some meat before night, as you can't start for the Big Canon before mornin'." Which marketing duty was performed by Zim bringing in one blacktail fawn and a rabbit within the time prescribed as a post-script to the sentence. The next morning the constable, Mike Irving, started his prisoner through the mountains for the penitentiary. They arrived the second day out, having shot a deer, two antelopes, and a small cinnamon bear on the way. These they sold to the warden of the prison. Having divided the money, the constable proceeded to hand over Zimri, together with the following mittimus from Jim Parker, which is carefully preserved in the penitentiary archives:

To the hed man of the Colorado prison, down at the foot of the Big Canon on the Arkansas—Take notice: Zimri Boules, who come with this here, Stole Elder Slater's one-eyed mule, and it was all the mule the Elder had, and I sentenced Zim to one year in the Colorado prison, and hated to do it, seein' as Jim once stood by me like a man when the Injuns had me in a tight place, an' arter I sentenced Zim to one year for stealing the Elder's mule, my wife, Lizzy, who is a kind o' tender-hearted critter, come and leaned her arm on my shoulder, and says she, "Father, don't forget the time when Zim, with his rifle, covered our cabin from Granite mountain, an' saved us from the Arrapahoes, and Father, I have heard you tell that after that you was wounded at Sand Creek, an' helpless, it was Zimri's rifle that halted the Indian that was creeping in the grass to scalp you." An' then there was a tear splash fell upon the sentence and I changed my mind suddenly, as follows: Seeing as the mule had but one eye, an' wern't mor'n half a mule at that, you can let Zim go at about six months, an' sooner if the Injuns shud get ugly, an' furthermore, if the Elder shud quiet down and give in any times, I will pardon Zim out instanter. Witness my official hand and seal.

JAMES PARKER, J. P.

The warden informed the constable that he could not receive the prisoner on such a commitment, and explained that Zimri should have given a bond in the sum of $300 to appear at the district court. This was accomplished by Zimri subscribing his name to an old replevin bond calling for $300, found among the papers transmitted to the constable by his predecessor. Then, as the constable intended returning by way of Pinon Mountain, to examine a bear den, where he had seen a couple of cubs playing last spring, he gave the bond to Zimri to take back to the Justice. But Zimri, while on his return, traded the $300 bond to a mountain squatter, just in from Missouri, for a horse, saddle, and bridle, and the prisoner is believed to be, at this time, a dashing hunter on the plains.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

"Bosom Friends," an adaptation of "Nos Intimes," draws well at Wallack's, with no announcement of any intended change.

"Rose Michel," at the Union-Square Theatre, is the success of the city. The drama, from all accounts, must be exceedingly interesting and strongly sensational.

The French company, at the Lyceum, does not seem to be doing particularly well, notwithstanding the fact of Fechter being the star.

The run of "The Mighty Dollar," at the Park Theatre, has ceased, but not before it passed its one hundredth night. On the centennial night, 17th, satin programmes and commemorative medals were presented to each member of the audience, the house being crowded to its utmost limits. In the course of the evening Mr. Florence, being heartily called for, said:

I thank you for your constant and kind appreciation of the efforts of Mrs. Florence—and my own—to win your approbation by presenting types of American character which we believe to be humorous, and which you have ratified as true. This is the second run of one hundred nights which it is our good fortune to have made in this city. "The Ticket-of-Leave Man" ran one hundred and forty nights, "Eileen Oge" upward of ninety nights, and now "The Mighty Dollar" has had its centennial. We recall, too, the sixty nights of "No Thoroughfare," and the many burlesques in which we have had the good fortune to evoke your laughter. We have traveled far and wide, but we have always longed to return to our native city, and have ever thought that "there is no place like home." Our welcome—personally, socially and professionally—has been delightful. All has been done here—by the management, the company and the band—and last, not least, by the Press—to make our success brilliant. The critical opinion of "The Mighty Dollar" was indeed, somewhat sharp at the first; but it became kinder as our purposes were made more clear, and we have not failed to profit by the chill as well as the sunshine of criticism. The public has stood by us nobly. I will not detain you longer. The Hon. Bardwell Slote has made speeches enough and at present his heart is in his mouth, and checks the flow of his Congressional eloquence. Ladies and gentlemen, good night.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams are such favorites with the New Yorkers that everything they do is accepted as good, so that even so wretched a play as Gayler's "Connie Soogah," at Booth's, drew largely.

On the 27th, the great production of "Julius Cæsar" took place at Booth's, and from despatches we learn that the affair was a most successful one.

Chanfrau and "Kit" (of course) have been doing fairly at Wood's Museum.

The great panorama of "The Siege of Paris" is drawing crowds to the Colosseum.

E. T. Stetson and another centennial drama entitled "1776; or, the Birthday of Freedom," are at the Bowery.

The usual variety performances at the Tivoli, Parisian Varieties, Twenty-third Street Theatre, Third Avenue, Theatre Comique, Sinn's Brooklyn Theatre, Globe, Eagle, Olympic and San Francisco Minstrels.

The production of Wagner's "Lohengrin," at the Academy by the Wachtel Troupe was a very fair success.

It is said that Augustin Daly has hit upon a success in his own play of "Pique" and it is said that he has not. However that may be it is certain that the story of "Pique" is in five acts and seven tableaux, with the following notable assignment of characters. Miss Fanny Davenport as Mabel; Mr. John Brougham as Doctor Gossett; Mr. Charles Fisher as Mathew Standish; Mr. James Lewis as Sammy Dymple; Mr. D. H. Harkins as Arthur Standish; Mr. W. Davidge as the Tramp Padder; Mr. M. Barrymore as Raymond Lessing; Mr. F. Hardenberg as Ragmoney Jim; Mr. John Drew as Thorsby Gyll; Miss Jeffreys Lewis as Mary Standish; Mrs. G. H. Gilbert as Aunt Dorothy; Miss Sidney Cowell as Raitch; Miss Emily Rigl as Lucille Renfrew; and Miss Kate Holland as Mother Thames. Miss Fanny Davenport has never appeared to such advantage; in fact it may be said that the author has so arranged every character in the play as to develop the talent and capacity of each member of the company.

The tableaux vivants at the Comique have attracted a great deal of attention and caused much controversy. Some say Phryne on the stage in the same no-attire as Phryne in the picture, is not exactly as it should be; others, contrariwise. Meanwhile the theatre is crowded and Matt Morgan is looking up other æsthetic subjects.

A new comedy entitled "The Flatterer" has been produced as the opening piece at the Twenty Third Street Theatre (late Bryant's), but it does not seem to have been a great success. The Arcadian gives it fits.

Miss Clara Morris appeared at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, on Xmas Day in "Camille."

"Richard II." has been produced at the Walnut, Philadelphia, with Booth in the title role. According to the programme, it was for the first time in Philadelphia, but the play was performed at the old Chestnut Street Theatre, January 14th, Chas. Kean enacting Richard, and Wm. B. Wood, Bolingbroke; Queen, Mrs. Darley, and Blanche, Mrs. F. Durang. The first performance of "Richard II." in this country was at the Park Theatre, New York, on the 27th of February, 1848. Richard II., Mr. James Wallack; Bolingbroke, Mr. Simpson; Queen, Mrs. Barnes.

The first dramatization of Cooper's celebrated novel was entitled "The Spy; or, Neutral Ground," and was produced in New York and Philadelphia in 1823. About six months since a version by Chas. Barry, called "The Spy," was brought out by Mr. Dominick Murray at Wood's Museum, New York. Two important sensational effects were introduced, one representing Washington crossing the Delaware and the other giving us the dramatist's notion of a sea fight. Neither of the effects was introduced in a way to be very effective. Mr. Dominick Murray, in the character of Harvey Birch, gave proof of the possession of dramatic talent, but the drama, when he produced it at the California, failed. The new version of Cooper's work which has been running at the Arch was first brought out by Mrs. John Drew and her company while they were in Baltimore. It proved successful there, and has proved successful in Philadelphia. "Harvey Birch," as it is called, is by Mr. Fred Maeder, possesses considerable merit. The action is developed gradually, clearly, and continuously; there is no break wherein the interest flags or the plot stands still.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

SACRAMENTO.

This very desirable property is located on K Street, between Fourth and Fifth, and is 80 feet on K street by 160 deep, running to the alley in the rear. The Theatre is a very good one, and is well stocked with scenery and all the appliances necessary to the production of any ordinary play. The stores in front are all rented, and the rental receipts are now between $500 and $600 per month. It would cost about $80,000 to build a Theatre and stores like the building in question but this desirable property can be bought for less than half that sum, say $35,000. Parties wishing to purchase can write to W. K. MORROW, Sacramento. I will receive bids for the property until April 10th, 1876. de24-tf W. K. MORROW.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

Dr. Spinney will Guarantee to Forfeit $500

For every case of seminal weakness, or private disease of any kind or character, which he undertakes and fails to cure. He would, therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading upon dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage, remember you are approaching the last. If you are bordering upon the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you obstinately persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render you no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success. Then let not despair work itself upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond the reach of medical skill or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN!

There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with two frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Amusements, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Last night little Dick Garnella accomplished the feat of a double somersault from shoulder to shoulder without a miss. In the Carnival scene in the first act are an immense number of revelers, most of whom wear comic masks. These masks were specially imported from New York, and are well worth remarking. "Faustus" will be continued until further notice. Grand New Year matinee on New Year's Day.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The brilliant burlesque of "Fortunio" will be withdrawn Sunday night. Crane as King Alforite the amiable, has a part which he makes the humorous feature of the extravaganza The Lenton Family and Mr. and Mrs Ware furnish the divertisment entertainment and a good one it is, the Lenton Family being acrobats of the first order. Grand New Year Matinee on New Year's Day.

OPERA HOUSE.—Crowded houses attend every night, for when every other show fails to attract there is always the unfailing resource, "Let's go to the Minstrels." Next week there will be an immense bill here, the Lenton family of acrobats, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo Ware, serio comic singers, being on the bill as extra attractions. Grand New Year matinee on New Year's Day

THORNE'S PALACE THEATRE.—The new bill here consists of the farce of "My Turn Next" and the Centennial drama of "The Dawn of Freedom." In the farce, Miss Laura Stevenson, Miss Rea and Mr. Barrows, take the principal characters with plenty of humor and verve, whilst the drama is full of strong situations made the stronger by the patriotic sentiments with which the whole piece is strongly imbued. Grand Matinee on New Year's Day.

JUBILEE SINGERS.—On Monday, the celebrated Tennessee Jubilee Singers will open at Maguire's. The box sheet is open at the Theatre and the seats are being rapidly sold. Concerning the Troupe more may be found in the Notes.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—The holiday piece entitled "The Queen of the Waters," is still the attraction here and with the first or olio part, makes a strong New Year's bill.

THE NEW LYCEUM THEATRE. — The olio is particularly strong, a great number of favorites being at this place of amusement. The spectacle of "Cinderella," concludes a bill which is a strong one for the holidays.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—Lon Dixon makes his reappearance here to night in his specialties. Saturday, January 1st, the first part will consist of International airs with a Centennial finale.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Attractions.—Extra attractions Saturday and Saturday: Miss Cooper, the brilliant songstress and violin soloist; Mons. Drayton, the modern Mile; Wrestland and Cathcart clog and jig dancers; Samwells and Burrow acrobats; Miss Mathews, a laughable pantomime and concert.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day on the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

A Fine Overcoat, Fur Lined for Winter or Summer use. Actual value, $50. For sale, for the loan and one months interest, at Uncle Harris', 702 Kearny street.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

OUR LEADER.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!!

This issue of FIGARO will do duty for to-day, Saturday and Sunday, in consequence of the cessation from work on New Year's Day.

Messrs. Miller and Bauer are creating quite a stir in New York The latest gladiatorial bout is between Miller and Louis Carteron, the champion of Europe, for $1,000 and the championship of the world.

Signor Pietro Baccei reports to us as being safely in New York.

In consequence of the severity of the Eastern Winter, the little Mexican opera bouffe singers have suffered so, that Fred Zimmerman has released them from their engagement and suffered them to go back to their own warmer home. They left Philadelphia for Cactusland on Tuesday last.

Somehow or other the excitement concerning Mr. Oakey Hall's debut has considerably died out, and there are some Eastern papers that go so far as to say something about the play being a fizzle.

We hope that during the presentation of "Dr. Faustus" at the California theatre, no such uncanny event will take place as that which happened many years ago at an English theatre, when the audience and the doctor suddenly discovered one more and much uglier devil than belonged to the piece, who was dancing and kicking his heels about very merrily with the rest. Immediately on his being observed, he took flight and it is added, carried away with him the roof of the theatre. We find this story alluded to in a curious work, entitled "The Blacke Booke," (a proper depository!) "London, printed in black letter by T. C., for Jeffory Chorlton, 1604." "The light-burning Sarjaunt Lucifer," says of one running through fear of fire at a brothel, "hee had a head of hayre like one of my divells in Doctor Faustus, when the olde theatre crackt and frighted the audience." The French have amongst them a similar fable. J. J. Rousseau, in his "Œuvres Diverses," Amst. 1761, vol. ii., p. 186, relates it thus, according to our translation: "I have in my youth read a tragedy called 'The Slave,' in which the devil was represented by one of tho actors. The piece was once performed, as I was informed, when this personage coming on the stage, found himself in company with a second devil, the original, who, as if jealous of the audacity of the counterfeit, appeared in propria persona, frightened all the people out of the house, and put an end to the representation."

A number of The Touchstone, a baby journal published in New York and devoted partly to the drama has come to hand, containing an excellent portrait of Mme. Arabella Goddard.

San Jose, in desperation, has started a skating rink.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulford are at present playing with a small company in Eureka, Nevada.

We hear that in September next W. H. Crane and Miss Alice Harrison will leave for Australia under engagement to Samuel Lazar, of Sydney and Adelaide, Australia.

On Monday next, the Tennessee Jubilee Singers open at Maguire's Theatre. This organization is composed of young people, all formerly slaves, who have engaged their services in the noble task of extending the educational work so prosperously inaugurated for the improvement of the colored people. There was only one method of accomplishing such a work, and the students, under the advice of their professors, seem to have hit the popular heart, and touched it to the quick. The people in their heart of hearts love the colored people, not for themselves, perhaps, but for what they have suffered; and these songs are only an echo of the popular sentiment, and their rapturous reception everywhere is merely an evidence of the profound sympathy which the civilized world has felt for many years with the feeling which is so touchingly expressed in these beautiful Jubilee songs.

John Jack, late of the Hooley Comedy Company, has engaged a hall in Virginia City, and will have a troupe performing there for a season of six months.

The Salt Lake Footlights has changed its name and nature, and is now a subscription paper and known as the Daily Times.

The spectacular drama of "Cherry and Fair Star" is being played as the holiday piece of the Salt Lake Theatre.

The Lingards opened at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, on Monday last. A portion of Maguire's Comedy Company, E. D. Haygarth, W. M. Leman and Miss Singer, are among the support. "Married in Haste," "Our Boys" and "Our Girls," are amongst the bills. In "Married in Haste," Lingard has given up the part of Percy Pendragon and taken that of Gibson Greene, played here by Mr. Barton Hill, who may accept this change of character as a very neat compliment.

Acquaintances in N. Y. Little Bonnie Runnells is at the Globe Theatre. Ella Wesner is at the Theatre Comique. George S. Knight and the Worrell Sisters are at the Olympic.

At a recent representation of "Connie Soogah" at at Booth's' the effect of the fearful struggle on the bridge over the cataract, was somewhat marred by the dummy man being thrown over into the roaring waters, whilst the real man was still struggling on the bridge in full view of the audience.

We are glad to see that Manager Hooley is once more picking up the ducats. His Minstrelsy show in Brooklyn is a thorough success.

Mrs Waller, the tragedienne, is on her way to San Francisco, and will commence her engagement at the California Theatre, on Monday, January 24th. The present holiday spectacle, will, it is expected, keep the boards until then.

The insanity of Fox is said to have been something exceedingly painful to witness. His last four weeks' performance of "Humpty Dumpty" were indeed grizzly spectacles. A pantomime with a real mad clown is, thank heaven, a rarity. Ought it not to have been an impossibility?

Mr Matt Morgan in the interest of art and his pocket, has for some time past been presenting at the Comique, New York, a series of living pictures, the figures in them being chiefly women, very much unadorned. Some fuss having been made thereanent, Matt has artfully called the Bible to his aid and advertises the approaching exhibition of "Susannah and the Elders," "Bathsheba in the Bath," and "Adam and Eve Before the Fall." Under this pious ægis, Mr. Morgan is secure.

In a recent issue of the New York Dispatch, Mr. Bartlett's appointment to the position of stage manager of Wade's Opera House was spoken of, with many kind words for the way in which he had held himself in Booth's Theatre, and many good wishes for his prosperity in his new position.

On Monday evening last, Mr. Barton Hill received a "Mighty Dollar" medal from W. J. Florence, commemorative of the piece's long run. It is of silver, of the size of a dollar and suitably inscribed.

"Before "Fortunio" is withdrawn, we must say a word respecting the manner in which the chief character is played by Miss Katy Mayhew. Since [illegible] she has been growing style become better; mannerisms have been dropped, a brighter, keener style of acting, has been adopted, her singing is better, and altogether, Miss Katy Mayhew has greatly improved. As she plays Fortunio, she is as bright and cheery as a lark and whenever she is on the stage things seems to take a new aspect and business grows the brisker

More Xmas presents. Mr. Barton Hill wears a pair of handsome cameo sleeve-buttons, the gift of Mrs. Saunders, and Mr Tom Maguire, Jr., has a diamond stud burning on his (shirt) bosom, likewise the gift of some appreciative friend. Why can't we all be Managers?

NOTES FROM ABROAD.

The London managers no longer produce their new plays on Saturdays. They find that day the worst of the week.

Chiarini's Circus was in Bahia, at last accounts, thence Pernambuco and Rio de Janeiro.

The Vokes Family reappeared at Drury Lane Theatre, London, on the 27th, in the pantomime of "Whittington and his Cat."

"The Shaughraun" has been transplanted from the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, to the Royal Adelphi.

Worse yet, Tupper proposes to play in his American tragedy.

The latest tale from Glasgow, which city the Maplesonian opera company have just left for Newcastle, is that the theatre was so crowded that "reserved standing room" was booked. Cards were hung by strings from the ceiling under the pit, and each man was allowed twenty-four inches of standing room under his proper number. Si non e vero, &c.

Jenny Lind is in failing health.

Lecocq's new opera bouffe, "Pompion," is a failure.

Verdi, the composer, has taken his seat as a member of the Italian Senate.

A benefit in aid of the family of the deceased George Belmore, took place at Drury Lane, December 15th.

Mrs. Adelaide Neilson-Lee will make her re-appearance on the London stage, at the Haymarket, Jan. 10th, acting Anne Boleyn, in the new play by Tom Taylor.
